CHIHUAHUA CITY UNDER ATTACK BY VILLA BAND

Bandits Approach Town From South; Trevino at Head of De Facto Troops, Trains Artillery on Army of Invaders

CARRANZA FORCE PLANS FLANK MOVE

Juarez Arsenal Supplies Reach Defenders; Wire Still Open to North; Heavy Fighting Is Declared to Be in Progress

EL PASO, Texas, Nov. 23.—Francisco Villa began an attack on Chihuahua City at 11 o'clock today, a message received by Carranza officials in Juarez at noon today stated. Villa is making his attack from the south, the message stated.

General Jacinto B. Trevino answered an attack of the bandit forces with an artillery bombardment from Santa Rosa Hill and the other fortifications to the south and southwest aof the state capital, a report received in Juarez said.

The noise of the bursting shells and discharging field pieces was said to be deafening. General Trevino has twenty field pieces stationed on the Santa Rosa and other hills in the suburbs of Chihuahua City, military men in Juarez say, and there are a number of French 50s included in this number.

As far as is known here, Villa has no field pieces except the machine guns which were reported to have been captured by his forces from General Fortunato Maycotte's column near Santa Rosalia.

FLANK ATTACK.

General Murguia, who was reported to have reached Mahula about twelve miles south of Chihuahua City, is expected to attack Villa from the rear, according to this information.

General Trevino is in command of the forces which are defending the capital of the state and has approximately 5000 men with artillery and strong fortifications surrounding the town to the west and south, the Carranza officers in Juarez declare.

An attack upon the state capital by Villa bandits has been expected since yesterday, as Villa was reported to have reached Horcasitas, about thirty miles south of Chihuahua City, yesterday with his main column.

Ammunition from the Juarez arsenal was rushed to Chihuahua City yesterday on a special train to be issued to General Trevino's troops.

Carranza officials here and in Juarez are authority for the statement that General Trevino intends to defend the city against any bandit attack as long as his ammunition lasts. The fact that the telegraph line is open from Juarez to Chihuahua City indicates the concentration of Villa's forces to the south of Chihuahua City, as it is his custom to cut telegraph communication as he begins an attack upon a town and his men would have cut the wires to Juarez if there were bandits north of the capital.

OUTPOSTS WITHDRAWN.

Passengers arriving from Chihuahua City late last night reported the Carranza outposts, which had been stationed at Sause and Laguna, north of the capital, had been withdrawn to the city. This was taken by the passengers to indicate that General Trevino expected an attack soon. No bandits were seen along the line between Chihuahua City and Juarez and this was taken as an indication by the Mexican officials that Villa had called in all of his scouting bands of bandits to participate in the general attack upon the Carranza garrison. General Murgula, who is expected to attack Villa from the rear, is said to have a force of seven thousand men.

READY TO FLEE.

The Chihuahua City passengers, who were Mexicans, reported preparations were being made in Chihuahua City among the foreigners and Mexican civilians to come to the border as soon as an attack by Villa was expected. Trunks were packed, and, in many instances, taken to the railway station, the Mexicans said.

The repeated calls for freight cars by the officials of the Mexican Central Railroad upon mining companies and others having cars on the American side of the border continued today. One local firm which had thirty cars on this side of the line was ordered to transfer the cargoes at once and rush the empty cars to Juarez for shipment to Chihuahua City. These urgent requests stimulated the rumors that General Trevino intended to evacuate the state capital and bring his forces to Juarez, but the Carranza officers on the border deny this.

Allies Object To Chinese Loan

See Politics Behind the Chicago Deal

PEKING, Nov. 23.—The British, French, Russian and Japanese bankers of the quintuple group have sent a letter to the Chinese minister of finance saying the loan arranged for with the Chicago banks violates article seventeen of the reorganization loan agreement of April 26, 1913. The letter declares the loan is political and not industrial and asks for an explanation.

The Chinese parliament recently approved a loan of $5,000,000 gold, made by the Chinese government with the Continental and Commercial Bank of Chicago. The loan was said to be for immediate administrative needs.

U.S. and Germany Are Confronted By Diver Crisis

Washington Makes Ten Requests for Explanations of Sinking Vessels.

BERLIN, via Sayville, Nov. 23.—Complications may again be impending in German-American relations. Germany's conduct of submarine warfare has brought forth an abundant crop of American inquiries, of which Joseph C. Grew, the American charge, recently has filed no less than ten—five of them today. Six remain to be answered, including the cases on the Marina, on which a number of Americans appear to have been killed, and the liner Arabia, the sinking of which the American government declares appears to be inconsistent with the promises of the German government regarding the treatment of passenger liners.

The United States bases its attitude in the case of the Arabia on the assumption that it was unarmed and torpedoed without warning, and is unable to see that there was adequate justification for forcing the passengers into the boats. Washington believes the submarine commander, on ascertaining that there were women and children on the decks, should have refrained from making an attack.

CONVINCING ANSWERS.

Germany in the four cases in regard to which replies have been made was found to have fairly convincing answers, which it is believed may put quite a different aspect on affairs. It is pointed out here, for example, that according to testimony of her own passengers the Arabia was armed and used her canon; that the sea was smooth and that other vessels were near. It is argued that the Arabia, having on board a large number of Coolie war workers, should be regarded as a transport.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 23.—The wording of the Berlin despatch "that a period of complications may be impending in German-American relations" aroused much interest in official circles, especially as the despatch was allowed to pass a very strict censorship.

Officials refused to disclose details of the inquiries sent to Berlin on the ground they were only inquiries for fact and would have a very bad effect on public opinion if an alarm were given only to be shown groundless.

SEEMS CONCLUSIVE.

Many of the causes now being investigated, it is admitted, may fail to develop any violation of Germany's pledges, but some are known to be serious.

In the Marina case, American affidavits seem conclusive, but no action will be taken until Germany's reply has been received.

French Lieutenant Brings Down Airman

PARIS, Nov. 23.—Lieutenant Guynemer brought down his twenty-second German aeroplane in an aerial action reported in today's official statement.

The night was calm along the entire front, the statement said.

Greece Refuses to Surrender Munitions

LONDON, Nov. 23.—The Greek government has refused to comply with the demand of the entente allies for the surrender of part of its supplies of arms and ammunition, Reuter's Athens correspondent cables.

One Killed and Six Hurt As Building Falls

NEW YORK, Nov. 23.—One man was killed and six injured today when a three-story building, in course of construction at Sixty-fourth street and Third avenue collapsed.

TWO VESSELS SUNK.

LONDON, Nov. 23.—The British ship Grenada is reported sunk, says an announcement by Lloyds shipping agency today. The sinking of the Norwegian steamer City of Mexico also is announced by the agency.

The City of Mexico, of 1511 tons gross, was last reported to have arrived at Nantes, on October 27, from Hull. The British four-masted bark Grenada of 2268 tons gross arrived at Havre on September 25, bound for New York and Australian ports.

LID DOWN ON GAMBLING, IS NEW EDICT

Chinese Lottery Houses Close Doors and Stop the Flood of Fines Into City Coffers, As Police Are Told to Make Raid

Big Crusade by City Officials Comes As Orientals Quit; W. J. Petersen Says Cardrooms Must Stop; City Loses Much

A general gambling crusade, the most extensive ever launched by the police department, is on today, and every form of gambling, from Chinese lottery to poker games in saloons, has been ordered discontinued on pain of arrest and jail sentence instead of the usual fines. The cruisade is one of the most far-reaching ever essayed about the bay. All saloons, cafes, poolrooms and lotteries have been warned, and every form of game has been discontinued. Chinese lotteries are locked tight and the lookouts have been taken off the doors.

In the meantime the city council is pondering over the best way to overcome a deficit of about $21,000 in the city budget as the result of the crusade, which will put an end to the lottery fines and bail forfeitures that have in former years netted the city about $35,000 annually. While the council was busy figuring on the possible results of this policemen were busy passing the word throughout Chinatown to the effect that the chief's order was in earnest this time, that fines and forfeitures of bail would be replaced by jail sentences, and that orders were to make wholesale arrests if necessary.

ORDERS LAST NIGHT.

Chief Petersen's orders were issued last night, when he gathered his men together at the City Hall and instructed them to carry on a general gambling crusade to put a stop to all forms.

The city council, as the result of the cruisade, faces a queer situation. It had counted on $50,000 from the police courts and, according to precedent, about $36,000 of this sum would have come from the Chinese lotteries. But so far only $15,000 has been collected in fines and bail forfeitures.

Chief Petersen declares that he has the sanction of Commissioner Jackson to start the crusade, and Jackson declares that he cannot help it if the council is short on funds; that to suppress gambling is his principal aim, and not the finances coming from crime.

Petersen said:

During the last month and a half I have made a survey of conditions and have found them to be not satisfactory. This covered not only Chinese lotteries, but other places, poolrooms, saloons and cafes. So I got the men together and gave them a straight talk. From now on the police officers will be engaged in police business actively and aggressively.

JACKSON'S ORDER.

Commissioner Jackson declared:

Chief Petersen and I discussed the situation at length and there is complete harmony between us. I am not concerned with any deficit in the city budget, for that is a matter for the city assessor. I made no promises that any revenues should accrue through this department.

This is the second time that the lotteries have been closed. The first time was when Chief William F. Woods closed them, and they were reopened after his resignation, due, according to testimony in the council hearing of the case, to a disagreement when Jackson proposed to operate the lotteries and collect the fines. When Petersen took charge the lotteries were raided occasionally, and the usual fine or bail money collected. Today, however, the places closed and customers were not permitted to play.

Auto Bandit Killed; Sacramentan Captured

ST. LOUIS, Nov. 23.—One automobile bandit was killed and his partner was captured while the pair were holding up a pharmacy here early this morning. A police sergeant walked in the door and killed one. A clerk shot the other. The dead robber started the shooting.

The bandit who was slain was stated by his companion to have been John Joseph Davis of Omaha. The companion who was wounded gave his name as John Alfred Lewis of Sacramento, Cal.

German Belgium Levy Raised to 50,000,000

LONDON, Nov. 23.—The German levy on Belgium has been increased from 40,000,000 francs a month to 50,000,000 francs, according to a Reuter's Amsterdam despatch quoting the Echo Belge. The despatch says the levy is to pay the cost of maintenance of the German army of occupation and the German administration of the occupied territory.

HOLLAND PLANS LOAN.

LONDON, Nov. 23.—Holland will shortly issue a loan of 125,000,000 guilders, according to a despatch to Reuter's from The Hague. The loan will be issued at 97, bearing interest at 4 per cent.

Austria to Stay In War, Asserts Emperor Charles

Successor to Francis Joseph Issues Proclamation and Assumes Control.

LONDON, Nov 23.—Emperor Charles of Austria has issued a proclamation to the Austro-Hungarians, declaring his inflexible decision to maintain the war until "a peace assuring the existence and development of the monarchy," according to a Vienna despatch to Reuter's by way of Amsterdam.

The despatch says the proclamation was printed in a special edition of the Wiener Zeitung together with an autograph letter addressed to Premier Koebar. The letter announced that the new monarch had taken over the government and confirmed the Premier in his present functions. After paying homage to the late Emperor the proclamation said:

I will continue to complete his work. I ascend his throne in a stormy time. Our aim has not yet been completed and the illusion of the enemy to throw down my monarchy and our allies is not yet broken.

INFLEXIBLE DECISION.

You know me to be in harmony with my peoples in my inflexible decision to continue the struggle until a peace assuring the existence and development of the monarchy is obtained. I will do all in my power to banish as soon as possible the horrors and sacrifices of war and to re-obtain peace as soon as the honor of our arms, the conditions of life of my countries and their allies and the defiance of our enemies will allow.

Vienna will not parade her sorrow nor welcome any marked formal observance of the funeral of Emperor Franz Josef and the assumption to the throne of his successor, Charles Francis. Despatches from Vienna indicated today that departure would be made from the rigidly formal and richly ceremonial customs which heretofore have marked the passing of one sovereign and the ascending to the throne of another. The pall of war will hang over even the pall of sorrow.

Date for the interment of the remains of Emperor Franz Josef has not yet been fixed, but the service probably will take place a week from today.

BODY LIES IN STATE.

The city's mourning for those lost in the war was intensified by universal sorrow for the late Emperor. Mingling with the half-masted national colors were great streamers of black. The great columns of the municipal and state buildings were wrapped in the mourning badge and their fronts all but covered with the pall.

The Emperor's body will lie in state at the Hofburg—the imperial palace in Vienna—a building the aged Emperor never liked and which he never occupied except on formal state occasions, preferring the beautiful Schoenbrunn palace in Schoenbrunn park, where he was born. From the Hofburg the late sovereign's body will be carried through Vienna's narrow streets three short blocks to the Church of Capucins for interment. Ordinarily this funeral parade woud have been a ceremonial full of pomp and color, but Vienna despatches today indicated that on this occasion the cortege and its escorts will be of the smiplest possible form.

PREPARED FOR THRONE.

The new emperor has been prepared during the past two years, in preparation for his kingly duties. The Archduke Francis Ferdinand, assassinated at Sarajevo, had gone through years of study to fit him for the crown. But Charles Francis, on whom his death placed the succession, was totally unprepared. Therefore he was immediately put through a course of study. Eight months ago it was announced that Count von Berchtold, former foreign minister, had been named grand master of ceremonies to the new heir apparent. The title was merely designed to conceal the fact that Von Berchtold, one of the emperor's strongest and wisest statesmen, had been assigned to tutor the future emperor in statecraft.

Wilson Thanks Hughes; Latter Congratulates

Willcox Says Word From California Convinces Him Democrats Victorious.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 23.—President Wilson today sent the following reply to the message of Charles E. Hughes congratulating the President on his re-election:

Charles E. Hughes, Laurel-in-the-Pines, Lakewood, N. J.: I am sincerely obliged to you for your message of congratulation. Allow me to assure you of my good wishes for the years to come.

WOODROW WILSON.

After the President had telegraphed to Hughes the White House made public several thousand telegrams received from cabinet members, governors of states, Democratic leaders in virtually every state and presidents of several Latin American countries.

No messages were received from any of the belligerent nations.

Replying to the congratulations of the cabinet the President said:

One of the best things about the result is that it means four more years of active association in public service and in that we are genuinely rejoiced.

This was taken by some to forecast an invitation from the President to the members of the cabinet to remain in office.

Former Secretary of State Bryan telegraphed:

I am proud of the West, including Nebraska. The states beyond the Missouri have rallied to your support and saved the day, and in doing so have honored themselves no less than you. They have been largely benefited by the great reforms secured under your leadership and they stand with you for peace, prosperity and progress.

LAKEWOOD, N. J., Nov. 23.—Charles E. Hughes, Republican candidate for President in the recent election, last night sent to President Wilson a telegram, congratulating him upon his re-election. In his telegram Hughes said:

Because of the closeness of the vote I have awaited the official count in California, and now that it has been virtually completed, permit me to extend to you my congratulations upon your re-election. I desire, also, to express my best wishes for a successful administration.

NEW YORK, Nov. 23.—William R. Willcox, chairman of the Republican national committee, last night issued the following statement in reference to Hughes' telegram to President Wilson:

Having conferred by telephone during the day and late this afternoon with Republican state committee and the Republican national committeemen in California, I am informed that the official canvass of the vote has been so nearly completed that no change will result from the few precincts not counted in the returns thus far compiled.

Divorce Is Not Punishment, Says Judge to Pair

Is Matter of Equity, Tells the Hendricksens; Denies Decree.

Basing his decision on a supreme court ruling, Superior Judge Frank B. Ogden has placed a new construction on divorce proceedings in denying a decree to Mrs. Jennie Hendricksen, who charged William G. Hendricksen with cruelty.

Substantiation of the charges brought by the plaintiff was conceded by counsel for both sides after the testimony was before the court, but to their surprise Judge Ogden held a different view of the case.

Divorce is not a punishment, he pointed out, but a matter of equity. After referring to the acts of cruelty the court in denying a decree said:

A decree should be denied unless in their nature and under the conditions surrounding them it occurs to the court and is shown by preponderance of evidence that the innocent spouse must be soon divorced in order to release her from any threatening injury.

From the decision it is construed by the attorneys concerned that the defendant should not be punished for past acts of cruelty, but that instead it should be considered to what extent the plaintiff would be in jeopardy in the future.

Mrs. Hendricksen complained that her husband had given her a black eye, struck her with a cane and turned the garden hose on their daughter, driving her out of bed and causing her to plunge headlong through a window in her sleeping porch in her efforts to escape the deluge.

R. B. Tappan appeared for the plaintiff and Homer R. Spence for the defendant.

Turks Massacre 6000 Armenians

Sivas Scene of Act of Extermination

LONDON, Nov. 23.—A special agency despatch from Baku, Asiatic Russia, via Petrograd, declares the Turks have massacred between 5000 and 6000 Armenians at Sivas, Turkey.

Airmen Make Raid on Zeebrugge Station

LONDON, Nov. 23.—A successful air raid against German hydroplanes and naval forces at Zeebrugge was announced in an admiralty statement today.

Yesterday, it was declared, naval aeroplanes dropped bombs over the seaplane sheds at the Belgian port, now held by the Germans and also on German destroyers anchored alongside the mole.

A destroyer was hit and the sheds damaged by the bombs.

Iron Money Planned by Scandinavians

COPENHAGEN, Nov. 23.—The National Tidende says that as a result of negotiations between Denmark, Sweden and Norway iron money is shortly to be issued in place of copper coin, in 2 and 5-ore pieces. These coins hitherto have been made from copper plates imported from England, but the export of these was recently stopped, owing, it is stated, to the British belief that large quantities of the copper had reached Germany.

MAYORS OF CITIES IN INITIAL PROGRAM

U. S. to Hold Out Plan for the Mediation to Warring Nations in Hope That Greatest of Wars May End Very Soon

PROFESSOR POPE OF U. C. HEADS WORK

American Neutral Conference Committee With Headquarters in New York to Include All Powers in Plan of Mercy

Taking as a slogan "150,000 names for Alameda county," the east bay cities today joined the world-wide move for peace which is being led by California. The petitions will ask President Wilson to make peace overtures, and the action of those who are seeking its circulation is based on information that "suggestions" from neutral nations at this time will not be unwelcome.

Preliminary plans in Alameda county have been made at a headquarters established at 421 Thirteenth street and the committee named which will conduct the great move in this particular portion of the state. The slogan of the local committee is "Over 150,000 names for Alameda county," and members are working with that idea in mind.

Heading the move in this county is Professor Arthur U. Pope of the University of California, who has been working quietly for the past few weeks, gathering data and names for the great work which the county will do. Since even the most optimistic peace worker does not figure California's entire petition to number more than 800,000 signatures, the 150,000 of Alameda county, pledged by the workers, may have much to do with the final numerical result.

A special executive committee has been appointed, consisting of all the executive officers of east bay communities. Mayors Samuel Irving of Berkeley, Commissioner W. H. Edwards of Oakland and Mayor Frank Bartlett of Alameda, are the men on whom certain wide responsibilities will fall during the campaign. Several days ago the Alameda county branch of the American Neutral Conference selected as local chairman Charles E. Snook, attorney, with Miss Ethel Moore as secretary.

OTHERS TO JOIN.

Within a period of two weeks it is expected that every state in the Union will have followed the lead of California's counties. The fact that Alameda county is one of the first in the state to begin its campaign for a record number of signers brings credit to the east bay communities as well as consideration for the committee and directors of the work.

Representative men and women from every walk of life are interested in the move enough to lend their names to it and to work heartily for the petitions' success. National headquarters have been established at 70 Fifth avenue, New York, and leading men and women of the United States are giving their aid to the movement.

Names on the Alameda county petitions will be bound into the great volume which will be sent on to New York to join the other state volumes expected from the nation's commonwealths. The petitions will be forwarded to Washington, where President Wilson may receive a view of the nation's desire for peace among the warring nations of Europe.

ROOMS DONATED.

Rent, light, heat and incidental expenses have been furnished the local committee free of charge by interested citizens of the community. Members of the county committee consist of the following:

Mrs. Wm. Angus, Lewis B. Avery, A. C. Barker, Frederick Bamford, Mayor Frank Bartlett, Alameda; E. C. Bradley, Clifton Brooks, Miss Annie Florence Brown, Miss Matilda Brown, Miss Minnie Bunker, A. E. Carter, Mrs. Dane Coolidge, Dr. Daniel Crosby, Ezra Decoto, Mrs. E. B. DeRome, M. W. Dobrzensky, Sam Donohue, Judge W. H. Donahue, W. H. TWO TOWNS CAPTURED BY RUMANIANS

Ultimate Fate of Army Is in Doubt, But Report of Bucharest Allays Much Uneasiness in London War Circles

BUCHAREST, Nov. 23.—In its second official statement of the day, the war office today declared Rumanian troops after powerful artillery preparations had attacked and occupied Mount Toaca and Polana Marcine, capturing an enemy machine gun and repulsing a counter-attack.

Apart from the Jiul Valley, the statement says the situation virtually is unchanged. Retirement from the Jiul Valley had been announced in a previous statement.

LONDON, Nov. 23.—Latest reports of the campaign General von Falkenhayn is waging against the Rumanians indicate that the Teutonic forces are overrunning Western Wallachina, following up their defeat of the Rumanians in the Jiul Valley region and the capture of Craiova.

Indications of the abandonment by the Rumanians of a large section of Western Wallachia, may be found in today's announcement by the Bulgarian war office. It reports the destruction by Rumanian forces of the bridge over the Danube near Corabia, fifty miles southeast of Craiova.

So far it appears that the entente forces which captured Monastir have not been able to press their advance beyond the new line taken up by the Bulgarians and Germans a short distance north of the city.

SILENCE BROKEN.

The Rumanian official statement issued today after two days' silence at Bucharest, in the face of sweeping German claims of "bottling up" of the Rumanian army, served to increase the hope here that the forces of the Balkan kingdom in the Jiul valley at least has ducked from under the encircling arm of General von Falkenhayn's troops.

SILENCE IS BROKEN.

LONDON, Nov. 23.—The Rumanian official statement issued today after two days' silence at Bucharest, in the face of sweeping German claims of "bottling up" of the Rumanian army, served to increase the hope here that the forces of the Balkan kingdom in the Jiul valley at least has ducked from under the encircling arm of General von Falkenhayn's troops.

The Rumanian statement did not concede loss to the Germans of Craiova, but it did announce a retirement westward from the Wallachian city. Of more interest here was the statement that the Rumanian forces had withdrawn from the Jiul valley to "old positions." The Jiul valley forces were among those at which Von Falkenhayn's encircling sweep was most directly aimed. If they have escaped, as indicated in the Rumanian statement, they may be able to create a sufficiently strong diversion to relieve the vise-like pressure of the Teutonic crusher on other Rumanian forces around Orsova.

PROGRESS GRATIFIES.

A stiffening of the Rumanian resistance was also seen in the statement's report that the lines in the Alt valley had been maintained.

The retirement westward from Craiova, mentioned in the statement, would appear to mean that these forces are swinging to the aid of Orsova defenders.

Military experts pointed out that the logical section from which troops would be drawn in reinforcement of the retreating German-Bulgarian army north of Monastir would be from General Von Falkenhayn's Austro-Hungarian-German forces responsible for the sweep into Rumania. For this reason they were gratified with the continued northward progress reported achieved by General Serrail's allied forces now operating out of the newly captured Monastir.

ARMY REINFORCED.

Berlin statements have acknowledged reinforcement of the army opposing this advance. But if the Serbian-French-Russian-Italian drive continues with as much success experts here look for further and greater withdrawals of German troops diverted to the German-Bulgarian troops' aid, probably from Von Falkenhayn's forces. Any considerable diversion of his forces would certainly weaken his offensive, possibly in sufficient measure to permit of a successful stand by the Rumanians and escape from the jaws of the German vise.

The Serbs have now reached a point twenty-five miles east of Monastir.

Prisoner Perishes In Jail Fire

Victim Believed to Have Tried to Escape

REDDING, Nov. 23.—An unidentified prisoner was burned to death last night when the jail at Hornbrook burned. Only a few charred human bones were found in the ashes. It is believed that the prisoner set fire to the jail, hoping to escape in the excitement, unwittingly bringing about his own death.

When the fire was discovered the marshal tried in vain to unlock the door to bring the prisoner out, but failed.

NEW RULER TO REMAIN IN WAR

newspapers today concur in the view that the death of Emperor Francis Joseph and the accession of a new monarch will not materially affect the course of the war.

"The future of Austria-Hungary," says the Morning Post, "was never darker or more foreboding. Whatever the outcome of the war, she stands to lose. Even if the central powers avoid a decisive defeat she will remain a vassal of Germany, in fact, if not in name."

COMMENTS UNFLATTERING.

Although Emperor Francis Joseph is recognized by the editorial writers to have been personally friendly to Great Britain and the tragedies of his reign are sympathetically recalled, today's estimates of his achievements and his personality are not flattering. The Times says:

Beyond his devotion to the dynasty and his desire to transmit its possessions undiminished to his successor, he seems to have had no positive purpose. Throughout life he groped in the dark toward the line of least resistance and ended by involving himself, his family, his dominions and his subjects in a catastrophe the like of which the civilized world has not seen.

The Daily Chronicle says:

Behind the divinity which came to hedge him, he remained what he always had been, a man of cruel, crooked, cavernous and misanthropic mind.

The Daily Telegraph says:

His star has set in the horror of a convulsion in which the fortunes of the Hapsburgs may well finally be engulfed. This is not the moment to allot his exact responsibility for the unpardonable crime of the war, but future ages, with the advantage of cooler judgment, will not, we think, estimate less sternly than we the guilty record of one of the arch malefactors of Europe.

PEACE PLEA TO BE NATIONAL PLAN

Monster Petition Circulated First in California to Ask War's End.

ment from the American Neutral Conference Committee. He said:

The American Neutral Conference Committee aims to bring about an official conference of all neutral nations to discuss their mutual interests as affected by the war to agree upon principles of international action that will tend to prevent future war, and upon the basis of these, jointly to offer mediation to the warring powers. The end in view is identical with that announced by the allied and the central powers, both of which have officially declared their object to be the establishment of the future peace of the world.

The committee believes in doing everything possible to stop the war. Still, it represents more than a "stop-the-war" movement. It stands for humanity and a better future. It knows that the war must presently end and that then there will be great confusion of purpose unless preliminary preparation has been made. Realizing from history that a treaty imposed in the flush of triumph may safeguard the interests of the victor only and that a stalemate may result in a mere restoration of the conditions existing before the war began, the committee believes it to be incumbent upon the neutral nations to protect the future peace of mankind by uniting to see that the fundamentals of peace are not overlooked in the treaty ending the war.

This can best be done by means of an official conference of neutral nations. They have a right to call such a conference. Even though they have not participated in the actual hostilities they have suffered grievously, and are in danger of becoming involved so long as the war lasts. They have a legal right under The Hague conventions to offer mediation without offense. They have a moral right—which is rather a duty—to use their power for the advancement of the cause of humanity. The future concerns them as much as it concerns the belligerents, and they have an undeniable right to participate in the settlement which shall govern the future.

In all this the United States occupies a strategic position. If we take the lead, others can and will co-operate. A neutral conference is advocated by bills now pending in the parliaments of Switzerland, Norway and Sweden; there is a strong sentiment in its favor in The Netherlands; Latin-America is friendly to it.

The committee proposes as a first step to organize the sentiment in the United States favorable to the conference proposal by inviting all sympathizers to affiliate with it, and in this way crystallizing a public opinion that will warrant the President in inviting neutral nations to a conference. It will co-operate with bodies in other neutral countries working to influence their governments to the same end, and with any organization or force anywhere that promises to advance its object.

If public sentiment in favor of a conference is clear there will be no doubt of official action to bring it about. And if a conference meets and adopts a sensible, comprehensive program—and no other will be accepted by representatives of thirty-three nations—the warring powers will respect it for obvious reasons, among them the reason that their own professed purposes will be realized by the successful issue of the neutral conference experiment.

The peace of the future is the great desideratum. If it can be secured by means of a conference of neutrals which shall take the place of a fight to a finish for the same end, it will have been secured in the best and most lasting way, by reason and by law.

RAILROADS' NEEDS TOLD COMMISSION

Joint Congressional Board to Investigate Transportation Begins Taking Testimony As to Regulation of Railways

More Credit and Extension of Lines to Develop Resources Are Urged by Alfred Thom in First Statement in the Case

WASHINGTON, Nov. 23.—The first actual testimony on the broad subject of transportation was received today by the joint congressional railroad investigating commission. Alfred Thom of this city, general counsel for the Southern Railway, and counsel for the railway executives' advisory committee, was the first witness in presenting the railroad's side of the case.

The hearing is the first of a series which will continue indefinitely and will cover railroad credit, federal control, national incorporation, government ownership, wages and other important subjects.

Thom blamed the present system of "corrective" regulation, divided between the state and federal governments, for most of the problems troubling the public and the carriers. He appealed for a discussion of necessary changes "not upon any mere theory or jealousy as to the distribution of governmental power, but upon the large issue of what public interest requires." He said:

CREDIT IS LACKING.

Rates are less important to public interest than certainty, safety and sufficiency of transportation.

Under present conditions the railroad business is largely controlled by practical instead of by business considerations.

Railroad credit is so poor and returns so small that adequate extensions into undeveloped territory and enlargement of facilities are impossible.

Increased transportation facilities would tend to reduce the high cost of living by opening up new country, thereby causing increased production.

Thom pointed out that the present system of railroad regulation had its beginning in the abuses of the past and was based on the principles of repression, correction and punishment, rather than on constructive principles. He continued:

Railroad regulation is the result of a spirit of anger that grew out of real or fancied abuses in the past.

The railroads accept the view that regulation is a permanent and enduring part of government in America. The first duty of the carriers is to the public. That duty is to afford reasonable facilities on reasonable terms and at reasonable rates. This must be done before any private interests can be considered.

NEED EXTENSIONS.

The present systems of regulations are entirely adequate to protect the public against exorbitant rates, but are not adequate to insure to the public sufficient facilities for its present and future requirements.

Less than one thousand miles of new railroads has been constructed in the United States during the past year. This is less than in any year since 1848, except the period of the civil war, and yet the cost of living is daily advancing, owing to a shortage of supplies which might be remedied by securing access to new areas of production.

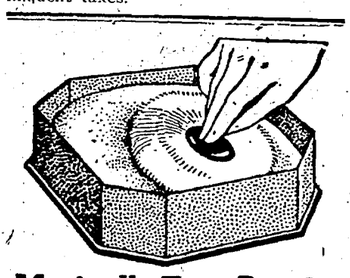

Illustrating the inequality of transportation facilities at a time when new railroad building has almost stopped, Thom showed that while New Jersey has twenty-one miles of railroad per 100 square miles of territory, the average of the United States is only 18.53 miles. In Idaho, where there are only 3.35 miles per 100 square miles, less than 33 per cent of the natural resources have railroad facilities. He concluded:

Will the undeveloped states be satisfied to stop railroad construction under such a condition of inequality?

It is impossible for the railroads to earn enough to supply the necessary new facilities from the current revenue. They must be provided with credit. Investors cannot be coerced, but must be attracted.

County's Liabilities Set Forth in Report

Garrison compiled today. There is $1,710,833.33 apportioned to the general county fund. The department collections total $144,613.01. There is $162,368.13 outstanding in delinquent taxes.

Verses in Jail Bring Freedom

Story of Success and Fall in Rhymes

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 23.—Reclining on the floor of his cell at the city jail, Bill Epp, scion of a wealthy Kentucky family and a civil engineer when not a wanderer, yesterday composed and penned a set of verses which told of the struggles of a person addicted to the use of opium. It won his release from custody.

Inspector Fred C. Roden of the State Board of Pharmacy went to Epp's cell and was presented with a set of verses in which Epp told of his success as an engineer and of his downfall as a result of evil associates. He told Roden that in Africa he was obliged to abandon his profession and seek the high seas, but always his drug habit was the conqueror.

Roden took him from the jail to the railroad yards, where he swung on to a locomotive, tender and waved goodby, shouting: "I'm off for the Nevada mines. I am going to conquer myself. Moy Si Ki."

OBSERVATORY SITE DEEDED TO HEIRS

Was to Have Been Used for a Telescope Site Once; Now Is Sold.

AUBURN, Placer Co., Nov. 23. — The Placer county site for the Lick Observatory has been deeded back to the Carson and Tahoe Lumber and Fluming Company, successors of the original owners.

The deed filed is from the California Society of Pioneers and other beneficiaries under a trust deed given by James Lick 41 years ago, when he was seeking a site for the greatest telescope ever built, and for the construction of which he was preparing to set aside $700,000 of his estate.

The land was deeded to Lick by Henry M. Yerington, Luana L. Bliss and J. A. Rigley for use as an observatory site, and was to revert to the original owners, their heirs or assigns, if not used for that purpose. Lick afterward chose the Mt. Hamilton site, but no deed of reconveyance of the Tahoe property was ever made and the old deed became a cloud upon the title. This has been cleared by the claim deed just recorded.

AMERICA NOW HAS OWN DYESTUFFS

Expert Tells of Supplying the Market by Production in This Country.

PATERSON, N. J., Nov. 23.—Women may now get practically all of the color effects in dress goods that were known before the war upset the dye industry, and will soon have every known color to choose from, all made in America fully as good in quality as those made in Germany or any other country, according to I. F. Stone, president of the National Aniline & Chemical Company, who addressed the National Silk Association convention here today.

Stone told many interesting things about the dye situation. The seriousness of it, as it was viewed two years ago, has largely disappeared, he said. Large increases in production of dyestuffs by the already established factories in this country, and the installment of a large number of new factories, has so cleared the situation "that at the present time the production of the American factories will be enough to take care of the whole consumption of aniline dyes in this country in the future, for all of what I might term staple colors, and before another year has passed every color which is necessary to American consumers will be produced in this country."

SENZOLE PRODUCED.

In explaining the success of the American dye factories, Stone said that benzole, from which practically all aniline colors are derived, was now being produced in this country at the rate of 30,000,000 gallons per annum, as against 3,000,000 prior to the war, so that there is an ample supply of this basic material. From it are now being manufactured largely such intermediates as aniline oil, bentanapthol, paranipranilin, chlor-benzole, dimethylanilin and paraphenylenediamine, so that American manufacturers of colors are able to get sufficient raw materials to manufacture enough colors to supply the whole consumption. He said:

There is a popular impression that American manufactured colors are not as good as those manufactured in Europe, Germany particularly, and this is an impression I wish to definitely correct, in that it is not a fact, for American colors are made from practically the same chemical formulae as the European colors and are practically the same product in every way.

The whole situation is at present very satisfactory, and every American consumer should be able to obtain practically everything he needs for next year.

COLORS FAST.

It has been particularly misunderstood by the public that American colors are not as fast as European colors were, and it seems to be the custom now for saleswomen and others in stores, as well as the garment dyers, to specifically state that they do not guarantee colors, because they are no longer able to get the foreign colors. I wish to say that, as far as I know, no manufacturer or retailer has ever guaranteed colors even before the war, although this fact may not have been mentioned, and the only reason it is mentioned now is through a misunderstanding of the situation. Such fancy colors as ladies usually want in silk, worsteds, etc., such as pinks, light blues, light greens, heliotrope, etc., were never fast, and as far as I know, there have never been any colors which would dye them fast. In any event, the word "fast" is more or less a misnomer, as a color which is absolutely fast to everything, such as washing, pulling, light, exposure, alkalies, acids, etc., is practically unknown, so it is only comparative fastness which is meant in speaking of fast colors, and to this extent the present American colors, such as they are, are just as fast as the same colors made in Europe.

May Create New Job for Inspector

Although the Civil Service Board refused last night to approve the appointment of Acting Captain of Inspectors L. F. Agnew to the position of captain of police, as made last week by Commissioner F. F. Jackson, it is anticipated that a solution of the situation will be found through the creation by the city council of the position of deputy captain of inspectors. The board is not opposed to the promotion of Agnew and the increase of his salary to an amount commensurate with the duties which he has been performing for some three years.

Chief of Police W. J. Petersen and Inspector Agnew agreed with the members of the board that the position of extra captain of police is unnecessary. On the other hand the board agreed that Agnew is entitled to a promotion, an increase in salary and protection in his departmental standing.

It was suggested that a position of deputy captain of inspectors be created by the city council at the same salary as captain of police and that this position be given to Agnew. This will protect Agnew's civil service rights and preserve his position of inspector of police for him in the event that Chief Petersen should ever return to the position of captain of inspectors from which he has a formal leave of absence during his incumbency as chief.

Bean Crop Is Nearly Shipped From Delta

STOCKTON, San Joaquin Co., Nov. 23.—The bean crop of the delta regions is moving fast, and it is stated by shippers and growers that the bulk of the crop will be shipped by the end of this week, and that the entire crop will be under cover before two weeks have passed.

Ovr 30,000 sacks of beans arrived in Stockton Sunday for storage and cleaning in the local warehouses.

For the pink variety, $5.50 to $6 is being paid.

A Chinaman of the delta section sold 10,000 sacks of potatoes for seed purposes on the bank, for $2.75 per cental. Al Westgate also contracted a sale for 4000 sacks at $2.75 on the river bank.

Hobbs-Parsons Company received the first carload of naval oranges of the season from Tulare county. Another shipment was the receipt of two carloads of Tuolumne apples by the Foppiano-Solari firm. This shipment of mountain apples approves the statement that the Watsonville crop is cleaning up rapidly, and that the market will soon be dependent on the Oregon and mountain apples.

Turkeys Won't Gobble in Auburn Saloons

AUBURN, Placer Co., Nov. 23.—There will be no turkey raffles in Auburn this Thanksgiving season, although birds for the purpose have been contracted for by some of the saloons.

City Marshal Waldo has delivered to each resort a copy of an ordinance passed last December, which prohibits raffles on the ground that they are games of chance in which the loser gets nothing. This ordinance was passed primarily for the purpose of putting the punch boards out of business.

EDITORIAL

Now that we are approaching the holidays (Christmas is only 32 days away) let us again forewarn all of our patrons to make their purchases early.

Practically all stores have right now, in stock and ready for sale, their complete holiday lines—you'll see nothing more by waiting.

If you'll buy early you'll be able to get everything wrapped and labeled or tagged at your leisure, without rushing and making yourself a nervous wreck during Christmas week.

If you'll select now you'll have a larger variety to choose from and be able to pick up many novelties which cannot be found later.

Of course, everyone says the same thing. All firms advise early shopping and in doing so ourselves we realize that we are following a most prosaic custom. But the end justifies the means because it IS IMPORTANT.

Among the holiday goods which we expect to feature this year are the following:

French Ivory
Novelty Hand Bags
Smokers' Sets
Toilet Articles
Fine Perfumes
Music Rolls
Hand Grips
Traveling Cases
Pocket Books
Wallets
Umbrellas
Cutlery
Fountain Pens
Kodaks
Stationery
Fine Brushes

An interesting "Two-Day" Special

Among tomorrow's "Specials" you'll find "25c Oriel Compact Powder."

This is an interesting item. As its name implies, it is a compact packet of powder compressed into tablet form with puff and mirror, made in miniature size to fit a purse of handbag. It is an article appreciated by every woman and at 17c should attract considerable trade to our perfume counter, where the sale will continue for two days.

FUNNY, BUT TRUE

It is hard to believe, but nevertheless a fact, that we are selling at retail grips and traveling bags, in many cases, for less money than the same grips can be bought for at wholesale.

The advancing market in leather goods found us with a big stock so that, so far, we have not been compelled to pay "war prices." However, when our assortment on hand is exhausted, it will be impossible to duplicate our present retail prices unless leather drops in price very materially, which is not likely.

DIFFERENT REASONS

Why people are buying handbags

"I am going to buy a new hand bag," said one of our customers recently. "I can't afford a new tailored suit this winter, so I'm going to try to brighten up the old suit with a new hand bag."

Another customer said that her new suit made her old hand bag look so shabby that she "just had to get another bag."

The point we are trying to make is the fact that your hand bag is an important feature of your outfit. It should be in accord with the rest of your costume.

There are many ladies who do not realize that their hand bags are worn and conspicuously out of date.

Two or three dollars is not a great deal to spend for an article so useful and so noticeable as a bright new stylish hand bag.

The latest models are of velvet.

Other new styles are shown in the flat pocketbook shapes.

We have one of the largest assortments of moderately priced bags on the coast.

FRENCH IVORY

Something new all of the time

More than likely you already have a French Ivory brush, comb and mirror. Possibly you have also a limited collection of other articles such as manicure sets, button hooks, pin trays, etc., but we venture to say that there are many, many useful boudoir pieces which you do not possess.

Never before have we shown such a variety.

The new and useful things that the several manufacturers of French Ivory can think of, are seemingly endless. We purchase them all as fast as they come upon the market, with the result that we have quite a reputation among collectors of both French and Parisian Ivory.

Our Christmas stocks are bigger and finer than ever. Even better than last year, at which time we thought our assortment had reached the limit of its possibilities.

If you want your articles engraved, order the work started now.

PULL VICTIM FROM AUTO; ABANDON HIM

Galt Farmer Is Killed in Accident; Machines in Collision.

SACRAMENTO, Cal., Nov. 23.—Charles Works, a farmer living west of Galt, was almost instantly killed last night when an automobile which he was driving collided with a standing machine ten miles south of this city. In turning turtle the car landed squarely on his body, crushing him. J. E. Hicks, a resident of Galt, whom Works picked up on the road, was thrown clear of the car and escaped uninjured.

Hicks told Coroner A. D. Fenton that after the automobile turned over on Works several men of a passing automobile party stopped and pulled Works from under the machine, but left him there lying in the roadway. W. E. Foster of Oakland rushed both Hicks and the dying man to the county hospital.

'Lost' American Legion Found

Men With Canadians Ready

By J. W. PEGLER.

ON THE ENGLISH COAST, Nov. 10. (By mail.)—The "lost" American legion of Canada's army was found today by the United Press.

Two drafts of real Americans already are at death grips with the Germans on the Somme and the rest wait in an English training camp for the signal to cross the channel.

The men enlisted to fight Germans—but if any survivors ever get back to America they will settle a grudge with a deserter who gave his pals a black eye in the American newspapers. The correspondent found in the camp a determination to find that ex-legionaire and beat him within an inch of his life.

Frank Jones summed up the legion's attitude as he paused in his sentry beat on a rain-swept hill overlooking the sea.

WAS TEMPORARY OFFICER.

"There isn't a man in the force from the colonel down to me who wouldn't give a month's pay for just one smash at that guy," he said.

"He got in as a temporary officer and didn't make good. In a few weeks he'd been down in the ranks as a private. But he went over the hill toward Michigan when he heard we were going to sail. Yellow, clear through, that's his trouble. A yellow parlor soldier."

"If you know how the world's series came out, I'll present you to Major Hart," he offered. "He's originally from Brooklyn and put in twenty-two years in the American army. Part of his services was in the Seventy-first New York of New York city in Cuba. In later years he was chief military instructor and disciplinary officer at Elmira, N. Y., reformatory."

WEEKS UNDER CANVAS.

Major G. L. Hart, a big muscular soldier with a scowl engraved on his leathery face, explained that things are still upset because they had marched into camp only a few hours ago. The legion had spent weeks under canvas in muddy, rainy weather. Their new quarters were army huts—long, narrow buildings painted a battleship color and set around in squares on a plateau.

"It wasn't that I thought they'd win," said Hart, when told the worst about the Brooklyn Robins, "but I had enough patriotism for old Flatbush to back them for a little."

The American officer picked his way across the muddy quadrangle stepping over a miscellany of kit-bags and haversacks not yet stowed away in the barracks.

"We don't call ourselves the American legion anymore," he continued. "We understood the president didn't approve, so we gave up our badge with the semi-American shield and the words 'American Legion.' Now we are known by just our battalion number.

IOWAN COMMANDS.

"An old friend gave our outfit a bad reputation back in the states; called us the 'lost' legion and said the whole force was composed of 'tramps who deserted wholesale when it came time to sail.

"That is an account individuals will settle later, but I wish you would look around and observe this 'lost' legion. And just remember, please, that we were congratulated on the splendid appearance and discipline of two drafts now fighting in France. I claim that isn't bad—especially for hoboes."

An Iowan commands the American fighters. He is Colonel W. L. Jolly, veteran officer of the United States marines, who went through the Boxer uprising in China and was in the landing at Vera Cruz.

A neighboring state, Missouri, furnished the second in command, Major B. L. Pittman of Kansas City, former militia officer.

No Joy in Roses, As Result of Fertilizer

REDWOOD CITY, Nov. 23.—Rich, red roses are things of beauty and a joy forever, but when raised by means of noxious fertilizer they are a nuisance. So has declared the city of Burlingame, which through City Attorney John F. Davis, filed suit against E. W. McLellan, proprietor of a nursery covering two square blocks. The suit seeks to force McLellan to abandon his nursery because the fertilizer he uses is offensive to his neighbors. The suit is brought under section 731 of the code of civil procedure, providing that businesses shall be conducted in a lawful and legal manner without interference with the rights and privileges of neighbors.

Pastor Is Accused in Land Fraud Case

MARYSVILLE, Nov. 23.—Rev. A. Hallner, a Swedish minister of the gospel, is accused of land fraud, according to the fourth suit filed in the Yuba county courts against the Farm Land Investment Company.

Mrs. Anna Wicklund, executrix of the estate of August Wickland, has filed suit against the land company, declaring that land was sold her late husband in Arboga, Yuba county, under false representation. She avers Rev. Mr. Hallner was a secret representative of the company and because of his position as a minister was able to sell the land to Wicklund.

Mrs. Wicklund seeks to recover $16,664.86 alleged damages. This is the fourth suit that has been filed against the company during the last few days.

Goodbye Wrinkles! Bad Complexions you must go!

NOUVELLE BEAUTE POUR TOUTES LES DAMES

Remarkable discovery of skin osmosis promises to make wrinkled, hollow-cheeked, aged-looking women astonishingly beautiful, youthful and charming.

Mlle. Simone Marelx of Paris, winner of two great international beauty prizes—one in Paris, the other in England. Specially engaged to write these articles.

FRANCE'S GREAT PRIZE BEAUTY TELLS—How you can almost immediately suppress the appearance of smaller wrinkles and marks of age and make yourself look from 5 to 15 years younger in 30 days' time. How to banish every complexion blemish in three nights in many instances.

A thousand times I have heard rich women say: "Oh! youth is so wonderful and lovely. I would give anything I possess for youth and beauty again!" No woman with the slightest spark of pride or ambition in her wants to be laid on the shelf, aged, careworn, wrinkled and forgotten so that men wish to avoid her at every dance and dinner party, and women themselves would like to invite someone who looks younger to brighten up the occasion. Yet there is no longer any reason why the average woman need look so old and plain even if she is old.

Since the remarkable discovery of skin osmosis almost any woman can obtain most astonishing new beauty and a most surprisingly youthful appearance even though she is 40 or 50 or more years of age. The Countess de Chevanne who at 70 years of age possesses a marvelously soft, smooth, velvet-like skin and an almost girl-like complexion without a wrinkle in sight, told the writer personally in Paris that she owed it all to the discovery of skin osmosis. With this marvelous discovery every complexion blemish can be banished in three nights in many instances, and you can awaken in the morning with a beautiful, rose-colored complexion fresh as a daisy.

I have known dozens of hollow-cheeked, wrinkled, aged-looking women, who had given up all hope of ever looking beautiful and youthful again, to "come back" and again become most beautiful, youthful and fascinating in from two to three weeks' time by this wonderful, simple method.

No matter what your age or what you have tried unsuccessfully, skin osmosis will positively bring you new beauty and youth. Merely wash your face in warm water at night and rub in a teaspoonful or two of any good roseated cream which you can obtain from your druggist. In the morning wash the face with cold water and rub in more cream.

In three weeks or less watch the magic transformation. See how the old, hardened, coarse, rough skin turns into new, fresh, soft, youthful-looking skin almost before your very eyes, all due to simple skin osmosis produced solely by warm water and roseated cream. But be sure to use only pure roseated cream, as it is an entirely different thing from ordinary face creams and must not be confounded with them. I personally prefer Creme Tokalon (Roseated) but any good brand will do. If you have wrinkles get a box of Japanese Ice Pencils and use them in connection with the cream and you can get quick action on the deepest wrinkles, no matter of how long standing, in one night's time and awaken on the morrow to witness most astonishing results. Also the use of a little Santonex (sold by druggists) on the face each morning will almost immediately suppress the appearance of all smaller wrinkles and marks of age and make you look almost years younger. It gives an indescribably beautiful effect to the neck and arms for evening dress.

I personally guarantee success in every case in any of my newspaper articles relating to beauty, or I will refund the amount paid for any products I recommend provided you take your dealer's receipt at the time you make your purchase. My American address is Simone Marelx, 20 West 22nd Street, New York.

NOTE—The manufacturers of Creme Tokalon, Roseated, have such unbounded confidence in their particular brand that they offer to forfeit $200.00 to any charitable institution if it can be shown that it will not banish every complexion blemish and give most astonishing new beauty to wrinkled, careworn, aged women in three days' time in many instances. It can be obtained absolutely fresh and guaranteed pure from Drug Dept. at Kahn's, or most any good druggist or department store in this city—Advertisement.

Local Men Will Attend Big Session

Oakland Slavic organizations will be represented by James A. Dragicevich, Nicholas Viskovich and Stephen Nietrich at the Second Yugoslav National Conference, scheduled for Pittsburg beginning Wednesday, November 29. This conference will include delegates from every stat and city in th United States, besides representatives from South American lands and Canada.

The meeting of Serbian, Croatian and Slovene delegates will forgather under the direction of the London Southern Slav Committee. The London committee is the only governmental body recognized by thousands of Southern Slavs, who hold that the Austro-Hngarian rule is tyranny and therefore not the rightful directors of the districts from which these foreign-born delegates came originally.

San Francisco Slavic organizations will have as delegates M. Mattanovich, grand president of the Croatian Unity of the Pacific and F. F. Akalich, editor of the "Yadran," Slav organ of San Francisco. Dragicevich is to represent Oakland affiliated lodges of Slavic nationality; Viskovich will be delegate for the Oakland athletic organization of the southern people, the "Sokol," while Nietrich will serve as secretary of the east bay delegation.

Police Make Record Recovering Autos

Automobile owners of Oakland who lose their cars through theft may rest assured that they stand a most excellent chance of recovering their property, according to a report presented this morning to Acting Captain of Inspectors L. F. Agnew by the "automobile detail" of the inspectors' bureau. This work of tracing and recovering stolen machines is in charge of Inspectors W. J. Emigh and J. H. Robinson, who have made an enviable record. Since January 1, 1916, there have been 344 automobiles reported stolen in Oakland, and of this number all but 44 have been recovered and returned to the owners. One hundred and fifty machines stolen at other places in the state have been recovered here. Five organized gangs of automobile thieves have been broken up, and six men are now in the process of trial for larceny of cars.

Robbers Get $40,900 From Express Co.

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn., Nov. 23.—Forty thousand nine hundred dollars was estimated to have been stolen from a Southern Express Company transfer wagon in the Western and Atlantic Railroad yards here last night by two men, who held up the lone driver, Fred Cornelison. Cornelison said the bandits forced him to unlock a box containing approximately $100,000 in currency. The robbery took place in the heart of the business district, less than a block from the local express office. The money was in packages made up for shipment from various Chattanooga banks to several Southern cities.

Nearly Burns Self; Arson Is Charge

RED BLUFF, Tehama Co., Nov. 23.—Will Sims, a one legged itinerant, found drunk in Tehama, was confined in the city calaboose there. While sobering up he set fire to the structure and was quite badly burned before being removed.

He was brought to the county jail here last night and a charge of arson placed against him.

It has been the ball for which Mr. and Mrs. Stuart Hawley have planned for tomorrow night at the Claremont Country Club which the smart set have anticipated since the late October days. Miss Anne Elizabeth Crowder, the charming debutante who is inspiring a round of affairs by way of welcome to society, is the particular guest whom the 200 beaux and belles and younger married folk are asked to meet. Originally the dance was planned for November 9, but there arose circumstances which made its postponement a seeming necessity and instead of creating a feeling of disappointment, it has but added an eagerness for the brilliant function.

The Country Club, with its pretty ballroom opening on the terrace and its roof garden, has been made over into a bower of bloom, suggestive of the late fall. Preceding the ball there will be a round of dinners, large and small, which will set the ball of fun rolling. Many hostesses have chosen to entertain at the club while still others have elected to open their homes to congenial groups of friends.

Mrs. Robert Van Sant has arranged one of the larger dinner parties which will bring together ten friends at the club. Those for whom covers will be laid are: Mr. and Mrs. Van Sant, Mr. and Mrs. Roger Chickering, Mr. and Mrs. Henry R. Sanders, Miss Helen Reed, Miss Amy Long, John Goodman and Charles Goodman.

Miss Crowder, herself, will be a dinner hostess, including a coterie of friends, and of course her host and hostess among her guests.

Mrs. Leslie Green has arranged a charming affair with a dozen or so guests. Mrs. Thomas Knowles also will be a dinner hostess.

A company of the younger married set in the Linda Vista district will accept the hospitality of Mrs. Benjamin Reed at her home in Oakland avenue.

Irving Lundborg, Mrs. Harry Mosher and Mrs. Bruce Cornwall are also giving dinners early in the evening, adjourning to the elaborate ball, which is among the largest functions of the week on this side of the bay.

But while 200 of the smart set are enjoying the evening at the Country Club at the invitation of Mr and Mrs. Hawley, those of the society not numbered among the guests will find pleasure dancing elsewhere, for tomorrow night is strictly a dancing evening.

With Miss Elizabeth Koser as the guest of honor, Mrs. Vernon Waldron is opening her Piedmont home to a large number of the sub-debutante set, planning with Miss Koser's mother, Mrs. Newton Koser, a house dance.

✿ ✿ ✿

Another house dance which will attract over half a hundred of the younger set will have as its hosts Rudolph Isenberg and Alexander Isenberg, who will entertain at their Berkeley home. Recently the Isenbergs came from Honolulu, where they were prominent, to reside in the bay cities, purchasing the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Goodman. They are taking an active part in the festivities of the season in the college town.

✿ ✿ ✿

And again is the Charity Ball across the bay tomorrow evening when the Palace will lend the setting to several hundred merry dancers who, eager to assist in carrying on their good deeds at the same time will find an unbounded pleasure. There will be a number go over for the smart affair. Mr. and Mrs. Encarnacion Mejia will open their handsome home for one of the larger dinners preceding the ball, sharing their hospitality with a company of friends who later will adjourn to the Palace. The Mejia family with their charming daughters formerly made their residence in Piedmont, where they still retain a wide circle of friends.

✿ ✿ ✿

Eighty young folks have been asked to accept the hospitality of the Fred S. Osgood residence in Monte Vista avenue, also Friday evening, when the friends of Miss Consuelo Osgood assemble at a dance. The entire lower floor with its spacious drawing room and music room will be set aside to the use of the young guests.

✿ ✿ ✿

The second in the series of five dances which is being enjoyed by 100 of the younger set in Berkeley under the patronage of a coterie of the smart matrons of the college town takes place tomorrow night. The ballroom of the Twentieth Century Club will be the setting for the November dance, the appointments of which will be in keeping with the youth of the guests who are still in school.

✿ ✿ ✿

A large number of guests will spend the evening at the Phi Gamma Delta fraternity house in Berkeley when the men of the Greek letter society entertain at one of their series of winter dances.

✿ ✿ ✿

A merry little throng will wend their way to the ballroom of the Ransom School, where a dance will be in progress tomorrow night. Both Miss Ransom and Miss Bridges, who preside over these occasional festivities in Piedmont, are careful to include the friends of their young students and many of their alumnae in the invitation, in this way assembling an interesting group of the younger smart set. This week's affair is quite eagerly anticipated, as the cards have been out for some days, assuring a more elaborate function than a simple school dance.

✿ ✿ ✿

A wedding of unusual interest took place today in St. Joseph's church, Auburn, when Miss Frances Morgan, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Morgan, became the bride of Mr. John P. Brady, one of Auburn's most prominent business men. The Rev. Father Vereker, pastor of the church, celebrated the nuptial high mass. The church was filled with the friends of the bride and groom. The bride wore a beautiful white satin and silk chiffon gown and carried a lovely shower of white roses. She was attended by Miss Dollie Morgan, sister of the bride, who acted as maid of honor and the Misses Agnes Walsh and Marie Morgan, who were the charming bridesmaids. The attendants were exquisite gowns of yellow satin and carried novelty staffs. The Misses Eileen and Isobel Morgan were the flower girls, while Walter and Alton Bernhard acted as ushers. J. Brady assisted the bridegroom as best man. The bride comes from one of Auburn's pioneer families, her father having been mayor for sixteen years. The groom is equally popular, being a prominent business man of Auburn. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Brady of Oakland. They will leave immediately for the south and upon their return will make Auburn their home.

✿ ✿ ✿

With a history of twenty-nine seasons of pleasure behind them, the members of one of the interesting clubs met together this evening for a game of cards and supper at the invitation of Dr. Frazer and Mrs. Frazer in Piedmont. In the coterie of old friends are Mr. and Mrs. Frank A. Leach Jr., Mr. and Mrs. Walter G. Manuel, Judge Frank B. Ogden and Mrs. Ogden, Mr. and Mrs. Fred S. Osgood, Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Perine, Mr. and Mrs. George Roeth, Mr. and Mrs. F. G. Wright, Mrs. W. E. Montgomery, Dr. P. I. Abbott and R. J. Tyson.

✿ ✿ ✿

The informal dances at the Mount Diablo Park Club on Saturday evenings attract a large number of those who find in the out-of-town retreat a fascination which the town festivities do not offer. The Thanksgiving celebration extending over the entire week-end, punctuated with a more elaborate dance, is being eagerly looked forward to. There will be a special Thanksgiving dinner, according to the fine old New England custom, on Thursday of next week with the succeeding hours devoted to such outdoor and indoor pleasures as the California smart set are devoted to.

✿ ✿ ✿

Oakland center, California Civic League, has announced an interesting program for its Friday afternoon meeting at Hotel Oakland. "Chinese Life and Its Modern Tendencies" will be the theme spoken to by Prof. G. D. Louderback of the University of California. The second subject to be discussed will be presented by Mrs. F. G. Harrison and will be in the nature of a general survey of work of the Alameda County Welfare Board, of which she is a member.

The program will be preceded by an executive board meeting at 1 o'clock and business session at 2 o'clock. Mrs. A. E. Carter is president.

✿ ✿ ✿

The Parents and Teachers' Association of the Haight school in Alameda is arranging an entertainment for tomorrow evening in the auditorium of the school. The entire program will be contributed by the young students who are exerting every talent to make the evening a success.

✿ ✿ ✿

With Miss Elinor Earl, the fiancee of her son, Ransom Henshaw, as the guest of honor, Mrs. Tyler Henshaw is claiming a half hundred guests at a bridge tea on the afternoon of Tuesday, December 5. Sharing in the compliment of the occasion will be two other brides-elect of the coming spring, Miss Susette Greenwood and Miss Helen Goodall.

✿ ✿ ✿

Announcement of the betrothal and wedding date of their daughter, Miss Harriet Gilman Caswell, was made yesterday by Mr. and Mrs. George W. Caswell of San Francisco. The attractive bride-elect claims many friends on this side of the bay who are interested in the happy news of her approaching marriage. The wedding will be a brilliant one of the coming month, having Grace Cathedral as its setting on the evening of Wednesday, December 6.

Both are in a hospital, but are expected to recover. They were clinging to the craft when rescued half a mile from shore.

Good Bedtime Story

By HOWARD R. GARIS.

"Oh, Wiggie! Oh, Uncle Wiggily! Wait a moment!" called Nurse Jane Fuzzy Wuzzy, the muskrat lady housekeeper, to the bunny gentleman as she saw him walking down the front steps of the hollow stump bungalow one morning. "I want you to do something for me."

"What is it?" asked the rabbit man as he looked up at the blue sky and twinkled his pink nose at the shiny sun.

"Bring some macaroni when you come back," went on the muskrat lady.

"Macaroni? Macaroni?" repeated Uncle Wiggily, sort of puzzled like. "Is that a new kind of dance where you take a hop, skip and a jump and then step over the broomstick?"

"Oh, no, indeed!" laughed Nurse Jane. "Macaroni is those funny little round sticks, hollow, like a bean blower. They are made of flour and water, and after I break them up, and boil them, they are very good baked in the oven with cheese."

Uncle Wiggily said, and he, too, laughed. "All right, I'll bring the macaroni—the funny little round sticks with holes in them," he promised, and away he started, as he did almost every day, to take a walk and look for an adventure.

He had not gone very far before he met Grandfather Goosey Gander, with whom the rabbit gentleman often played checkers.

"Where are you going?" asked the goose gentleman of the rabbit.

"To walk, look for an adventure and bring Nurse Jane some macaroni," answered Uncle Wiggily. "Where are you going, Grandpa Goosey?"

"Oh, just for a walk, and I'll come with you if you will let me."

"Delighted!" exclaimed Uncle Wiggily, and then the two friends went on together, talking about all sorts of funny things.

Uncle Wiggily wanted to know why eggs couldn't be made with the shell inside like the stones of a peach.

"I'm sure I don't know," answered Grandpa Goosey, "any more than why the candy man puts a lollypop on a stick instead of the stick on the lollypop."

"That is a funny thing," agreed Uncle Wiggily. "I have often wondered about that myself."

They walked on a little farther and pretty soon they met the queer monkey doodle man who painted houses and hollow stump bungalows when he was not painting red cheeks on dollies, or red caps on the wooden soldiers.

"How is your bungalow, Uncle Wiggily, since I painted it red for you the other day and splashed red paint on you?" the monkey doodle wanted to know.

"It's fine!" cried the bunny uncle. "Everybody likes it."

The monkey doodle man was glad to hear that and he walked on with Uncle Wiggily and Grandpa Goosey until they all came to the macaroni store, where the rabbit gentleman bought the funny round sticks with holes in them for Nurse Jane. I don't mean just the holes were for Nurse Jane, but, of course, she could have as many of them as she liked, just as you may have the hole in your doughnut if you want it.

With the macaroni under his paw Uncle Wiggily started back for the hollow stump bungalow, Grandpa Goosey keeping on with him. And the monkey doodle also walked with the two friends, for he said he had not yet, that day, found any place that needed painting.

"Come and look at the goose pen where I live," invited Grandpa Goosey. "I think a touch of paint on that would make it better. And I want it red, like Uncle Wiggily's bungalow."

"Red it shall be," said the monkey doodle, and then he and Grandpa Goosey noticed that Uncle Wiggily was not saying very much, and he did not seem to be nearly as jolly as he usually was.

"What is the trouble?" asked Grandpa Goosey.

"Well, to tell the truth," said the bunny man, "I haven't had an adventure yet today, and I fear I am not going to have one. That makes me sad."

"Oh, cheer up!" quacked Grandpa Goosey, "I'm sure something will happen pretty soon. Now perhaps if we go over this way we shall——"

But that is as far as Grandpa Goosey got, for all of a sudden through the woods came the cry:

"Fire! Fire! Fire!"

"My goodness!" exclaimed Uncle Wiggily, "I guess I am going to have an adventure after all. I wonder where the fire is?"

"Over there!" cried the monkey doodle pointing with his paw.

"Oh, it's my duck pen!" quacked Grandpa Goosey. "Oh, dear! See it burn!"

"Too bad! Too bad!" cried Uncle Wiggily. "But we will all help you put it out!" Then he ran toward the burning duck pen, and so did Grandpa Goosey and the monkey doodle, all of them crying as loudly as they could:

"Fire! Fire! Fire!"

Then the fire bell began to ring, and the water bugs, who have charge of putting out all the fires in animal land, came running with their engine, made out of an old tomato can, with a rubber ball for a pump.

"We'll save your pen for you, Grandpa Goosey!" cried the good water bugs.

Soon their engine began to pump water, squirting it out through the rubber ball and the little rubber hose. But alas! The hose was not long enough and not a drop of water splashed on the burning pen.

"Ha! This will never do!" cried the head chief water bug. "We must get longer hose."

They hunted all over for more hose, but could not find any. And poor Grandpa Goosey's pen was burning faster and faster.

"Ha! I know how to make more hose!" cried Uncle Wiggily. "I have a whole lot of macaroni sticks that have holes in just like a rubber hose. I will fasten some of the hollow sticks on your hose, my good water bugs, and make it long enough so you can squirt water on the fire!"

And that's just what Uncle Wiggily did. With the hollow macaroni sticks the hose was soon made long enough, and then the water splashed on the fire, which quickly went out. Grandpa Goosey's house was not much burned after all, and the monkey doodle said when it was painted over you would never notice it.

Then Uncle Wiggily took the rest of the macaroni to Nurse Jane, and he was glad he had had an adventure. And if the church steeple doesn't reach up so high that it tickles the clouds and makes them cry, I'll tell you next about Uncle Wiggily and the field mice.

The Journal of a Neglected Wife

July 15th.

Yesterday I asked Horace what yearly interest came from the fifteen hundred dollars I received from Cousin Allen's estate. He looked up in surprise. "Why, Mary, you don't mean that you need——" And I answered hurriedly: "Oh, no, I don't need the money; the amount you give me for my own and the household expenses is more than enough. I merely wondered how much a small sum like that would bring in yearly."

"Let me see: I bought some war stock with that—did I not? Well, that is paying —— now. I should say that would be about —— a year."

"And if it were sold outright, how much would it bring now?" I asked.

"Why, somewhere around eighteen hundred. But what do you mean? You never asked such questions before."

"Oh, nothing. I just had a fancy to know how much I had of my very own."

"Why, you know you have all that Western Union stock, don't you? And those lots in Brooklyn and that land in Ulster county?"

"Oh, yes, I know that is all what you gave me. But I just wondered how much Cousin Allen's money would bring."

All through dinner he looked disturbed and worried. I suppose he has always felt that I was well provided for. Evidently the thought that if we were ever separated I would not touch a cent of his money, or of anything he had ever given me, had not occurred to him. And yet living with me all these years, he ought to know. He ought to know that I could never share his money with another.

July 17th.

I have written her a letter. Of course, I shall never send it. And yet I could not help writing it. It was not a bitter letter. I only asked if she knew the wretchedness she was bringing into another woman's life. That for me life held nothing but my husband. That for her there was so much more. I felt that she was young and beautiful—that she had the whole world to choose from. Why had she taken from me all that I had?

Already I have destroyed the letter, and yet the very writing of it was humiliating—corrosively humiliating. That I should plead for my husband's love from another woman? Beg from a stranger for what is mine—mine by law, by seventeen years of love and devotion! Oh, does he never think of that—that I have given him the best of my life—my youth, my freshness? And now that I am faded and old he turns from me to a younger, fresher face. Is that the nature of man? Are all men so? Then why does God let women be borne to such anguish?

July 18th.

I have still made no effort to find out her name. I have the feeling now that I would rather not know. In a few weeks it may be different; I may be again filled with that fierce desire to know—to know. But now I shrink from knowing any more.

July 20th.

What weak, inadequate things are letters of condolence! It seems almost an impertinence to hope that by a few cheap, trite, commonplace words you can soothe or alleviate a great sorrow. And yet it is a custom that must be followed, lest one's silence be mistaken for indifference.

I have just written to Helen Chandler, whose husband, George L. Chandler, died last week. She has been prostrated since his death. She loved him desperately. He was kind to her in a way, but he was always wild and dissipated.

PIONEER MINER DEAD.

MARYSVILLE, Nov. 23.—James McMenamin, pioneer miner of Yuba county, is dead at his home near Dobbins. McMenamin was the oldest miner in Yuba county and knew James Marshall and General John Sutter in the argonaut days of California.

Confessions of Roxane

By FRANCES E. WALTER

"You are too hard on us," laughed Arthur. "I admit that some of my associates are not as lively as they should be, but that is natural. Most of them are old men and no longer feel the exuberance which such occasions inspire in younger heads. But I am sure they believe they enjoy themselves or they would not come so regularly."

"I do not know why they come. I have never been able to guess."

"At any rate, you will find Pendleton different," said Arthur, briskly. "Perhaps he will liven us all up."

"Is he that sort?" I inquired eagerly.

"Wait and see."

I turned away with dull eyes and a sinking heart. Well, perhaps I could pair him off with Mr. Phillips and let them talk about the late Mrs. Phillips. It would at least be a relief to the others to have that information cornered for one evening.

"Roxane, this is Mr. Pendleton."

I turned and glanced into the face of the man whom Arthur had introduced. He was entirely different from the Mr. Pendleton whom I had pictured to myself. He wasn't excessively lean, nor extremely tall, nor sallow, nor stoop shouldered, nor dull of eye, nor pale haired. Instead, I looked into a pair of good natured gray orbs in the depths of which lurked a suspicion of kindly humor and mischief. He was slightly above medium height, with strong, broad shoulders, well thrown back, and a frame which might have been the envy of Apollo himself. His hair was straight and brown, without a suggestion of baldness anywhere, and he wore his evening clothes after the manner of those who learned to be at ease when they were in their early teens.

"I am more than fortunate," Mr. Pendleton was saying, a little formally. "I have your husband for a business sponsor and I am reintroduced to the social life of New York by his wife. I am under a double obligation."

"I fear our little circle can hardly be regarded as even a part of the social life of New York," I replied. "We are more like one of those groups one finds in small Western towns. We have dinner, play a game of cards, gossip a little and then grow sleepy and go home. There is none of the excitement which one ordinarily attaches to liffe in this huge city. There isn't even a little scandal now and then for us to discuss. We are all so correct that we do not relish even that."

"What a splendid lot of folk to meet!" cried Mr. Pendleton. "Why, it is like taking a trip with Gulliver into some unknown country and finding there an altogether new race of people."

"Different, but not necessarily superior," I returned.

"I should say necessarily superior," countered Mr. Pendleton. "People who do not talk scandal nowadays belong to one of two classes—either they are too guilty to find pleasure in such talk or they are too innocent to tell which class you belong to."

"Don't be too lavish with your compliments, Pendleton," laughed Arthur. "You would better wait until you know more about us."

"I know all about you now," he replied. "Honest people are easy to know. It is the rascally kind which you puzzle over for years without being able to diagnose their peculiar weaknesses."

ATTEMPT TO OUST REED AT SAN JOSE

Charter Amendment to Make It Impossible for Berkeley Man to Hold City Manager Position Is Drawn Up

Squabble Develops Over Plan to Appoint Walter Frickstad of Oakland, Engineer; Claim Made Local Men Slighted

SAN JOSE, Nov. 23.—A charter amendment which, if accepted, will have the effect of a recall and will remove from office City Manager Thomas H. Reed, his secretary, Paul Elielo, and Health Officer Harold F. Gray, was granted here early this morning by a meeting of citizens.

The amendment provides that no one may be appointed to office or hold office in this city unless he has been a resident of San Jose for three years. Petitions will be circulated at once to be submitted to the city council within fifteen days. Within thirty days after they are submitted if they have enough names and are correct, an election must be called.

The decision to petition for a charter amendment was reached after a meeting which convened last evening and did not adjourn until 3 o'clock this morning. W. E. Foley was chairman. Should the charter change become effective changes planned for the local charity department, which include the naming of a Berkeley man for head, cannot be made.

Reed and Elielo came to San Jose from Berkeley within a year and Gray came from Palo Alto.

FOLEY EXPLAINS.

Foley says the reason the citizens are "on Reed's neck" is because he is employing outside people as officials of the city.

When asked to enumerate such appointments, Foley named: The assistant to the city manager, who is from Los Angeles; the health officer, who is from Palo Alto, and two stenographers, from other places. Foley also said that by the way things looked at present Reed was intending to employ a city engineer and a chief of police from outside cities.

The names of the citizens who composed the committee last night would not be divulged. Foley stated that another and larger meeting would be held tomorrow night.

FRICKSTAD POSSIBILITY.

All that stands in the way of Walter N. Frickstad, former assistant superintendent of the Oakland street department, becomnng city engineer of San Jose, according to City Manager Thomas Reed, is the fact that Michael H. Mageini at present holds down the job and has twice refused a demand for his resignation.

Reed has declared his intention of having Frickstad appointed city engineer and says that the latter has the endorsement of the University of California. Mageini, however, by his persistent refusal to vacate his position, stands in the way of the city manager's plans. As a result the coveted position is the center of a spirited fight between the two officials.

HAIR COMING OUT

Dandruff causes a feverish irritation of the scalp, the hair roots shrink, loosen and then the hair comes out fast. To stop falling hair at once and rid the scalp of every particle of dandruff, get a 25-cent bottle of Danderine at any drug store, pour a little in your hand and rub it into the scalp. After a few applications the hair stops coming out and you can't find any dandruff.—Advertisement.

BOY SCOUTS SELL THEATER TICKETS

Fund to Assist Work

Hundreds of Boy Scouts thronged downtown streets today, gathering unto themselves almost a countless number of ten-cent pieces in return for admission tickets to thirty-three Alameda county theaters. Pasteboards were eagerly purchased by shoppers and business men and before the day was even half through it was apparent that a record number of tickets would be sold.

On every admission coupon sold the local council of Boy Scouts gains a percentage and enough funds are expected to be gathered by the boys during today's activities to net the organization a two-years' income. The money made by the lads through their salesmanship will be used for scout equipment and training trips for the various troops.

It is estimated that the number of tickets put on sale will reach the 150,000 mark. Every coupon represents a ten-cent admission to one of the thirty-three amusement places, and where the price of admission is even higher than that amount the coupons will be taken at face value by theaters to which they are presented. Five tickets are equal to a fifty-cent admission coupon, and they may be exchanged for a regular seat pasteboard at the show houses.

Directing the activities of the lads in today's campaign were members of the Oakland Rotary Club, which organization has assumed the position of "father" to the Scouts. Members of the club aided in the advance work, the publicity and the organization of today's efforts. Besides working steadily for the cause of the entire Oakland council, the Boy Scouts rivaled each other in salesmanship so that individual troops might gain the "troop trophy" hung up by those who are fostering the campaign of today.

British Freighter Carries Guns on Deck

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 23.—The war zone was brought nearer to San Francisco today when the British freighter Potomac arrived with two four-pounder guns in her hold. These had been mounted on deck during the Potomac's trip from Mollendo, for fear of German submarines in the Pacific. The Potomac carried copper ore.

Stanford Debaters Win From U. S. C.

STANFORD UNIVERSITY, Nov. 23.—Stanford University defeated the University of Southern California here last night in a debate on compulsory military training. The basis of the debate was the premise that the United States should adopt a military training system similar to that of Switzerland. Stanford took the negative side and won by a vote of two to one.

Stanford's team was composed of Miss Margaret C. Shedd of Los Angeles, F. S. Field of Los Angeles and W. I. Ames of Portland, Ore.; W. B. Perkins, W. T. Watson and A. W. Wendt constituted the U. S. C. team.

'Present to Uncle,' Says Connaught of Shell

OTTAWA, Ont., Nov. 23. — News has reached here that a few days after the Duke of Connaught, late governor-general of Canada, returned to England, he went to the front in France on a visit to the Canadians. At the front trenches in France he was entertained at luncheon in a dugout by a Canadian general. During the meal the German guns opened a violent bombardment on the spot and shells fell heavily about the dugout. The Duke of Connaught is said to have remarked with a smile:

"This looks like a present to uncle."

Emperor William's mother was a sister of the duke.

BIG DOLL SHOW WILL AID HOME

Local Women Open Lavish Affair; Gay Scene in Hotel Ballroom.

The 1916 Doll Show under the direction of the West Oakland Home is opened.

At 2 o'clock today its doors swung wide, revealing a bewildering scene of Yuletide in the ivory ballroom of Hotel Oakland. The scent of evergreen and the fragrance of pine is in the air and the spirit of Christmas has broken forth from every nook and cranny. It is indeed a brilliant ensemble of the season's best things which greets the onlooker—it is Christmas.

Receiving the homage of the public is the central platform, where the 50 dolls of exceptional beauty, chosen for the prize doll table, stands demure and silent. Nearby are their more humble sisters, perhaps more lovable to the little mothers who gaze at them with desire in their eyes. A golden platform flower canopied accommodates the bridal party of kewpies, dressed in the latest and most correct of wedding finery—bride, bridegroom, flower girls, maid of honor and bridesmaids. Mrs. A. V. Clark, with the assistance of the board of directors of the home, is responsible for this assemblage of dolls, which excel anything yet shown at the annual exhibits. Assisting Mrs. Clark in the work of this concession which gives title to the benefit for the hundred little folk under their care have been: Mrs. John Scotchler, Mrs. Richard B. Ayers, Miss Lou Denison, Mrs. I. A. Beretta, Mrs. Emil Lehnhardt, Mrs. Frank Laughrey, Mrs. J. R. Coryell, Mrs. I. A. Ewing, Mrs. O. D. Hamlin, Mrs. A. L. Harris, Mrs. Louis D. Manning, Miss Grace Trevor, Miss Effie Smilie, Miss Lillian Gard, Miss Elizabeth Smilie and others.

ARTICLES ON SALE.

But besides the dolls there are all sorts of wonderful things planned for purchase, planned for fun or planned for the staying of the inner man. Here may be found every variety of exquisite fancy work, both at the concession devoted exclusively to needlework, which is under the care of Mrs. Walter Morgan, or in that booth where the Little Workers, directed by Miss Helen Hahn, claim attention, or at the Mystery Table, where Mrs. James Dunn and a score of energetic women sell blindly. Or if one leans particularly toward needlework in the form of aprons, there is no conceit which Mrs. Hattie Murphy and her committee of women cannot show.

Mrs. E. J. Boyes and the Little Workers bid for popularity with their gayly colored balloons, and the Grab Bags, with Mrs. Edward Beardsley in charge, are old favorites with young and old alike.

With the Thanksgiving season looming near the concessions where Mrs. R. D. Rowe offers home-made pies and cakes; where Mrs. E. J. Boyes tempts with jams and jellies; and Mrs. F. A. Stearns shows candies of all sorts, will have no difficulty in disposing of their wares.

THREE DANCES.

But aside from the purely commercial aspect of the Doll Show, there has been provided three dances to bring together those interested in the welfare of the Campbell street building each evening. Tonight and tomorrow night there will be informal dances in the rose room, while on the closing night, Saturday, there will be a brilliant dinner dance for which more than 400 reservations hve been made.

Comedian Insured by Circuit Owner

When Neal Abel, comedian, narrowly escaped being run over by an automobile at Twelfth and Franklin streets last night, he disclosed the secret of what is probably the queerest deal in insurance ever made in this city. If he had been hurt, or killed, Alexander Pantages, vaudeville magnate, would have collected the salary paid the comedian as long as he was disabled, from the insurance company, together with interest on an investment of $10,000. Had he been killed, Pantages would have collected the $10,000, interest on it for 45 years, and besides, the insurance company would have paid Abel's family a monthly income.

Abel's life, by contract, belongs to Pantages, as the result of a peculiar contract, the insurance being a part of the agreement. The details are completed in Oakland.

Abel was paid a lump sum for his life. He is to work wherever Pantages says, and at whatever figure. He can go to other circuits, but always under the orders of the man who "owns his life." And, to protect himself, Pantages has insured his investment, and also Abel's family's interests.

Abel, one of the funniest comedians on the stage, is at the Pantages this week, starring in a new laughing act.

Blind Twenty Years, Sight Is Restored

MARYSVILLE, Nov. 23.—George Van Buskirk, 75 years old, a veteran of the Civil War and blind for more than twenty years, saw in San Francisco the other day for the first time a telephone, an automobile, a moving picture show, a wireless telegraph station and an airship.

Van Buskirk now is back in Marysville, where he has lived for more than fifty years, and is putting in his days walking around the town he helped to build and viewing the old landmarks.

Van Buskirk is a lifelong Republican and for more than a quarter of a century he has had The Chronicle read to him. There was a short item in that paper one day of an old man who had had his eyesight restored through an operation.

That gave Van Buskirk hope, and he went to San Francisco and had the operation performed on his eyes.

He now wears thick glasses but he can see.

On his return home, he saw for the first time four grandchildren, the children of sons and daughters, who were babies when last he saw them.

"Kid" Dalton Becomes Convert in South

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 23.—The straight and narrow path has claimed "Kid" Dalton, member of the notorious Dalton gang, that for years terrorized cities and towns in the Middle West, alleged bank robber and outlaw.

Dalton became a Christian and renounced John Barleycorn when he was converted at Happy Mead's Union Rescue Mission at Long Beach.

Montreal Editor Dies at Front, Is Report

BEARS KEEP HOLD OF STOCK TREND

General Pressure in Wall St. Serves to Halt the Leaders.

NEW YORK, Nov. 23.—The New York Evening Sun financial review today said:

The overbought condition of the stock market, resulting from the long swing upward almost without interruption for weeks up to the beginning of this week, made it a matter of comparatice ease for those who wish to freshen their commitments to push today's market to still lower levels. News developments were not carefully digested and hasty conclusions were jumped at to aid the bear side.

It was stated in some quarters that there was heavy selling from Washington on wild rumors in the capital of a severance of diplomatic relations with Germany and that our ambassador, Mr. Gerard, would not return to Berlin.

Most of these rather foolish pretexts for selling were placed in the category where they belong. United States Steel continued to be sold heavily and re-acted to as low as 124¼ with but slight fractional recovery.

Despite the general pressure, certain groups of stocks, like the leather and motor issues and a few isolated stocks like American Smelting and Refining, Chile Copper and Lackawanna Steel, were in good demand.

Despite the fact that commission houses reported exceptionally good investment buying there was little change in price tendencies in the late trading.

Recognizes Fighter As His Lost Brother

MARYSVILLE, Nov. 23.—A fight between two neighbors ended suddenly the other day in a brotherly embrace. Because the shirt was torn from the back of James Bowden during the fight, Harry H. Hill, his neighbor, recognized Bowden as his long-lost brother. The recognition was made by means of a birth mark on Bowden's left shoulder.

Bowden and Hill have been neighbors for more than twenty years near Honcut, Butte county. Some time ago they began quarreling over a division fence, and the other day the question came to the point where war was declared.

Bowden and Hill were placed in a New York orphanage when very young. Each was adopted by a different family and each took the name of his foster father. Both came to California when they reached their majority. Fate led both to Butte county and to adjoining farms.

The fight ended in a decision to be friends and act as brothers should. The two families will eat Thanksgiving dinner together.

Paralysis Started in Norway; Flexner

NEW YORK, Nov. 23.—That the epidemic of infantile paralysis in this city last summer originated in Norway in 1905 and may reappear here is the assertion of Dr. Simon Flexner, director of research in the Rockefeller Institute. In an address to the Brooklyn Institute of Arts and Sciences he said that as to the future of the disease in this country he fearered it had "spread too far" and become "too firmly entrenched" ever to be eradicated. He added, however, he was confident its reappearance would be sporadic.

Mrs. C. Keene, 587 Twelfth St., Oakland, says: "Years ago I had a good deal of trouble with my back. I had to avoid stooping and lifting, owing to my back being so weak and painful. I felt very poorly in every way and my general health seemed to be affected. I was distressed by headaches and dizzy spells and felt tired out all the time. The kidney secretions were unnatural. I took treatment from different doctors, but wasn't helped until I began using Doan's Kidney Pills. Soon all trouble with my back and kidneys had disappeared, and I felt like a different person. (Statement given October 8, 1912.

On December 2, 1915, Mrs. Keene said: "I have used Doan's Kidney Pills occasionally since first recommending them and they have always given quick relief."

JORDAN SAYS ALL BALLOTS MUST BE IN

Secretary of State Declares He Is Not Threatening Election Result in State, But Only Asking Law Be Followed

Yuba and Orange County Figures Are Still Awaited, While S. F. Holds Out Tally Until Friday; Rowell in Comment

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 23.—Steps were taken today by the Democratic State Central Committee to correct the errors in precincts in Orange and Yuba counties announced yesterday by Secretary of State Jordan and which, Jordan said, might make it his duty to withhold certificates of election to presidential electors. Both Democratic State Chairman Cushing and Republican State Chairman Rowell agreed today that Jordan would not be justified by such errors in permanently withholding certificates of election.

In order to correct the errors pointed out by Jordan, it will be necessary for the courts of Yuba and Orange counties to order the reopening of the ballot boxes in these counties and the completion of the count, according to opinion here.

SACRAMENTO, Nov. 23.—"They can roast me all they want to," said Secretary of State Jordan today, "but I am going to stand pat on my declaration that I will withhold certificates of election to California presidential electors until I know the vote, as returned by county officials to my office, is complete. I am not doing this to be stubborn or smart. There is a principle involved. Orange county returns to my office show one precinct blank all the way through. I insist upon having these figures. Otherwise, why have an official count by the Secretary of State at all? Likewise I insist upon having Yuba county precinct No. 3 complete. The returns now in my office show no vote at all in that precinct for one of the Democratic electors.

CAN MAKE CORRECTIONS.

"These omissions can be corrected upon a court order within two hours' time. I have pointed out the way in which the Republican and Democratic committees may proceed and it is now up to them to go ahead.

"Chester Rowell, I notice, says the matter is too ridiculous to talk about. My reply is that Chester Rowell himself is too ridiculous to talk about. And as for the criticism by Registrar Zemansky of San Francisco—well, he'd just better attend to his own business and send in his own returns. We should be checking up the San Francisco returns right now, but for some mysterious reason Zemansky won't send them in until Friday. If there's any delay in issuing certificates of election, Zemansky himself may be responsible."

ROWELL SPEAKS.

FRESNO, Nov. 23.—Chester H. Rowell, chairman of the Republican State Central Committee said this afternoon:

There is no question of a recount in the case of Orange county, only one of canvassing the returns. The Yuba county situation is none of Mr. Jordan's business. Jordan should accept the Yuba county returns, as they are official and there is no remedy except by a contest.

Mr. Cushing is right. The Democratic State Central Committee probably will apply to the Superior Court in Orange county for a local order to have the supervisors break the seal and count the tally sheet from the missing precinct.

I did not accuse Mr. Jordan of doing politics and I still maintain his refusal to issue the certificates to the electors is too ridiculous to consider.

HEAVY COUNTY VOTE.

Alameda county's vote at the presidential election surpassed the most sanguine predictions of those who forecasted the total immediately prior to November 7. The total vote as compiled by County Clerk George E. Gross today shows that 106,868 persons voted out of a registration of 133,000. The vote was the largest in the history of the county.

It is estimated that the net number of those entitled to vote was not more than 130,000, allowing for returns of sample ballots sent out to persons out of the 133,000 who had either moved or for some other reason were not eligible.

The vote for presidential electors taking the head of the lists in the different parties showed: Republican 51,417, Democrat 43,654, Socialist 6422, Prohibition 1544; the plurality of the Hughes electors 7767.

The Socialist ticket ranged from 6422, the vote for Scott Anderson, to 5386, the vote of A. E. Briggs at the bottom of the list.

The Prohibition vote ranged from that of Annie E. K. Bidwell of 1544 to that Wiley J. Phillips 1507.

Women Are Lost in Hills Wander Hours; Find Road

ALAMEDA, Nov. 23. — Lost, in the ravines, hills and bluffs between Manzanita station and the Marin ocean shore, two young women, Miss Louise Johanson of 1243 Broadway, this city, and Miss Dagny Riso, a nurse at St. Francis hospital in San Francisco, wandered most of Sunday night in dense darkness through thickets and up and down cliffs and ravines in an aimless but finally successful effort to reach a trail or road. At 3 o'clock in the morning, after trying in vain to sleep without shelter, the two young women reached the railroad at Mill Valley and from there got to San Francisco on the 3 o'clock paper boat. They were exhausted from their night of wandering and lack of food, their clothing was torn and damp with the night dew, and they bore abundant bruises and scratches from sudden falls in the darkness and from forcing their way through dense patches of shrub and brush.

The startling adventure befell the two young women as the result of trying to join a week-end party at Pirate Cove on the ocean. The party was to consist of Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Wilson of this city, Dr. F. S. May, Dr. E. R. Gilihan of Oakland and Miss Johanson and Miss Riso. All but the two young women were at Pirate Cove awaiting the arrival of the belated two, who left San Francisco about noon for the agreed rendezvous. The two left the train at Manzanita station. Confused by vague directions, they went first to Tennessee Cove and then undertook to strike a bee line to a distant cove which they believed to be the Pirates' Cove they were in search of. Following the coast line they wandered towards the cove till near night fall. They descended from the bluffs to the water's edge only, a little later, to find themselves surrounded by an incoming tide which drove them up a trailless bluff. The gathering darkness made the ascent of the bluff a hazardous undertaking and several falls enroute left with the young women various painful and bruiseful reminders of the trip.

Bewildered as to which direction in which to proceed, they wandered at random until they finally reached a trail, then a road.

ALAMEDA OFFICIAL GOES INTO COURT

Deputy Auditor, Accused of Raising Warrant; Under Arrest.

ALAMEDA, Nov. 23.—Ernest Mayrisch, deputy auditor in the office of Alameda City Auditor F. J. Croll, accused of forgery in connection with the raising and cashing of a city warrant, was arraigned at 9 o'clock this morning in the Alameda police court, Judge Elmer E. Johnson, sitting in lieu of Police Judge L. R. Weinmann. Mayrisch appeared without counsel and unaccompanied by his wife or son. The arraignment was purely a technical affair, no statements being made by Mayrisch. His examination was set for November 28.

Mayrisch is at liberty on $2000 bonds, supplied last night by former Alameda City Clerk F. E. Browning, now in the auto business in Oakland, and Mrs. Mary A. B. Mayrisch, wife of the accused man. The warrant of arrest was served on Mayrisch at 5:45 o'clock last night, service being made in the police station, where Mayrisch spent several hours yesterday afternoon, awaiting the expected issuance of the warrant. He was not in jail at any time, the bond being ready when the warrant was served. Mayrisch is now at his home on Buena Vista avenue.

Mayrisch has a 40-acre mountain ranch at Boulder Creek, which has been used as a joint ranch and summer resort. He frequently talked of the time when he would have this ranch in shape to retire on. His family is among the oldest Alameda settlers.

Mrs. Mayrisch recently recovered from a serious operation. She is president of the Haight School Mothers' Club, and is also a leading member of the Alameda Women's Improvement Club. Mayrisch's son, Len Mayrisch, is a young civil engineer. Mayrisch is a Native Son, belonging to Alameda Parlor, and is also a Moose.

Auditor F. J. Croll is now busy checking over the records of his office. Mayrisch says that the forgery of the Hara claim is the only one involved. Croll said this morning that at the next meeting of the city council he would ask for a complete audit of the records of his office. So far there has been no talk of a successor to Mayrisch as deputy auditor. The position pays $125 a month.

Those Who Do Not Pay Remain Obscure

BERKELEY, Nov. 23. — There are some who have fame thrust upon them, according to the old quotation, but they are not junior students of the University of California. These are the ones taken away from them, according to Manager Wilson Meyer of the forthcoming Blue and Gold, unless they pay up their assessment of $5 apiece for the publication of that volume. According to the plans any junior who does not pay his $5 will not find his photograph and record in the book when it is issued.

The Blue and Gold management has planned to raise $5000 through the junior assessment. This will necessitate 1000 of $5 each. If this money is not forthcoming, says Meyer, it will be impossible to incorporate some of the new features which have been calculated to make the 1918 book attractive. Retaliation is to be had upon those juniors who do not appreciate this fact by omitting their physiognomies from this gallery of immortals.

Widow of Physician Gets $100,000 Verdict

FRESNO, Nov. 23.—Mrs. C. W. James, widow of a dentist who was killed through the administration of wrong medicine, was today given a judgment for $100,000 by the superior court.

Dr. James' death from the improper medicine occurred while salesmen for an electric company were demonstrating an X-ray machine. Mrs. James sued the salesmen, the electric company and the electric company's druggist. The court did not specify the proportion of the judgment to be paid by the different defendants.

IRON WORKERS LOSE LABOR CHARTER

Bitter Fight on Floor Results in Suspension of the Craft.

BALTIMORE, Md., Nov. 23. — The American Federation of Labor today adopted an amended resolution, suspending the charter of the International Bridge and Structural Ironworkers. This followed a bitter fight on the floor in which charges of bias and frame-up were hurled.

The fight was over the dock builders and pile-drivers of New York. It is charged that when a strike was on the ironworkers organized the strikebreakers into a separate body under their jurisdiction. This brought protests from the carpenters, with whom the strikers were affiliated.

The carpenters introduced the resolution to ask the convention to revoke the ironworkers' charter.

With only two days remaining for the convention to transact business, there is a noticeable "speeding up." The last day of the convention is generally given over to the election of officers.

When there are no contests in the election of the heads of the federation this work occupies but a short time. This year, however, there will be at least one contest, as John W. Hayes of the International Typographical Union is after the post of Frank Morrison, who for more than twenty years has been secretary of the organization. A resolution before the convention asking for the appointment of another vice-president will probably pave the way for another contest. While the delegates are reluctant to make a contest against the present officers, there are any number who are willing to test their strength in a contest for a new office.

BRITISH CONDEMN BRITANNIC SINKING

Assertion Made Could Be No Mistaking Character of the Liner Britannic.

LONDON, Nov. 23.—With new details of the sinking of the hospital ship Britannic received, making it appear certain the greatest British ship afloat was the victim of a Teuton submarine, press and public alike today united in condemnation of the act.

The admiralty was silent today either in confirmation or denial of a detailed story from Athens, published in the Daily Chronicle asserting that two Teutonic submarines lay in wait for the Britannic and that both simultaneously fired torpedoes at opposite sides of the vessel. One of these, it was said, missed, but the other struck.

One belief which found a number of supporters was that Germany is starting out on a new diver campaign. Frequent reports from Germany have indicated consideration by the government of resumption of an unlimited submarine warfare.

It was pointed out here today that there could be no mistaking the character of the Britannic.

No submarine commander could have failed to identify the ship, not only from the fact that she carried the usual hospital emblems, but because she was the biggest ship of her kind in the world. That the vessel was, therefore, the victim of a deliberate attack was the verdict here.

The admiralty did not add anything further today to its formal statement of yesterday that the great ship was sunk by a mine or torpedo with a loss of fifty lives. Considering the large number aboard at the time surprise was expressed here that there was such a small fatality list. The Britannic, however, was known to be one of the most thoroughly equipped of all passenger liners.

Accounts differ as to the number the Britannic had aboard, or in which direction she was proceeding when the explosion occurred.

Survivors were landed at various Greek cities.

In an additional statement today the admiralty asserted that the Britannic carried no wounded and those aboard were only the regular crew and the hospital staff, none of them Americans.

Voted 39 Times, Says Kansas City Affidavit

KANSAS CITY, Nov. 23.—Evidence of fraudulent voting in this city in the election of November 7, was disclosed today when affidavits of men who are alleged to have voted repeatedly were placed in the hands of Francis M. Wilson, United States District Attorney, and Arthur T. Bagley, special agent of the Department of Justice.

The cases have been laid before the District Attorney because the election involved presidential electors, a United States Senator and a Congressman. The affidavits show that one man voted thirty-nine times, another voted thirty-seven, a third voted thirty-two and a fourth eight times.

According to the affidavits the election frauds were not confined to one political party.

AGED MAN IS FOUND.

Nelson and escorted to his residence. He had been wandering about in an ill and weakened condition for two days, but it is believed that he suffered no physical harm from the exposure.

TICKET OFFICE AT FERRY IS ROBBED

Northwestern Pacific Loses to Thieves; Affair Is Kept Secret.

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 23.—The robbery of the North Western Pacific ticket office in the Ferry Building late last week has just become known. The facts about the sensational affair have been kept secret by W. S. Palmer, the president of the company, and General Passenger Agent J. J. Geary. Palmer and Geary have had private detectives working on the matter until last Monday, in addition to having notified Chief of Police White's private detective bureau. It is said that while no money was taken many tickets were stolen. These tickets were properly stamped as though they had been regularly sold. Some have been presented for redemption and it is represented the company has paid out some $250 before they became suspicious that all was not right.

On account of the tickets having been stamped, the detectives are working on the theory that it was an inside job. A ticket from this city to Eureka costs $12. Numbers of these tickets were received. It is also said that tickets to Santa Rosa, Willits and other tickets were redeemed.

ORATORIO SINGERS PREPARE PROGRAM

Berkeley Chorus to Finish the Work on Notable Concert Numbers.

BERKELEY, Nov. 23. — With a final rehearsal tonight, the Berkeley Oratorio society will bring to a close the longest season of preparation for one of its annual concerts which it has ever undergone. Every available moment which the director, Paul Steindorff, the four accompanists, the nine soloists and the 100 members of the chorus has had available has been given over to practising for the concert, not only because the Bach and Brahms program has been considered the society's most ambitious, but because a special effort this year is making to wipe the society's financial slate clean.

Extensive plans for the future season of work already are in hand. These will be further considered at the annual social and reception of the society to be held in Unity hall, Tuesday night. On New Year's night the society will give its yearly al fresco concert in the city hall under municipal auspices. The program for tomorrow night is as follows:

Concerto Grosso for two violins....Bach
Mr. and Mrs. Cedric Wright.
Chorus, "A Song of Fate," from "Love Waltzes" .....Brahms
Oratorio Society.
Cantata, "The Choice of Hercules"..Bach
Oratorio Society.

It is the last number, one of the 300 formerly unknown compositions of the master recently discovered in a choir loft in an old German church where he had presided, which has claimed the chief diligence of the society. This is a massive work, written for choral use and to celebrate the birth of an heir to a German principality, and has claimed all of the ability the society could muster. It is declared to be one of the most impressive Bach chorals ever heard in the west.

The corps of soloists who will assist the society this year surpasses in brilliance and musical prominence those of any past concert, according to officers of the society. They are:

Mrs. A. J. Hill and Mrs. Fannie Bailey Scott, soprano; Mrs. Marian Holmes Nash, mezzo-soprano; Miss Lucy Van de Mark, contralto; N. C. McGee and Howard Pratt, tenors, and Steven N. Wykoff, bass. Mrs. N. Aylwin, Mrs. F. D. Street, Miss Vivian Edwards and Miss Claire McClure are the accompanists.

Reports from Sadler's, the Sign of the Bear, Tupper & Reed's, O. N. Kruschke's and the Varsity Candy Shop today were to the effect that the advance sale of seats had been heavy. The largest audience in the society's history is expected to greet it tomorrow night.

School Auto to Be Driven by Many Hands

BERKELEY, Nov. 23. — The Berkeley Board of Education has an automobile. After two or more years given to considering the problem of whether Superintendent of Schools Morris C. James ought not to have a machine to visit the different buildings, in which James himself even was in doubt, the board finally determined in the affirmative. Now the board, with the machine on hand, has a new question and it relates to whether all the members of the body ought not to learn to drive the car.

Superintendent James is now learning the intricacies of the machine, and he will have first call upon its services. Among the staff of the school board who will be requested to learn to run the car, are the following: Frank McAllister, truant officer; Edward P. Pratt, carpenter of the schools; Miss Nellie Crowl, secretary, and Miss Clara F. Andrews, bookkeeper.

When the automobile is not being used by any of these, it will be at the service of the members of the board themselves for visiting the several schools. They will begin learning to run it after James, McAllister, Pratt, Miss Crowl and Miss Andrews have received instruction.

To Teach Women Home Efficiency

University Experts Will Show Farmers Improvements

BERKELEY, Nov. 23. — "Do you women who live on farms want to know how to make your work easier and pleasanter by new labor-saving methods?"

This is the question the University of California is asking the women of the State. Now the university has offered to send to any community a woman field agent to demonstrate "scientific efficiency" in the home, to show how the farm home may be made more homelike and attractive, and how the family may get more enjoyment from farm life. Any group of neighbor women, any women's club, or any community desiring such a demonstration should write to the agricultural extension division at the University of California, and with no charge whatever by the university such a demonstration will be given.

A map recently compiled by the college of agriculture showing where the university has held such women's farm home demonstrations during the past year and a half recorded 140 different demonstrations in 28 California counties before more than 7000 women.

The two women field agents, experts in household matters, sent out by the University of California for this work spend their whole time in the field. The demonstrations are usually held in farm homes, so that the neighbors may come in conveniently and see these demonstrations under the actual conditions of farm life in California.

Noted Posters Are Shown in Exhibit

BERKELEY, Nov. 23. — The French posters, a part of the large poster collection of the California School of Arts and Crafts, 2119 Allston way, are now on exhibition in the Assembly hall of the school. Among the posters are Lait Pur and Liberty by Steinlen, the former picturing a child in brilliant red surrounded by the omnipresent Steinlen cats; the latter a stirring appeal to the common people to demand their rights; this was printed for an election poster.

By the opposition it was named Anarchy and its display was forbidden in Germany. Mucha is represented by the official French poster of the St. Louis exposition and by his famous La Samaritaine depicting Sarah Bernhardt in this play. The Steinlen posters attract because of their vigorous drawing and color, Mucha's on account of their wonderful decorative qualities.

In the collection are many other excellent specimens of poster art, especially those donated by the French commissioner at the Panama-Pacific International exposition.

The exhibit is free and will be open from 9 to 5 every day, Sunday excepted, up to Wednesday, November 29.

Berkeley Clinic to Aid Schools by Taking Charge of This Branch of Work; University Expert Will Direct the Work

Noted Authorities Now on Staff of Dispensary; Ills of Poor to Be Cured by Charity; New Members of Staff in Charge

BERKELEY, Nov. 23.—The problem presented by sub-normal children in the Berkeley schools is to be attacked at its root by teachers in the schools working with Dr. Olga Bridgman, expert psychologist of the University of California and instructor in mental abnormalities of childhood. Dr. Bridgman has been added to the staff of the Berkeley Dispensary from offices at which she will direct the work throughout the city.

She will be in charge there of a newly-inaugurated mental clinic for the measurement and treatment of sub-normal and defective children with the co-operation of the teachers. This clinic is also to be open to adults.

DENIES CHARGE OF HAZING BOY

Mountain View Scout Master Released on Recognizance; Will Fight Case.

SAN JOSE, Nov. 23.—Upon his appearance in the court of Judge F. B. Brown yesterday, Earl D. Minton, the prominent Mountain View lumber man who had been brought in upon a warrant sworn out by Mrs. Myrta A. Prindle, charging him with hazing her son, so that serious consequences followed, was discharged upon his own recognizance, with instructions to appear when the case was up for trial. Minton did not have the warrant served upon him but was notified by telephone to come to San Jose and answer to the indictment. This he did yesterday morning.

When seen at his office in Mountain View yesterday afternoon, Minton gave his side of the case. In his statement he said:

Perhaps I am morally at fault for allowing the affair to be perpetrated when I was present. Actually I had no part in hazing young Prindle. True, the boy had been creating trouble with the other boys around the Baptist church, where the Boy Scouts were meeting. Some of them proposed that in order to either make him stay away or behave himself we give him a shower bath. I, of course, was out of patience and did not try to prevent them putting the plan into execution. He was not tied to my knowledge. The other boys simply held him and put him under the shower.

San Jose Man Denies Accusations of Girl

SAN JOSE, Nov. 23.—"Positively not guilty," is the way that William Edgar, who was arrested Thursday night on the complaint of 13-year-old Katherine Gallichottee answered when arraigned in Department One of the Superior Court. According to school authorities, the Gallichottee girl has been playing truant from school for the last several weeks, and it is hinted by the defense that they will try to prove that the girl has invented this story to account for her absence. In a statement made yesterday, Hiram A. Blanchard, attorney for Edgar, said:

We will prove that her story is a complete fabrication, and that in order to answer her mother's questions as to why she has not been attending school, she has told this tale.

Blanchard moved for a reduction of the bond under which Edgar is now released, asking that it be made $2500 for each charge, instead of $10,000. This motion will be heard tomorrow. Edgar is 56 years old and is a widower. The majority of the evidence upon which he was arrested was gathered by Truant Officer Edward Lake.

TO HOLD DINNER.

LIVERMORE, Nov. 23.—With the hopes of increasing the fund in order to purchase an organ for the church, women of St. Michael's parish will serve a turkey dinner to the public on Thanksgiving day, November 30, in Foresters' hall. A whist party will also be opened to the public during the evening.

The Kind You Have Always Bought.

THIS is the caution applied to the public announcement of Castoria that has been manufactured under the supervision of Chas. H. Fletcher for over 30 years—the genuine Castoria. We respectfully call the attention of fathers and mothers when purchasing Castoria to see that the wrapper bears his signature in black. When the wrapper is removed the same signature appears on both sides of the bottle in red. Parents who have used Castoria for their little ones in the past years need no warning against counterfeits and imitations, but our present duty is to call the attention of the younger generation to the great danger of introducing into their families spurious medicines.

It is to be regretted that there are people who are now engaged in the nefarious business of putting up and selling all sorts of substitutes, or what should more properly be termed counterfeits, for medicinal preparations not only for adults, but worse yet, for children's medicines. It therefore devolves on the mother to scrutinize closely what she gives her child. Adults can do that for themselves, but the child has to rely on the mother's watchfulness.

Genuine Castoria always bears the signature of Chas. H. Fletcher

LOCAL PIANIST TO GIVE CONCERT

Pupil of Europe's Greatest Teacher, an Oakland Boy, at Ebell Hall.

Tomorrow evening at Ebell Hall the lovers of high-class music and the majority of people who care for music want to be included in that class—will have the opportunity of hearing the gifted young artist David Alberto at the first piano recital he has given in Oakland in years.

Few people in this city realize the marked ability possessed by Alberto. It has remained for those high in the musical circles of the world to recognize the unusual talent displayed by this young man.

Frank La Forge, whose name in musical circles of the great art centers of the world is one to conjure with, expressed himself in no uncertain way of the remarkable ability of the artist Alberto.

Mme. Gadsky, the grand opera star, is another one who has found unusual talent in this Oakland youth.

Alberto's training under Leschetizky for a number of years is evidence enough that the tutorship and companionship of the world's greatest teacher of the piano has given to Alberto a finish that all concert artists desire but cannot receive.

A great number of Oakland's musical devotees will greet Alberto tomorrow evening at Ebell Hall.

GOOD SAMARITAN PRAISED BY COURT

Named As Co-Respondent, He Proves He Bought Wife Necessities.

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 23. — The role of the good samaritan, played by John Schussler, capitalist, and 86 years old, was directly responsible for his being named as co-respondent in a divorce action heard before Superior Judge Thomas Graham today. After listening to the evidence of the aged man charged with wrecking the home of William Green, a carptener, young enough to be his grandson, the court completely exonerated him.

Leah Green had filed suit for divorce and by way of answer and cross-complaint the accusation against Schussler was made. Green charged that Schussler had given his wife money and had walked along Fillmore street with her, arm in arm, finally stating that the capitalist was even paying for the divorce action.

On the witness stand, Schussler testified he met Mrs. Green in Lafayette Square with torn shoes and bedraggled attire. Her baby was practically shoeless and he gave her money with which to buy necessary clothes.

After expressing his belief in Schussler's story, Judge Graham continued the case until Tuesday.

Thousands See T. & D. Opening

Magnificent Theater Is Verdict

Oakland answered the call of silent drama last night in a manner not quite so silent. Everywhere one word penetrated the lobbies and rest rooms and auditoriums of the new T. & D. Theater —"Wonderful!" Over thirty-five hundred wide-eyed patrons, successfully ensconced in their seats, gazed about them with something resembling awe. Two thousand disappointed would-be patrons clamored in vain for entrance to the house only to find that every chair, nook, cranny and point of vantage had been occupied for an hour.

Felicitations were exchanged between representatives of the city and representatives of this new city institution, the while representatives of Oakland movie patrons listened and applauded honestly the words of praise. House officials, perspiring, though happy, introduced moving picture stars and heads of the Turner and Dahnken circuit to other celebrities. And the sum total of everyone's remarks remained "Wonderful!" The patrons regarded it thus because of the immensity of the enterprise and the way it had been carried out. The motion picture directors regarded it in that light because of the sincerity of Oakland's welcome to the new house at Eleventh and Franklin streets.

TRULY WONDERFUL.

And it is wonderful. The unspoken drama! Reels of celluloid! Actions shown over and over again! For these, the new T. & D. has been built, for these, and for a faith that Oakland shows what it wants. Oakland approved of the unspoken drama and the quality of plays exhibited at the first performance last night.

Of course there were short talks. In behalf of the Turner and Dahnken Circuit, E. B. Johnson, secretary of the concern, dedicated the house to Oakland and Alameda county. He assured his hearers that the height of motion picture art would be shown in the local home of the circuit and expressed himself as overjoyed at the way Oakland had taken the enterprise.

BELIEF IN OAKLAND.

And when it was all over, W. H. Jobelmann, tired, though happy, publicity man, ushered the other publicists into a room, where C. L. Langley, general manager and treasurer of the circuit, said a few words as expressive of Turner and Dahnken's feelings.

"We believe in Oakland," he said, "and tonight's demonstration leads us to believe that Oakland believes in us. We are in a new location—east of Broadway —and many croakers thought that our doom was sealed by the move. However, we have a fighting chance, and this circuit asks nothing more than just that! In fact, all it has ever met—were fighting chances. Success has always been ours in the end.

"We might have reserved the entire house tonight for prices ranging as high as $2 a seat, but the friends we have made here in Oakland were too much respected by us. They were given the privilege of 'first come, first served.' We bring an art to Oakland—a work representing a great amount of money and much brain weariness. We thank Oakland for the good will!"

And George E. Thornton, resident manager, with Jobelmann, nodded in unison.

H. C. Capwell, speaking for the Downtown Merchants' Association, asserted that he was more than pleased to represent his organization at an occasion of the kind. He said in part:

"This is more than a playhouse—a mere amusement place, to be taken in nonchalant manner. It is an institution in keeping with Oakland, known to us all as the City of Achievement. Many men with courage and foresight saw opportunity on this side of the bay, came here and have reaped success. This theater, measuring up to the spirit of the present day city, cannot help but secure that same success. It is only one of the many evidences shown us that Oakland has arrived!

"The Union Iron Works in the immediate past launched a great ship, which will travel the world, telling foreign parts that it is a result of Alameda county's enterprise. Tonight another large enterprise has been launched—but this is a ship which cannot sail away from us and our pride. It will bring just fame from the world and nation to the same degree as the ship will carry on a similar errand by sailing the bounding main."

Following this expression of the merchant organization's sentiments, the speaker closed after complimenting James K. Moffitt on the courage to erect the building and congratulating Turner and Dahnken on the results of that construction. Capwell felt positive that nothing but rich harvests could follow the firm's determination to give the city the best that was in them.

Mayor John L. Davie, speaking for the city, accepted the playhouse as an Oakland institution and told the interested audience that the municipality was proud to add the theater to its list of landmarks.

"Representing the City of Oakland, I greet the great enterprise in the name of its many inhabitants. To say that this beautiful structure represents the spirit of Oakland is not far from the truth—the spirit of Oakland in everything. The Turner and Dahnken circuit and everyone connected with the building of this marvel should feel that they have aided in a great civic enterprise as well as in a private investment.

"The unspoken drama could find no finer home, and all of Oakland joins me or will join me before long in welcoming this institution into city life and regard."

Joseph R. Knowland, speaking for the Oakland Chamber of Commerce, said:

"Since the first of the year the Oakland Chamber of Commerce certainly needs a corps of assistants in order to attend the many functions marking the progress of this community. One day we have a launching of a great ship of commerce; then a keel is laid for another vessel; a few days later ground is broken for a new factory or possibly a completed structure is dedicated, and the onward march continues, making it necessary for our leading commercial organization to move rapidly.

"Fully as important, as the launching of a great ship, the establishment of a factory or other industrial enterprise, is the dedication of such a splendidly equipped and up-to-date place of amusement.

"With the advent of moving pictures, with popular prices prevailing, opportunity is afforded those of small means to view the most prominent and noted actors and actresses from the legitimate.

"Among the producers, most painstaking efforts are being put forth to raise the standards of productions. The obscene and those things that appeal to the baser passions are frowned upon. Those most intimately connected with the business appreciate the importance of maintaining a high standard."

"MOVIE" STARS SPEAK.

Following the addresses, the lighting of the house was exhibited to bewildered though delighted onlookers, and various shadings of the mural decorations were intensified and softened by the indirect lighting work. Movie stars in the persons of Miss Anita King, Myrtle Stedman, Sessue Hayakawa and Tsuri Aoki said a few brief words, expressing surprise and delight that such a house should shelter movie art in Oakland.

A musical program followed, with Albert Hay Malotte, organist, bringing forth every tone shading and run on the great Wurlitzer Hope-Jones Unit Orchestra. A chorus aided in the program, while a four-piece orchestra alternated with the permanent instrument. Then came the motion pictures, cause of all the cheering and display. Dustin Farnum in "A Son of Erin" and Marguerite Clark in "Miss George Washington," brought the amusement feature right up to the occasion's demand.

News of the Theaters

CLOSES VAUDEVILLE WITH BEST ACT.

It seems only fitting that the Hippodrome's last vaudeville bill previous to the advent of the theater into musical comedy next Sunday should be one of the best they have ever offered. And that is just what has happened, for the new show offered for the first time yesterday is easily the equal of any seen there during the past year and a half.

Claire Hansen and her company of six others are the headliners with a skit called "Childhood Memories." All of them are clever vaudeville artists, and the girls look particularly cute in their "kid" frocks. The singing of the four men as a quartet makes the hit of the show, one of them, a Hebrew comedian, adding plenty of comedy.

Little Jerry, the vest pocket comedian, repeated the hit he made in this city recently as a member of the "Midnight Frisco" troupe.

This coming Sunday Jim Post and his big musical comedy company start their special season in "The Walking Delegate." Vilma Steck, Ida Gold, Alma Astor and many other local stage favorites will be seen with the Post Company, which will number more than thirty people.

NEW BISHOP THEATER TO OPEN MONDAY.

Everything new and novel, and so different from what the public has been accustomed to in the theater. This in a meagre way describes the new Bishop Playhouse which opens Monday, November 27. Even the play will be new, as this is the initial performance of "The Light in the Dark," written especially by Herbert Bashford to dedicate the new Franklin street theater. The play is one that will prove a revelation to the most blase theatergoer and, combined with the magnificent production, it will be possible to give it on the new type of stage with which the Bishop Playhouse is provided, it is bound to be an event of considerable moment in the theatrical world. The seating arrangement of the new house is ideal, the acoustic properties perfect, the decorations delicate and refined and with the added wonders that the new stage make possible. The box office is now open.

TO LAY CORNERSTONE.

SAN RAFAEL, Nov. 23.—San Rafael Lodge of Eks will celebrate the laying of the cornerstone of its $20,000 new clubhouse at B and Fifth streets next Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock. Drill teams from San Mateo, Richmond, San Francisco and Oakland lodges will participate.

HOLWAY TO LECTURE.

The lecture for the current week in the extension course at the First Congregational church will be given tonight by Professor R. S. Holway on "The Ups and Downs of the Pacific Coast." He will tell how old we are and how we came to be and particularly why California is so significantly related to the commerce and development of the rest of the world. The public is invited. The lecture will be beautifully illustrated.

SENSATIONAL ACT ON ORPHEUM BILL

"Forest Fire" Attracts Big Crowds to Vaudeville Temple.

Enormous crowds are being attracted to the Oakland Orpheum by the "Forest Fire" which is so extraordinary a feature that it deserves to take rank with the greatest acts that have ever been played at the Oakland temple of vaudeville.

In the heydey of melodrama, McCormick was famous as the author of no less than 40 popular plays of the blood and thunder type, including "How Hearts Are Broken," "The Storm" and James J. Corbett's "The Burglar and The Lady."

The populace wanted melodrama, however, and he wrote it until the fickle public changed its mind. McCormick then went to Paris where he studied art for two years. His hobby had always been electricity and he was such an expert that he was engaged as such by the General Electric Co. He holds a patent for a moving sign that was exhibited for the first time at the Chicago world's fair.

It was a work of many months to make the models. Then he wrote the story and finally painted the scenery. The combination was a masterpiece and McCormick can proudly declare that his brain alone created the biggest thing in vaudeville.

The Orpheum management announces a notable feature next week in the engagement of Sophie Tucker who is known as "The Mary Garden of Rag Time." With Miss Tucker will be her "Five Kings of Syncopation."

LLOYD AND HIGH ART AT PANTAGES.

When Herbert Lloyd imitates everyone in local or international fame—the Kaiser, Napoleon, Chief Petersen and Beatrice McCall, at the Pantages this week, he may not be establishing a record as an impersonator—he admits himself that his impersonations may not be perfect from the standpoint of physiognomy—but he certainly has established a laughing record. Every impersonation means more laughs—and between time he juggles, dances and burlesques vaudevillians of high and low degree.

Al Ward and Mike Fave, the comic English chappies, start the fun going, and Neal Abel, with his mobile face, keeps up the laughs. Chinko, the world famous juggler, gives a little comedy even with his exhibition of skill and the Four Rennees, pretty girls who change costumes, sing and dance.

A touch of high art is also on the bill, in the appearance of Reggiana and Vogliotti, opera stars, late of the Mascagni Co. "The Crimson Stain" is the film feature.

"INTOLERANCE" DRAWS LARGE AUDIENCE.

The D. W. Griffith's "Intolerance" represents the supreme achievement of the master mind in the world of film reproductions is an opinion shared by the local press and by the theater-going public of Oakland. The press has expressed itself in its columns on more than one occasion, while the theatergoers have given expression to their approbation by crowding the Macdonough theater at every performance of the great spectacle that has thus far been given.

The very massiveness of the production has thrilled the thousands who have seen it, and it is not within the memory of local theater-goers that such enthusiasm and applause has been evoked by any stage production. As great as was the acclaim that greeted "The Birth of a Nation," it all now seems infinitessimal in comparison to the reception accorded "Intolerance."

Because of the long lines of ticket buyers at the box office before each performance, the management desires to impress upon the public the desirability of making their reservations well in advance so as to preclude the necessity of having to stand so long in line and perhaps miss the opening scenes of this great spectacle. The engagement at the Macdonough of "Intolerance" will continue next week and seats can now be had for this second week.

"HELP WANTED" IS COLUMBIA HIT.

Surrounded by comedians, singers and dancers, arrayed in sartorial splendor and displaying unusual histrionic talent, Will King, laugh-provoker-in-chief at Columbia theater, is enjoying one of the biggest successes of his season at the Tenth street playhouse this week in the new melange music and song, "Help Wanted."

In the comedy, which is from the pen of Director Charles Alphin, King plays the role of an indigent paper-hanger who through force of circumstances is inveigled into being husband "for an hour" to Laura Vail. The adventures which King encounters during "the hour" are numerous and laugh provoking and are serving to attract capacity houses to each performance.

Assisting King in the task of extracting merriment from the audience are Harry Bernard in his usual role of "Mike Hogan," Will Hayes, Jack Wise in the juvenile role, and Reece Gardner as the heroic villain. The female roles are in the hands of Clair Starr and Laura Vail.

Two of the big hits of the evening are scored by two diminutive Oriental maidens, Marion Wong, the local prima donna, and Rosie Hing, who holds the title of champion cakewalker of the Chinese. Miss Hing's efforts come as a prelude to the big cake-walking contest which is holding forth at the theater for a prize of $50.

Tomorrow evening many surprises are promised in the regular "Chorus Girls' Contest" numbers on a vaudeville type being offered by each of the young women.

"NATHAN HALE" AT RELIANCE.

At the Reliance theater last evening there was presented a photo-drama which is to the early period of American history what "The Birth of a Nation" was to the Reconstruction. It is entitled "The Heart of a Hero" and is a visualization of the life of Nathan Hale, taken from the play, "Nathan Hale," written by Clyde Fitch.

Every youngster in school is acquainted with the story of Nathan Hale and his heroic action in becoming a spy when his country needed him, and his journey into the British lines, which meant certain death.

Another reason for the particular appeal of this picture is in its faithful reproduction of the manners and customs of the times. Among the many interesting scenes are those showing the Revolutionary schoolroom. The camp of the Continental troops, and the British headquarters.

Other features of the program are a comedy, a Bray Cartoon depicting some of the latest adventures of Colonel Heeza Liar and the news film.

FAIRBANKS IN FRANKLIN FILM.

In this, his latest picture, "Duggy," as he is affectionately called, out-Fairbanks himself.

He, Douglas Fairbanks, the athletic comedian at the Franklin theater, jumps from the roofs of moving automobiles, scales a building by means of a rope, vaults over eight-foot fences and flys an aeroplane with the same reckless ease and abandon that has endeared him to the public in his other releases. Jewel Carmen plays opposite Fairbanks in this picture and she forms the incentive for the majority of his hair-raising feats.

The name of the play is derived from a satirical view of the people who form the aristocrats of this country, the wealthy ones.

"American Aristocracy" is perhaps the first photoplay ever made that can boast of a staff of supernumeraries or "supes" whose total wealth exceeds several hundred millions of dollars. A great many of the scenes in the picture were taken at Newport, one of the most fashionable of the many summer resorts on the Atlantic seaboard.

CAPITALIZATION OF LINE CALLED HIGH

Commerce Commission Values New Orleans, Texas & Mexico R. R.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 23.—The physical valuation of the New Orleans, Texas & Mexico railroad, announced today by the Interstate Commerce Commission, places the cost of reproduction at $8,865,636. It is capitalized at $40,938,031.

The report shows the original cost of the line equipped was $12,194,231. The record cost of road equipment was found unduly large. The report says:

> The issue of $28,000,000 bonds is really a portion of an authorized issue of $50,000,000, and although the issue is really a part of the capitalization of the New Orleans, Texas & Mexico, it is an obligation primarily of the St. Louis & San Francisco.

The railroad is part of the Gulf coast lines which skirt the Gulf coast from New Orleans to Brownsville.

The announcement of valuation was the second the commission had made in its work of appraising the railroad systems of the country.

Mrs. Boissevain Saved by Prayer, Declares Father

MRS. INEZ MILHOLLAND BOISSEVAIN in fighting trim. This snapshot shows the suffragist during one of her famous platform speeches. Her father says that she delivered her speeches with "An intensity that robs her of her vitality."

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 23.—Mrs. Inez Milholland Boissevain of New York, although not pronounced out of danger by her physicians, was reported today by hospital attendants to have continued during the night to gain strength as she has for the last few days. There has been no recurrence of the depressing reactions which several times reduced her chances for recovery from the critical condition of aplastic anemia, which interrupted her suffrage campaign speaking several weeks ago.

Mrs. Boissevain's steady improvement after she had reached a point where the chances for life were against her was "a miracle—nothing else," according to a statement issued during the night by her father, John E. Milholland of New York. He said her improvement was the answer to the prayers of thousands of friends throughout the country. Her physicians had practically abandoned hope, he said, when there came a sudden change last Friday.

"I hold tenaciously to the simplest teaching of the apostolic age," he said. "I believe God hears and answers the prayer of faith today just the same as in the first century. I believe my daughter's escape from seemingly inevitable death last Friday was a miracle as surely as the healing at the hands of Peter and John. I consider it my solemn duty to give testimony for what He has vouchsafed me."

In his statement he told of the prayers by various organizations with which Mr. Boissevain has worked, by ministers of various denominations and the "heart prayers of thousands of friends. These, he said, were "a revelation of human tenderness in an age which is supposed to be given over to the law of force."

Turned Hose Upon Daughter, Is Charged

That the action of her husband in arousing their daughter Florence from her sleep by drenching her with a garden hose until she was forced to jump headlong through a window to escape the stream, constituted cruelty in respect to their marital relations was claimed by Mrs. Jennie Hendricksen in testifying in her suit for divorce from W. G. Hendricksen. The incident was recited by Mrs. Hendricksen before Superior Judge Ogden. The case was continued today.

MASCAGNI AIRS FOR 'POP' CONCERT

Steindorff Orchestra and Noted Singers to Offer Many Selections.

The concert of concerts, so far as lovers of grand opera are concerned, in Paul Steindorff's "Pop" series at the Oakland Auditorium is announced for next Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock, when every song that popular taste has chosen from the score of Mascagni's "Cavalleria Rusticana" is to be offered. At considerable expense and difficulty Steindorff has secured soloists for this occasion who are expected in themselves, and outside the beautiful vehicle of their voices, to attract hundreds to the concert.

Miss Blanche Hamilton Fox, soprano, who was greeted with great enthusiasm at the opening concert of the series, will reappear. Robert Battison, one of the most capable tenors of the bay region, will be heard, as will also Signor Paolo Galazzi, operatic baritone, whose experience in singing such scores has been of wide extent.

In addition Steindorff has planned an orchestral program reduced neither in length nor variety and beauty of offerings from its predecessors. By special request the inimitable intermezzo from Wolfe-Ferrari's "The Jewels of the Madonna" is to be played again. Rossini's "La Gazza Ladra" overture will be rendered and numbers also by Paul Lacombe, Rubinstein, Edward Elgar, Bolzoni and Johann Strauss. "Cavalleria Rusticana" will be given as a second part of the program.

In the choicest gems of the opera will be told again the story of the peasant Turiddu, his faithless sweetheart Lola and Alfio, her spouse, and his new love, Santuzza. The last, the soprano part, is to be sung by Miss Fox. Mr. Battison will appear in the role of Turiddu, with Signor Galazzi cast as Alfio. Negotiations are being made by Steindorff today to find a suitable mezzo as Lola to keep this distinguished trio company.

The complete program as announced for Sunday is as follows:

Part I—Overture, "La Gazza Ladra" (Rossini); "Anbade Printaniere" (Paul Lacombe); "Kamanoi Ostrow (Cloister Scene), Rubinstein (a) "Salut d'Amour" (Edward Elgar), (b) Menuet, (Bolzoni) (c) Intermezzo, "The Jewels of the Madonna" (Wolf-Ferrari), by request; selections, "Die Fledermaus," Johann Strauss.

Part II—Gems from "Cavalleria Rusticana," (Mascagni), Miss Fox, Mr. Battison, Signor Galazzi, soloists; orchestral accompaniment.

Besides at the Auditorium Sunday seats are on sale at the following places:

Oakland—Owl Drug Stores, Wiley B. Allen, Kohler & Chas, Sherman, Clay & Co., Taft & Pennoyer, Capwell's, Kahn's, Hauschild Music Company, Hotel Oakland, Crockett's Key Route Inn, Fortieth and San Pablo Cigar Store.

STATE MOTOR LAW CHANGES PLANNED

Conference Appoints Committees to Investigate and Draft New Legislation.

SACRAMENTO, Nov. 23. — The conference called by Herbert H. French, head of the State automobile department, to discuss proposed changes in the motor vehicle law to be placed before the next legislature, adjourned yesterday until January 8, when the legislature will convene. Committees appointed to investigate the various propositions for alterations in the statute will report to the conference at that time and it is hoped an agreement will be reached as to what changes will be suggested.

The committees will investigate the following phases of the motor vehicle law: Administration and registration, rules of the road, speed and signs; equipment and safety devices, penal provisions, enforcement of the law and disposition of fines, and the use of trucks, trailers and tractors on improved highways.

Discussion of dimmers on automobile lights and of penalties to be inflicted upon joy riders, occupied the attention yesterday of delegates to the conference of traffic authorities, automobile organizations and State department heads.

Recommendations that brackets holding automobile headlights be tipped forward so that the center rays of light fall upon the road at a point 75 feet in front of the machine, and top rays not more than 42 inches above the road at that point, found favor with many delegates. This would eliminate the necessity for use of dimmers, it is claimed.

Proposals that jail and prison sentences of from four months to ten years be imposed upon those convicted of "joy riding" also appeared to meet with approval.

Swallows Strychnine; First Aid Saves Her

Mrs. Lulu Anderson, 1524 Center street, attempted suicide at her home this morning by taking six strychnine tablets. Each tablet contained a 60th of a grain of the deadly drug. She was discovered by her husband, who is a salesman for a local concern, and rushed to the emergency hospital, where the stomach pump was applied by Dr. H. E. Franck. The woman was pronounced out of danger. Family troubles, followed by a quarrel, was said to be the cause of her attempt at suicide.

Files Contest Against Will, Cutting Him Off

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 23.—Charging that his wife could neither read nor write at the time of her death, and that therefore the will she made a few hours prior to her passing, and which cut him off from all participation in her estate, was the result of a misapprehension on her part, Frank Cogorno, of Minor, Marin county, today filed a contest in the estate of Assunta Cognoro. Mrs. Cognoro was 62 years old when she died, several weeks ago, and according to the allegations in today's complaint left all her property to two sons by a former marriage. It was while she lay dying that State Senator Victor Canepa was summoned and drew up the will. Cogorno says he was in the house when Canepa came, but was tired and lay asleep during all the legal formalities.

OMAHA, Nov. 23.—Telephone advices from Spalding, Neb., says a man whom the town marshal believes answers the description of Jean Crones, the Chicago banquet poisoner, is in jail there.

Marshal William Burns of Spalding is so sure he has the right man that he was afraid to keep the prisoner in the city jail and took him to the county seat at Bartlett.

Burns identified the man from a photograph while the suspect was playing pool last night.

The man under arrest is 5 feet 8 inches tall, 30 years old, has light hair, talks with a foreign accent, is well dressed and wore a soldier's cap. He is said to have come to Spalding yesterday.

ROMANCE IS HINTED BY MRS. VALLEJO

Rumor of Second Marriage Is Current, Following Granting of Final Divorce Decree Today From Man Wed in 1908

Divorcee Off for Los Angeles, Where More Wedding Bells Are Said to Have Been Set in Tune for Reception by Groom

Taking only her closest friends into her confidence, Mrs. Hazel Seifer Vallejo, after taking out a final decree of divorce today from her husband, Harvey Vallejo, scion of a family of early day Spanish land grantees in California, has departed for Los Angeles, where it is said she will be married this week.

Recently Mrs. Vallejo told her friends that she expected to marry as soon as her final decree of divorce could be entered but the secret of the identity of her fiance has been closely guarded by those who knew and by her attorneys.

MARRIED IN 1908.

Her first marriage took place in Oakland March 4, 1908. At that time, according to her testimony, her husband was earning $75 a month, which amount, she said, had to be augmented by contributions from her parents.

Several years ago Mrs. Vallejo inherited a fortune. She built a beautiful home at 701 Arimo avenue, Piedmont, but all was not happiness under the new roof. She accused her husband of cruelty towards her in spite of the fact that she supported the household. Her father-in-law, Napoleon P. Vallejo, was a witness in her behalf in the divorce proceedings.

That her husband was wont to pose as a single man, that he was enamored of other women in addition to other alleged shortcomings was her plaint in the action.

PATROL CARRIED WHISPER.

After they moved to Arimo avenue she testified that a private patrolman of Piedmont had told her that he frequently saw her husband leaving the home of a neighbor in the morning and that her neighbor left a latch key out for him at night. This, she said, contributed to her mental discomfiture. She did not seek allmony but was awarded custody of her seven-year-old daughter, Povita.

Husband Objected to "Saint;" Divorce Asked

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 23.—"I don't want a saint. I prefer a wife as mean as the devil," said Floyd L. Beard, a journalist, to Mrs. Edna S. Beard a short time prior to their separation, according to charges made in a suit for divorce begun this morning. Mrs. Beard alleges that she had been in the habit of attending church and that her husband gave expression to the above sentiment when she started for service one Sunday morning. When she wanted her sister to come and visit her, she says he told her that he "didn't marry the whole family."

The parting of the ways followed her determination to visit the Panama-Pacific Exposition here despite his opposition

Miller Heirs Appear Before Tax Attorney

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 23.—Mrs. Nellie M. Nickel, daughter of the late Henry Miller, and her husband, J. Leroy Nickel, appeared this afternoon before Attorney William Sullivan to give their depositions in connection with the inheritance tax inquiry into the affairs of the late land baron. The Nickels are virtually the sole heirs of the vast holdings left by Miller. The hearing today was presided over by Inheritance Tax Appraiser Richard F. Mogan.

Auto Hits Wagon; Several Injured

SANTA CLARA, Nov. 23.—A smash-up, at the turn near Clay and Lincoln streets, between an automobile driven by D. F. Ambrose of 58 Harper street, San Francisco, and a spring wagon in which C. Merimonte and G. Padget of San Jose were riding, occurred last night. Merimonte and Padget were thrown from the wagon with considerable force, knocking out four of Merimonte's teeth. Ambrose was accompanied by three women and five children. Several suffered minor injuries.

TODAY'S BEAUTY TALK

You can make a delightful shampoo with very little effort and for a very trifling cost, if you get from your druggist a package of canthrox and dissolve a teaspoonful in a cup of hot water. Your shampoo is now ready. Just pour a little at a time on the scalp and rub briskly. This creates an abundance of thick, white lather that thoroughly dissolves and removes the dandruff, excess oil and dirt. After rinsing, the hair dries quickly, with a fluffiness that makes it seem heavier than it is, and takes on a rich luster and a softness that makes arranging it a pleasure.—Advertisement.

Secretary Von Jagow Quits Post

Former Assistant to Take Place

BERLIN, Nov. 23.—The resignation of Gottlieb von Jagow of foreign affairs was semi-officially announced today. He will be succeeded by Dr. Elfred Zimmermann, his former chief assistant.

Dr. Zimmermann is the first commoner to hold the great post of Prussian and German foreign minister. He has reached this position, not as ordinarily, upon the stepping stones of ambassadorial posts, but after a career in the consular service. His predecessor was by birth and inclination a junker of junkers, by the irony of fate, was compelled to wage a hard struggle against his own class on the questions of submarine policy and German peace aims.

The retirement of von Jagow from the service of the government appears to be final. The death of Count von Tschirschky, ambassador to Austria, started a report that von Jagow probably would like von Tschirschky, move from the foreign secretaryship to Vienna, but the semi-official announcement makes no mention of this and the Associated Press correspondent is informed that the former secretary is not being considered for any governmental post. Von Jagow has insisted that his health, which was scarcely strong enough to sustain him when he was ambassador at Rome and which was unable to stand the strain of his ministerial work during the great war, necessitates his complete retirement from official life.

STRONG CANDIDATES.

Count Botho von Wedel probably will be the next ambassador to Vienna, although the final decision has not yet been made. For the vacant under-secretaryship, Baron Wilhelm von Stum, director of the political department of the foreign office, and Baron von dem Bussche-Haddenhausen, former minister to Eucharest, apparently are the strongest candidates.

Baron Bussche - Haddenhausen would bring to the post a broad acquaintanceship with American affairs, having been successively secretary of the embassy at Washington, head of the American department of the foreign office and minister to Buenos Ayres. He was slated as Zimmermann's successor when he returned from the Argentine. Von Stumm, who is a son of the famous steel and iron magnate of the Rhineland, also specialized in American affairs, having headed the American department before being promoted to be chief of the political department. He is regarded as one of the cleverest members of the German diplomatic corps and was frequently mentioned before the war as a candidate for the embassy at London.

RELIEVES CHANCELLOR.

The appointment of Dr. Zimmermann will relieve Chancellor Von Bethmann-Hollweg of considerable parliamentary work. All the burden of the Reichstag debates has, up to the present, fallen on the chancellor's shoulders, owing to Von Jagow's complete lack of talent for public speaking or debate. Dr. Zimmermann, on the contrary, is a ready speaker and a good debater. He also enjoys a wide acquaintanceship and friendship among the members of the Reichstag.

Dr. Zimmermann is a big, broad-shouldered East Prussian, with a determined will, a jovial manner, a hearty laugh and a keen sense of humor. He is a modern of the moderns, with keen appreciation of the value of the press and is unusually frank in his intercourse with foreign journalists. His appointment should be a good augury for the future of German-American relations, as he is a strong advocate of friendship with the United States.

Christmas Gift Part of Estate

Children Deed Share to Mrs. Tubbs

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 23.—Mrs. Jennie F. Tubbs, widow of the late William B. Tubbs, president of the Tubbs Cordage Company, will receive an unusual Christmas present, born of the love and affection of her two children, as the result of an agreement entered into in connection with the probating of the estate.

By the terms of his will Tubbs left one-third of his property to his wife and the remainder to his son and daughter, Chatin and Emilie J. Tubbs, giving the widow, in addition, the family home at 1917 Jackson street. The children have put their heads together and the details of a substantial gift to their mother in connection with the distribution of the property was made public today when the papers were put on record.

They have agreed to present to their mother three-fifths of their father's estate, retaining one-fifth each, and as the date of distribution has been set in the Superior Court for December 13 the increased legacy will come to Mrs. Tubbs almost in the nature of a Christmas gift.

Before his death Tubbs deeded the greater portion of his property and his estate consists in the neighborhood of $150,000.

MARE ISLAND GETS FUEL RESERVOIR

Supply Station to Be Built at a Cost of One Million Dollars.

Underground fuel oil supply reservoirs are to be constructed at the Mare Island navy yard, according to late advices from Washington, the purpose of the additional storage space being protection from attacks by hostile aerial squadrons. Announcement that the navy was preparing for such construction was received today from the capitol.

Rear Admiral Harris, chief of docks and yards, told the House naval committee today that $1,000,000 would represent the cost of such underground space at the Mare Island, Pearl Harbor, Guantanamo, Puget Sound, San Diego and Narragansett stations. Following discussion and proper negotiations work will begin on the navy's means of protection for its fuel oil.

Roadhouse Reputation Questioned in Court

RICHMOND, Nov. 23. — Charges that the Panama Pacific dance hall is conducted as a place of questionable repute were made in the case of E. E. Thayer against Philip Pizzola, proprietor of the dance hall, in the Superior Court at Martinez, Judge A. B. MacKenzie presiding. The Panama Pacific, on San Pablo avenue in Stege, has been investigated recently by the Young Men's Law Enforcement League, under the leadership of Attorney Alvin Gerlach, who is conducting the prosecution of the case.

E. E. Thayer, Cora Studebaker, Clara Wilson and Isaac Lester were the witnesses to be called during the trial.

School Children Give Plymouth Rock Play

RICHMOND, Nov. 23. — The Auditorium was crowded to the overflowing yesterday afternoon when the children of the Lincoln school staged a matinee of their operetta, "On Plymouth Rock." More than 100 children took part in the operetta, which features the old romance of Priscilla and John Alden in the Puritan days. Dances of all kinds were included in the program. The Lincoln school orchestra composed of eight pieces made its initial appearance and was greeted enthusiastically. Howard Lemoin, son of Fire Chief Roy Lemoin, with Inez Parsons, played the leading parts of John Alden and Priscilla.

HAD LOTTERY TICKETS.

RICHMOND, Nov. 23. — Jung Fong, alias Sing Lee, of Crockett, was arrested by the police upon the suspicion that he was carrying lottery tickets with him for sale. The police found a number of lottery tickets on Fong's person while he was standing at the gate of the Pullman car shops waiting for the men to come from work. Fong was released on $20 bail.

LADIES' AID MEETS.

RICHMOND, Nov. 23. — The Ladies' Aid of the First Methodist church will meet at the home of Mrs. H. G. Stidham, 409 Richmond avenue, tomorrow afternoon. Among plans discussed at the meeting is the Christmas bazaar which is being prepared.

London Hotel Keepers Scored

Elaborate Menus Are Condemned

LONDON, Nov. 23.—Walter Runciman, president of the Board of Trade, addressing a meeting of leading London hotel keepers last night, demanded an immediate curtailment of menus. He declared that there must be an immediate and drastic cutting down and a decrease in the use of imported foods.

"I have just seen," he said, "a specimen of a Christmas menu which is being circulated as an advertisement by a leading London hotel. Such an elaborate program would be wasteful, even in peace time, and is little short of scandalous in war time. Such a situation cannot be allowed. All menus must be drastically cut down and there must be one or two fishless and meatless days weekly.

"There must be an immediate decrease in the use of imported foods. Waste is especially noticeable in the use of expensive cakes and confections. If the trade interests will not take the necessary action the government must force them to do so."

Following the meeting the Savoy Hotel announced the cancellation of its special Christmas and New Year's dinners.

GUNMAN TAKEN IN RUNNING BATTLE

Sacramento Constables Capture Desperado in Bloodless Combat.

SACRAMENTO, Nov. 23.—In a running battle with Constables Jack and Victor Garibaldi, Carroll O'Brien fired three shots close to the latter constable's head after the officer's revolver had failed to work, and finally was dragged out from under a house at Fruitridge, four miles from Sacramento, this morning. At the county jail O'Brien admitted he was the man who had shot at the wounded Constable Foot when the latter attempted to capture him last week.

O'Brien crept up on Victor Garibaldi when the officer's revolver snapped this morning, shot at him once from behind a tree, mounted a fence and shot at him again and then crept up to the automobile behind which the constable was hiding and attempting to reach over, fired again.

When his ammunition gave out he ran.

RECLAMATION BODY NOT STATE BOARD?

So Rules Webb; Would Mean Severing Connection With Control Tribunal.

SACRAMENTO, Nov. 23.—If the State Reclamation Board follows the contents of an opinion by the attorney-general, it will sever all business connection with the State Board of Control.

The attorney-general does not tell the board to break away from the state control body, but in an opinion handed down to the latter it is set forth plainly that the Board of Control has no power whatever over the affairs of the State Reclamation Board.

In seeking a ruling on a question, the State Board of Control asked the attorney-general concerning an angle of a recent opinion given by Webb. This former opinion, in short, was: That the Reclamation Board has power to execute an agreement calling for the payment of interest on the unpaid portion of a contract prior to levying an assessment to meet the contract price.

With this as a basis, the Board of Control asked if such contract is valid without approval of the Board of Control.

It is held by the attorney-general that the Reclamation Board is not a "state board"; that it was created to manage the affairs of the Sacramento and San Joaquin drainage district, and is a "district board," and, not being a "state board," it is free from the section of the law which gives to the State Board of Control power over the financial affairs of "state boards."

Claims against the district—the Sacramento and San Joaquin drainage district—do not have to be presented to the State Board of Control for scrutiny, or what is known as a "pre-audit," according to the ruling.

Furthermore, the State Board of Control has no supervision over the funds of the Sacramento and San Joaquin drainage district on deposit in the state treasury.

The State Reclamation Board is free to contract for the performance of work for the district without the supervision or approval of the State Board of Control.

Going outside the question asked, the attorney-general adds to his opinion another important ruling. It is:

Contracts may be let by the Reclamation Board prior to the levying of an assessment.

Land owners may object to the assessment, but they must do so when notice for the levy is made and at a hearing for the purpose; but they cannot object to or interfere with the work or improvements ordered by the board for which the assessment has been levied.

In the opinion it also is set forth that the Reclamation Board's financial affairs are outside the province of the Board of Control because the Reclamation Board's funds are not secured by legislative appropriation; but from assessments levied against the owners of land in the drainage district.

The principle is raised: That the Board of Control has no power over funds which are not state funds; that such funds as are raised by assessments against certain persons only are not under the control of the Board of Control, a state body, created to safeguard state funds and state business.

While the opinion does not bring out the particular details, it naturally creates speculation as to how far it should be followed when applying the principle that the Board of Control has power over such funds as are state funds or are appropriated by legislative enactment.

There are a number of state bodies which operate on funds secured from assessments, fees or other payments from certain persons. The State Fish and Game Commission is one of these; so is the State Board of Dental Examiners.

The opinion was asked by the Board of Control simply to secure a ruling on a question. There is no fight between the two boards, and no controversy exists.

Whether the Reclamation Board intends to put the opinion into operation remains to be seen; and, also, it remains to be seen what, if anything, the Board of Control does in following out the advice of the attorney-general.

Death Threats Are Sent to Avalles

A third threatening letter has been received by Mrs. Maria Avalle, 2527 Greenwich street, San Francisco, important witness for the prosecution in the trial of A. L. Maning, charged with the murder of Stephen Coppi in Emeryville last August, according to Sheriff Barnet, who has obtained the communication.

Last Monday, Mrs. Avalle received the first letter threatening her and her husband with death unless they left the State immediately.

Deputy Sheriffs Joe Soares and J. J. Collier, who are investigating the case, believe that friends of Maning on the outside are interesting themselves in his behalf. It is known that Maning was a member of an opium ring, he having been identified by one of the rings of victims since hise arrest and incarceration on the murder charge.

AUTHOR TO GIVE TALK.

Taking as his subject "The Afric Strain in American Life and Letters," Edward Smyth Jones, author of "The Sylvan Cabin," will address members of the Methodist Episcopal Ministers' Alliance at the Methodist Book Concern, 2 City Hall avenue, San Francisco. The talk is scheduled for 11 o'clock next Monday morning.

BETTER THAN CALOMEL

Thousands Have Discovered Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets are a Harmless Substitute

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets—the substitute for calomel—are a mild but sure laxative, and their effect on the liver is instantaneous. They are the result of Dr. Edwards' determination not to treat liver and bowel complaints with calomel. His efforts brought out these little olive-colored tablets.

These pleasant little tablets do the good that calomel does, but have no bad after effects. They don't injure the teeth like strong liquids or calomel. They take hold of the trouble and quickly correct it. Why cure the liver at the expense of the teeth? Calomel sometimes plays havoc with the gums. So do strong liquids. It is best not to take calomel, but to let Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets take its place.

Most headaches, "dullness" and that lazy feeling come from constipation and a disordered liver. Take Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets when you feel "loggy" and "heavy." Note how they "clear" clouded brain and how they "perk up" the spirits. 10c and 25c.

BEAUTY OF MUSIC IN WISMER EFFORT

With Mrs. Robert Hughes, the Program at Sorosis Hall Is a Success.

By Ray C. B. Brown

Robert Schumann's romantic Sonata in A minor for piano and violin—an expression of passionate fire and emotional Sehnsucht—was given a spirited reading Tuesday evening by Mrs. Robert Hughes and Hother Wismer at their second Sonata recital in Sorosis Hall. Its troubled beauty is like that of a mountain tarn stirred by winds of unrest and dappled with shadows of flying scud. Of the earlier laughter and ebullient spirits of the composer there are only glimpses among the sombre surges.

Like his other piano and violin Sonata in D minor, this work was written when Schumann had already entered the declining phase of his powers It was penned in feverish haste, as though forebodings urged him on, and his disquiet is portrayed in its tumultuous measures. The impassioned utterance struggles against gloomy oppression, attaining only at moments a lyric freedom, and those moments are not enough to dispel the sense of depression.

Of more pleasing effect was the second sonata on the program—that of Marco Enrico Bossi in C major. This composition of the foremost Italian organist is an interesting one, packed with melodic thought and couched in graceful language. If there are traces here and there of the influence of Ponchielli, they are offset by the originality of form and the sparking expression of ideas. Innovations are to be seen in such bits as the two lovely cantabile passages set in the midst of the Scherzo and the Allegro con fuoco.

Wismer's art was displayed to better advantage in this number than in the Schumann sonata, where his tone was not full and warm enough to match the colorful texture of the piano part His technical virtuosity was abundantly proved not only in the sonatas, but in a group of soli of which Sauret's prestissimo "Farfalla" and the double-stopped "La Chasse" of Cartier-Kreisler were most warmly received. Mrs. Hughes' work at the piano was of the delightful quality to which she has accustomed us.

Mrs. Marie Partridge Price, soprano, assisted with a group of five songs. Her most sympathetic renditions were those of Schumann's "Waldesgesprach," Grettchaninov's "Berceuse" and a pleasing setting of Heine's "Du bist wie eine Blume," by Hother Wismer. Her voice is of a lyric quality most effective in the lower and middle registers and her sustained piannissimo tones are admirable.

MAYOR VOTES FOR COMMITTEE

Davie Does Not Oppose Offer of Harbor Development Citizens.

Mayor John L. Davie has apparently changed his attitude toward the citizens' committee of 50 for outer harbor development. Despite his recent pronouncements to the citizens that the committee was in league with the F. M. Smith interests and that he was opposed to its activities, he voted yes this morning on a resolution introduced in the city council by Commissioner H. S. Anderson, accepting "the public-spirited offer of co-operation" made by the committee.

The adopting of the resolution followed the reading of a communication from the committee, signed by Secretary Edward B. Bull and Chairman J. W. Phillips, offering the services of the organization in all matters pertaining to leases of the western waterfront. The committee of eleven which will confer with the commissioners is composed of B. H. Pendleton, R. M. Henninger, G. E. Randolph, Perry Burlingame, Henry Barkmeyer, Joseph E. Caine, Anson S. Blake, Frederick C. Turner, F. A. Briggs, H. K. Jackson and W. H. Oliver.

"I think that this offer should be accepted," declared Commissioner W. H. Edwards.

"This refers only to the western waterfront, does it not?" queried Mayor Davie.

"The communication mentions 'lease or leases,'" replied City Clerk L. W. Cummings.

His honor made no further comment, and when the roll was called, he sat in silent acquiescence.

Entente Forces Fail to Develop Success

SOFIA, Nov. 3.—Attempts of entente forces to develop their success on the Macedonian front by advancing north of Monastir have failed, the war office announces. The statement says:

Between Lake Ochrida and Lake Presba there were engagements with advanced guards of the enemy's infantry pushing forward north of Monastir, which were repulsed. In the Cerna bend all the desperate attacks on Hill 1050, east of Paralovo, were broken by the determined resistance of the German Chaussur Guard.

South of Monastir an enemy airplane was brought down in flames behind the enemy's lines.

Artillery and infantry firing occurred at some places along the Danube. The Rumanians sank their barges on the Danube and destroyed the bridge near Corabia, fifty miles southeast of Cracova, where they set fire to stores of ammunition.

Accountants Complete Audit of County Books

MARTINEZ, Nov. 23.—After more than two months' work, the expert accountants of the State Board of Control have about finished the audit of the Contra Costa county books and records, and Saturday will witness the departure of the corps under the leadership of H. A. Bellows, who has been supervising the work here.

The audit was made at the instance of the grand jury, and it has been a thorough examination. The system followed is that employed in checking up the affairs of the State.

Bellows will submit his report to the Board of Control, which will in turn report to Chairman Otis Loveridge of the grand jury. The report will be made public when the grand jury submits its report at the end of the year.

Burglar Gets Coin and Gems in Haul

The home of Mrs. A. McKellar, 902 Myrtle street, was entered last night by a burglar, who took a purse containing $10.10. Mrs. L. St. John of 3606 Brook street reported the theft of an opal and diamond ring and a child's bank filled with small coins.

Room thefts were reported by T. L. Freeland, 766 Eighth street, and Louis Loung, 315 Eighth street.

Goldfish Are Thieves' Booty

Pools of Pasadena Are Looted of Pets

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 23.—Does somebody believe he can get gold out of goldfish?

Pasadena millionaires are asking that question and the police of the Crown City are seeking the answer.

Several hundred of the beautiful little fish have disappeared from pools at homes in "Millionaires' Row," in the South Orange Grove avenue district.

A thief armed with an electric flashlight is declared to be responsible. The man was seen to bend over the edge of a pond in the grounds of one fine residence, flash the light into the pool, which attracted the fish, which he calmly scooped out with a net and transferred them to a bucket.

Among the pools robbed were those of William Wrigley of South Orange Grove avenue and A. C. Tadder, 679 Arbor street. At the Wrigley place seventy-five fish were stolen, among them being ten of the fantail variety and very costly. Other residents in that section also have complained to the police.

Owners of the pools are wondering how they can rig up burglar alarm systems to protect the remainder of their piscatorial pets.

CLAY HOLDS UP WARRANT FOR COIN

Western Construction Co. Bill for $3,543.14 Causes Action.

Declaring that the work had been done in violation of Section 130 of the city charter, Auditor I. H. Clay this morning rejected a claim of $3543.14 allowed by the City Council to the Western Construction Company for oiling 64,774 square yards of street surface in Stonehurst. The matter was referred to Commissioner W. J. Baccus and the claim will probably be allowed over the auditor's veto.

In a communication to the council, Clay pointed out that on June 29, 1916, the council rejected all bids for oiling streets in the district west of Lake Merritt, from Lake Merritt to Thirteenth avenue and from Thirteenth avenue to Seventy-third avenue, and authorized the Commissioner of Streets to have the work done in open market. Inasmuch as the Stonehurst work does not come in the included districts, he said, a call should have been made for bids.

The Board of Park Directors requested the council to take steps to prevent the erection of a hospital by Dr. M. M. Enos on Bellview avenue directly across from Lakeside Park. The site was declared to be unsuitable for such an institution. This communication was placed on file.

The California Oil Supply Company protested against the public parking stations now maintained in Franklin street, between Eleventh and Fourteenth streets. The compay pays a license of $7.50 a quarter for the privilege of maintaining a parking station at 1018 Franklin street. The matter was referred to Commissioner Jackson.

Chief of Police W. J. Petersen reported that the poolroom of Gus Costa at 1148 Twenty-third avenue has been closed by his orders. He said that minors had been allowed to frequent the place at late hours, and that patrolmen had been unable to obtain entrance to a locked room in which it is presumed that gambling was being carried on.

Contra Costa Growers Pledge Co-operation

SAN JOSE, Nov. 23.—Upon their return from Concord, Contra Costa county, J. H. Boone and Homer Dietrich expressed satisfaction over the success they achieved in bringing the growers of Contra Costa into the Prune and Apricot Growers' Association. The meeting was attended by the representative growers throughout that entire section, and all the growers, with but one exception, pledged their acreage to the new association. In speaking of their trip, Boone said:

"Within ten days I think that we will have all the growers of Contra Costa county. We have a large percentage of them now and the remainder are coming in fast. Next Tuesday we will hold a meeting at Cornwall. We want to clean up this county before we go after growers in other sections.

Experts Witnesses in Queer Damage Suit

SAN JOSE, Nov. 23. — Several distinguished medical authorities testified in behalf of Dr. N. H. Bullock, who is being sued for $10,000 damages by Geo. Pancora, for damages alleged to have been inflicted during a Von Pirquet skin test administered to Pancera, while he was a student in the San Jose normal school.

One of the first witnesses of the day was Dr. William Ophuls, dean of the medical department of Stanford university and professor of pathology. Other prominent witnesses were Dr. Karl Meyer of the Hooper foundation of the University of California medical school; Dr. H. E. Foster and R. W. Stone.

Insanity Defense Offered in Moss Case

SAN JOSE, Nov. 23. — When the defense commenced its case yesterday in the trial of John J. Moss upon a charge of setting fire to the house and burning the two children of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Juarez, it was declared that insanity was to be grounds upon which the defense was to be conducted. K. Lener, the attorney for the defense, made this clear in his opening statement. In their testimony yesterday, Mrs. Evelyn Moss, wife of the accused man; M. Montoyn, a neighbor, and Frank Moss, a brother, all said that Moss had been acting queerly for several years and that they would not have been surprised to know that he had totally lost his mind at any time.

Hollister to Support "Prune Week" Project

HOLLISTER, Nov. 23.—There was a decided impetus given to prune week in Hollister this week, when the Chamber of Commerce committee headed by its president, W. A. Dunlap, took, personally, more than 100 orders for packages of California prunes to be shipped East. It is the belief of W. E. Wilson, who has charge of this work, that before the campaign closes several times this number of orders will be booked. At the next meeting of the chamber on Monday evening an address will be delivered by W. D. Egilbert of the California Development Board of San Francisco, at which time he will speak on matters of vital importance to this section of the country at present.

CAFE MEN FINED.

HAYWARD, Nov. 23. — Mike Hontas and J. Goovoosis, owners of the Palace Cafe, were each fined $30 for violation of the pure food law by Justice of the Peace Charles Prowse. They were alleged to have neglected to keep their restaurant in proper sanitary condition. The charge was sworn out by C. R. Helzer, acting for E. J. Lee, head of the laboratory at the University of California.

EIGHT-HOUR LAW CASE POSTPONED

Counsel for Government and for Railroads Are Trying to Pick Out Single Action on Which to Make Their Fight

Department of Justice Is of the Opinion That Ruling of Judge Hook Should Be a Test on Which to Rest the Big Issue

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Nov. 23.—Counsel in conference over the Adamson law cases agreed today to the request that the Santa Fe case scheduled to come up in the United States District Court in Kansas City, Kansas, be postponed until tomorrow.

The conference, it was stated authoritatively, was to determine whether the record of the case of Missouri, Oklahoma and Gulf, appealed to the supreme court yesterday, could be made to cover the problems of all railroads or whether one or more additional test cases should be brought. Judge Pollock agreed to the postponement.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 23. — Railroad lawyers and Attorney General Gregory continued today their conferences in an attempt to agree on one suit involving test of the Adamson act, to press for early consideration by the Supreme Court. Difficulty in reaching an agreement arose mainly, it is believed, from the anxiety of railroad representatives to pick from the many cases pending in Federal courts one covering typical conditions faced by all roads.

Railroad lawyers thought the Atchison, Topeka and Santa Fe case, set for hearing today at Kansas City involved all points at issue better than any other, but Department of Justice officials were inclined to favor the Missouri, Oklahoma and Gulf case in which Federal Judge Hook of Kansas City held yesterday the Adamson Act unconstitutional. Selection of a test case would relieve the department from defending a multitude of suits already filed, as it is understood all railroads would agree not to press individual suits or institute new actions pending decision in the test case.

Boquel Not Boquet, Widow Tells Court

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 23.—The attempt of Mrs. Gertrude Boquet, a resident of Mexico, to ascertain whether or not she might be the deserted wife of Joseph Boquel, the aviator, killed in a flight at the exposition at San Diego several weeks ago, caused a sensation today in Superior Judge Graham's court. Mrs. Mary Boquel, the widow, set all fears at rest when she testified that she had been married to Boquel eleven years, and, as he was only thirty-two when he died, he could not be Mrs. Boquet's missing spouse.

Postmaster Fay had received a letter from Mrs. Boquet in which she described her husband and declared that he was an aviator and she thought they might be one and the same.

Fisherman Is Held for Family Neglect

Forest Clay preferred to go fishing rather than work at his business as a chicken-picker, according to testimony given this morning at his hearing before Police Judge George Samuels on a charge of failure to provide. Whenever he did work, he said, he almost always found an Oriental stationed at his side, and he has an objection to Oriental labor. His family has been receiving assistance from the Associated Charities. He was held to answer before the superior court.

THE ADAMSON WAGE LAW.

Federal Judge Hook of Kansas yesterday handed down the opinion that the Adamson wage law, passed at the recent session of Congress, is unconstitutional, and thus opened the way for the speedy submission of this question to the Supreme Court of the United States. Attorneys for the railways and for the Department of Justice, which is defending the legality of the Adamson law, were advised to cooperate in enabling the Supreme Court to reach a final decision quickly. The law provides that it become effective January 1 next, and it is the wish of all concerned that the courts pass upon its constitutionality before that date.

The essential phrase which the Supreme Court will be asked to interpret is this:

"That beginning with January 1, 1917, eight hours shall in all contracts for labor and service be deemed a day's work and the measure or standard of a day's work for the purpose of reckoning the compensation for services of all employees who are now or may hereafter be employed by any common carrier, by a railroad."

The railroads have brought injunctions against the United States attorneys in the several District Courts of the country to prevent the enforcement of the Adamson law. They claim that it is a wage law and not an act regulating the hours of labor. Many members of Congress, including Speaker Clark of the House, believed the law to be higher wage legislation when it was up for discussion. Upon the other hand, labor leaders have insisted that it meant only shorter hours of work.

As THE TRIBUNE observed last Sunday, there appears no danger of a revival of strike agitation while the country, as well as the interested parties, are waiting for judicial interpretation of the law. Within the last few days the leaders of the four brotherhoods of operative employees have expressed their willingness to await the judgment of the courts. There is ground for the suspicion that the railway men are not as well satisfied with the law as they were before it had been carefully studied. In their representations before Congress, the employees asked for shorter hours of labor at the same pay as they are earning at present. The law aimed to give them this. But it was stated in Congress that this would mean no extra burden to the railroads, for the latter could easily perform the hundred-mile run—present standard for compensation—in eight hours instead of ten, as at present. This meant that the railroads would get the same amount of labor, or productive effort, out of the employees with eight hours as in ten. This is not altogether a pleasing prospect. What the workmen wanted was less labor in less hours at the same compensation. The impression has been gained that some of the leaders would not be adverse to having the courts declare the Adamson wage law unconstitutional and later take their chances in getting even more favorable legislation out of Congress.

In any event, the country is promised an early decision from the courts upon the constitutionality of this radical legislation; and if it is declared to have been enacted with adequate constitutional authority, the courts will interpret its exact meaning.

EMPEROR FRANCIS JOSEF.

Emperor Francis Josef I, of Austria-Hungary, head of the Hapsburg dynasty, was 86 years old last August. Had he lived until December 1, he would have completed a reign of sixty-seven years. Historians of China and ancient Egypt recorded history in periods of the lives of rulers. A history of Europe, bounded by the reign of Emperor Francis Josef would include some of the most important and vital events in Old World politics and statecraft.

Francis Josef has passed out in a period much like the one in which he entered upon his Emperorship. He has had to discharge as heavy tasks as ever were placed upon the shoulders of a ruler. His predecessor in charge of the Hapsburg fortunes, the Emperor Ferdinand, left him a legacy of trouble, difficult state problems and complex intrigues. The Austrian state was a mixture of warring factions and showed every sign of disintegration. It has been the curious fate of Francis Josef to lose nearly all his wars, yet escape the appearance of being a loser. In the beginning of his reign he was forced to compromise the Vienna revolt at a loss of dignity, and call upon Russia to assist him in compelling Hungary to remain under his rule. He gave up the primacy of German states at Sandowa and was compelled by France to return to Italy provinces over which he claimed sovereignty.

Francis Josef has frequently been credited with being an earnest proponent of peace; yet he was forced to bear the onus of the crisis caused in 1908 by the annexation of Bosnia and Herzogovinia, from which largely developed the causes of the Balkan war of 1911 and 1913. As to the present war, his enemies have vehemently charged him with being its main cause through his desire for revenge for the murder of Archduke Ferdinand and his consort at Sarajevo. Calmer students of the great conflict, however, will place the assassination of the Archduke as only an incident in a series of causes extending over many years.

As Francis Josef lived in trouble, so he died. If he received any news during the closing days of his feebleness it was not altogether encouraging. His troops had been driven back by the Italians in the Trentino; Von Mackensen had not yet stopped the furious Russian offensive in Galicia; Monastir, upon the eve of his death, fell into the hands of the Serbians and their allies. With its interests inseparably joined with its ally, Germany, the Austrian nation may have been said to be in a life and death struggle, as it apparently was upon Francis Josef's accession to the Hapsburg scepter.

With its congeries of many races, its many interests, and conflicting aspirations, the fate of Austria-Hungary may be uncertain in new hands. The fact that the monarchy is at war with other nations may consolidate the people for a while in a common cause; upon this rests the largest measure of hope for Austro-Hungarian solidarity.

ARTICHOKES.

California's 1916 artichoke crop is a record-breaker, exceeding last year's large production by twenty-five percent. The artichoke is a homely vegetable but of great virtue; it grows most luxuriously around the edges of gardens, in ravines and along irrigation ditches. Indeed, it may be considered a by-product of gardening, in that it thrives in small corners and angles of farms inconvenient to reach with cultivating machinery.

This State produces practically all the artichokes of commerce in the United States. As the output of the vegetable increases some attention should be given to means for increasing its popularity in eastern sections of the United States. Only an absurdly small proportion of easterners know an artichoke when they see it. Tourists inspecting Oakland markets have been observed to regard it with unfeigned curiosity and finally to inquire what the thing was. It is apparent that they have never enjoyed the epicurean luxury of artichoke boiled in plain water and served with mayonnaise, or, better still, a seductive dish more tediously constructed out of the artichoke's tender heart.

Having staged citrus "days" in Chicago and other eastern distributing points with conspicuous success, the California gardeners and commission houses should put on an "artichoke day" in the East. The artichoke is not an article exclusively for those who have become newly-rich in the munition trade and started out to devour their winnings by consuming two or three meals a night, along New York's white way; its flavor and nutriment are also within reach of the bricklayer and the plumber, the farmer and the writer. As literary food it is superior to the Indiana pawpaw and the Kentucky persimmon, the Massachusetts bean and the North Carolina pine cone. The artichoke should be more widely known.

When the sixty-fifth Congress convenes next year two new faces will appear on the Democratic side of the Senate which are sure to attract unusual interest. They are Hon. Peter Goelet Gerry of Rhode Island and Hon. Josiah Oliver Wolcott of Delaware. Both are descendants of famous American families. Senator-elect Gerry is a wealthy society leader and polo player and he succeeds Senator Lippitt, a cotton mill owner. His great-grandfather was Vice-President in 1812 in the Presidency of Madison. Mr. Wolcott's ancestors have loomed large in American political history; one of them, Oliver Wolcott of Connecticut, was a signer of the Declaration of Independence and his son, also Oliver, was secretary of the treasury from 1795 to 1800. Senator-elect Wolcott is now attorney-general of Delaware and he won the seat of Senator Henry A. DuPont of powder-making fame. These new senators are comparatively young men, both being 39. They will have plenty of opportunity to display their energy and ability.

In disapproving a prison sentence for a husband who had been convicted of failure to provide for his family, and expressing himself in favor of commitment to a rock pile in such cases, Judge Ogden took the right view. The man who fails to provide is invariably lazy and devoid of pride as well as filial feeling, and sentencing him to be supported in idleness for a term is no punishment. Put him to breaking rocks, however, and he is pretty sure to realize that he may as well work of his own volition.

Figures given out by the federal Department of Agriculture place this year's orange crop of the United States at 23,835,000 boxes, of which 17,500,000 were grown in California. This State thus produced about three-fourths of the oranges grown in America, and 2,450,000 boxes more than last year.

NEW ERA FOR ALASKA.

(Seattle Times.)

The commission's plans for a continuation of work during 1917 on the Alaska railroad furnish proof that the coming year will be one of the most important in the history of that great enterprise. Nine thousand men, double the present force, will be engaged on the line and steel will be laid from both ends, practically in the amount that is available at the time.

Furthermore, it is probable that the first large shipments of coal will be sent out from the territory to meet the demand of the western naval bases, which now are supplied from mines on the Atlantic coast. It may be, as well, that Puget Sound will receive its first commercial shipments of Alaska fuel, particularly the harder grades that are expected to find a ready market all along the coast.

The opening up of the country through the railroad work to date has had a stimulating effect on farming. There are between 500 and 1000 homesteaders in the district to the north and south of Anchorage and the agricultural land is being developed with desirable rapidity. The commission expects to purchase a large quantity of fresh vegetables in Alaska and recently placed orders with these growers for 400 tons of potatoes. Additional purchases will be made in the near future.

In other words, everything that had been anticipated when the railroad project was under consideration is coming true. Given a chance, the territory is expanding, just as the American west expanded. Five years hence, Alaska coal will be used exclusively in Alaska industries and Alaska farm products will be sold in every Pacific Coast market from Nome to San Diego.

NOTES and COMMENT

There might be a less admirable person than the one who stole the chickens of the blind Berkeley man, but he hasn't been disclosed in these parts lately.

* * *

In the proposed revision of the State automobile law, racing through public streets will undoubtedly be prohibited. The recent disasters at Santa Monica clinched it.

* * *

Overt idea of the Redding Courier-Free Press: "Newspapers are making much of the liberal scale on which election clerks are being paid. For the results of their tabulations they should be fined, not paid."

* * *

The Philadelphia Inquirer has been excavating and reports: "The further one digs into it, the more one becomes convinced that California's silent vote for the Presidency was due to a whisper from Hi Johnson."

* * *

That they have put "Sir" Harry Westwood Cooper in jail for life in Australia must be taken as a move that will curtail his activities. There is no marrying or giving in marriage there, and he hasn't a chance.

Senator Tillman is referred to as the Senate's extinct volcano. Time certainly was when it was accounted a dull sitting without an eruption of verbal fire, smoke and melted lava from the pyrotechnic South Carolinian.

* * *

Lese majeste by the Stockton Mail: "It is understood that Lieutenant-Governor Stephens has been listed as an exhibit at the next State Fair. He is a prize pumpkin, produced by the fertilization of H. W.'s senatorial ambition."

The latest news concerning the election results in California which have inspired such unusual editorials in Eastern newspapers and general wonder throughout the country, is that Governor Johnson has gone duck hunting.

One of the extremely sad occurrences in this day of national disappointments and world disasters; this time of war devastation and apprehensions for the future, is the destruction by fire of $50,000 worth of beans at Marysville.

The reader may have been somewhat nonplussed upon encountering the heading, "State Must Insure Meet Hears." It captions an account of the deliberations of the State Social Insurance Commission, but remains a mystery, notwithstanding.

Another election bet is reported by the Riverside Press: "An enthusiastic Hughes woman in the Imperial valley bet her best hat that the Republican candidate would be elected. She paid the bet all right, but was foresighted enough to remove all the trimming."

* * *

The Redding Searchlight thus discourses on the obtuseness of chambers of commerce: "San Rafael has the toughest kid in forty-seven States as its personal property, but proceeded to exile him. Some chambers of commerce do not know enough to come in out of the moisture in the matter of getting publicity."

* * *

Our national uncle is announced as having shipped 16,000 pounds of turkey to Honolulu for the Thanksgiving dinners of his soldiers. The announcement is particular to motion that the turkeys came from Tuare, which may be important to the growers there, but to the soldier in Hawaii at Thanksgiving time a turkey is a turkey.

* * *

Important explanation by the Marysville Appeal: "The reason the famous Atkins theater cat has not made that impressive promenade across the stage during the last few days is that she has presented the theater with a new litter of kittens. Within a few days the celebrated feline will resume her sedate walks in front of the screen during the most exciting moments of the play."

* * *

It is going to be a tight fit to get the State's election returns ready for report by next Monday night, the time the law stipulates for their official promulgation. That will be just twenty days after the election, which would seem to be time and to spare for the counties to report in. And the delay seems to have been largely with small up-State counties, where computation ought to have been easy.

SPIRIT OF THE STATE PRESS

McFarland colony received a round $100,000 for its alfalfa this year. At an average price of $12 a ton this is a harvest of more than 8000 tons, a very good showing in production at least.—Bakersfield Echo.

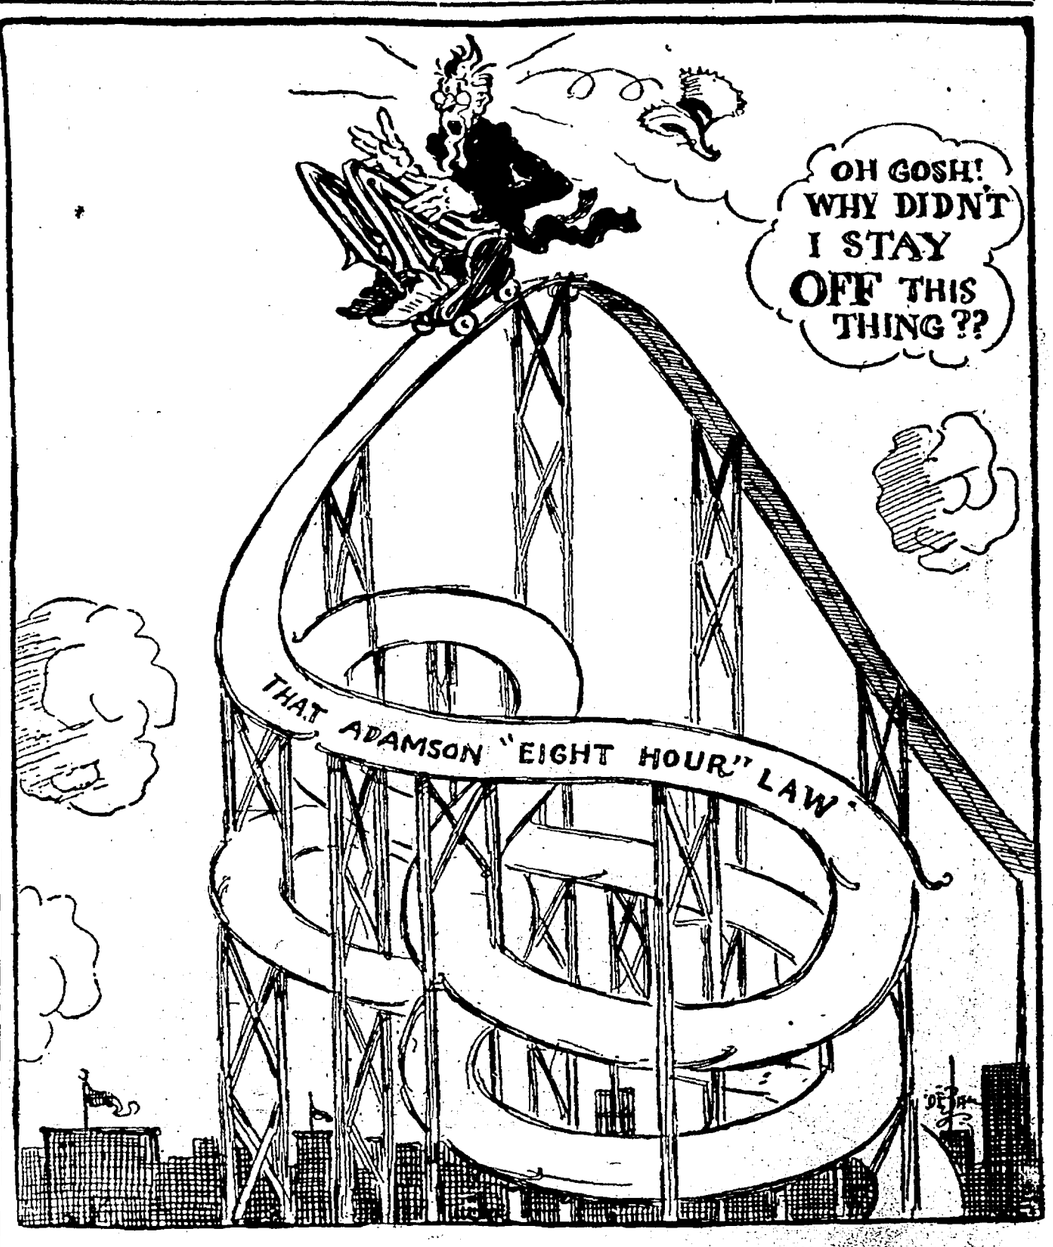

Trinity county this year raised more potatoes than ever in its history. The farmers do not know what to do with them and hundreds of bushels will rot. In Redding potatoes are selling at $3 per sack. One of the answers is bad roads.—Redding Courier-Free Press.

A demand for shorter hours and an increase in wages for all Italian vineyard and orchard laborers was made at a meeting held Monday. The demand is dated to take effect at once, and unless met favorably the work of pruning vineyards and orchards may be postponed until other labor can be secured. Last year the price paid per day was $2 for eleven hours' labor. The demand is for a nine-hour day at $2.25.—Tulare Advance.

Here it is virtually two weeks after the election and only complete returns from forty-two out of the fifty-eight counties received at the secretary of state's office. The official count or canvass is still under way and must by law be completed not later than November 27. Isn't all this delay a frightful commentary on our inefficient election machinery?—Hanford Sentinel.

"Oh, send us rains that the cold snap may be broken and our olive crop saved," pray the olive growers. "Continue the present weather for eight more days that we may harvest our crops and bring them into the shelter," is the appeal of the rice growers. Thus Butte growers have divided against each other in their supplications. Apparently the rice growers have the edge on the situation at present, but the olive growers are still hopeful.—Oroville Register.

IS MONTANA WOMAN ELIGIBLE FOR SEAT IN CONGRESS?

To the Editor of The Tribune:

There has been a woman elected to Congress in Montana. Truly, this is a "progressive" age. But is a female eligible to a seat in Congress. Let us see.

The Federal Constitution, which is the fundamental law of the nation, is both mandatory and permissive. In its mandatory character it tells us what we must do, and what we must not do. In its permissive character, it tells what we are allowed or permitted to do at our discretion.

Every article, section, paragraph, line, word and syllable in this supreme, basic document has a definite meaning. Every law enacted by the National Congress, the legislatures of the state, the law-making bodies of counties, cities and towns must be in conformity to it; otherwise they will be null and void, and of no effect.

The second clause of the second section of article one of the Constitution says:

"No person shall be a representative who shall not have attained to the age of 25 years, and been seven years a citizen of the United States, and who shall not, when elected, be an inhabitant of that state in which he shall be chosen."

Observe the word "he," for everything depends upon its definition.

When questions arise as to the meaning of words occurring in official or legal documents, they are uniformally determined by reference to standard dictionary definitions. Referring to Webster's dictionary (which is acknowledged to be standard), we find the first definition (which always has the preference) of the word "he" to be: "The man or male person named before. A pronoun of the masculine gender, usually referring to a specied subject already indicated."

In the case we are considering, the "specified subject" to which the pronoun "he" refers is the person who shall be the Representative in Congress. The inference then is, and it cannot be escaped, that the Constitution contemplates a "male person" to be such representative.

It may be argued that Congress has the right to determine the qualifications of its own members, but even the Congress of the United States cannot go beyond its constitutional limitations. The whole subject may be thus summarized: If the word "he" in the article of the Constitution which defines the qualifications of a representative in Congress be held to mean a "male person," a person of the "masculine gender," as Webster says it does, then no woman is entitled to a seat in Congress.

I should be very sorry to see Miss Rankin deprived of a seat in Congress, but from the foregoing facts the chances seem to be against her. The fair representative-elect from the "Stubtoe State" is not a "male person"—not a "he."

J. W. DUTTON.

A NEEDED REFORM.

To the Editor of The Tribune:

Our Presidential elections are getting mixed up with too many questions which do not enter into national politics and only concern the States—such as the liquor regulation, labor regulation and all amendment to State constitutions, and referendum, recall and initiative propositions. These should be excluded from consideration at any election where federal officers are to be chosen.

The names of candidates for electors, Senators and Representatives in Congress should be the only ones allowed on the ballot, but the names of the candidates for the office of President should appear at the head of every electoral ticket.

The late election has demonstrated that this reform is much needed. The national election in November should be a square political contest without being mixed up with all manner of local fights which only distract the attention of the voter from the object sought, which is the choosing of the federal officers.

This reform could be brought about by a simple act of Congress prohibiting the voting of any ticket other than those containing the names of the candidates for federal officers.

FIRE PREVENTION.

To the Editor of The Tribune:

I have before me a copy of your issue of October 22, giving an illustrated article under the heading, "Don't Fight Fire, Prevent It." Such an article is an extremely valuable piece of service to the cause of fire prevention, since the most prolific source of fires is that of American carelessness. The amazing and inexcusable extent to which the United States loses life and property through preventable fires indicates the necessity for arousing the public to a consciousness of its peril and its duties. The burden of such educational work must fall upon such influential and public spirited journals as The TRIBUNE, and I earnestly hope that you will find occasion for frequent reflection upon the subject.

Yours very truly,

W. E. WALLMAN,

General Manager, National Board of Fire Underwriters.

CARSO—WONDERFUL BATTLEFIELD

The Carso, or Karst plateau as it is more familiarly known, the scene of the newly inaugurated Italian offensive against the Austrians, is the subject of the following war geography bulletin issued from the Washington headquarters of the National Geographic Society:

"So distinctive in appearance is that Austrian limestone plateau known as the Karst (Italian form, Carso) that the term 'karst landscape,' is now frequently employed to define similar regions barren of vegetation, 'pock-marked' with limesinks and grottoes, and seamed with subterranean streams which now and then appear suddenly above the ground, then disappear again.

"The Karst plateau rises some distance to the south of the city of Gorizia, on the Isonzo, one of the most important Austrian strongholds captured by the Italians since they entered the war. The elevation extends to the southeast, varying in width from sixty to ninety miles. It forms a boundary between the Austrian duchy of Carniola, to the northeast, and the Istrian peninsula which juts into the Adriatic below Trieste.

"The Wippach or Vippach river, which flows along the northern base of the plateau, is one of the tributaries of the Isonzo. The Italians were forced to fight their way across the valley of this stream in order to gain the Karst heights from which to continue the drive against Trieste.

"The Karst plateau has not always been a barren waste of gray rock. In ancient times the heights are said to have been covered with magnificent forests, but the Romans ruthlessly destroyed these trees to secure timber for their galleys. In recent years the Austrian government has gone systematically about the task of making this district once more a forestland, and the traveler frequently finds groves of young larch and pine which have been planted in pursuance of this plan.

"Among the most striking features of the Karst plateau are its numerous caves and grottoes, formed by subterranean rivers. The most famous of these is the Grotto of Adelsberg, fifty miles by rail northeast of Trieste. Before the war it was much frequented by tourists, on whom the 3800 inhabitants of Adelsberg thrived. The grotto is lighted by electricity and there are safe paths through the 'Ball Room,' 'the Ferdinand Grotto,' the 'Brilliant,' the 'Belvedere' and other compartments, some of which are 150 feet in length and others as much as 165 feet high. Through the 'Cathedral,' a room 150 feet long and nearly 100 feet high, there flows the river Polk or Pivka, which becomes a subterranean stream in the vicinity of the Grotto.

"Many of the pools and streams in the caverns of the Karst contain a curious kind of fish which constitutes an important article of food for the peasants of the region, while above ground the stony wastes are infested with poisonous reptiles."

"Oh, just a few hot weather hints on how to keep cool," replied the fat man.

"But summer is over now."

"I know it. I'm checking off the suggestions I tried so I won't waste any time trying them again next summer."—Birmingham Age-Herald.

VOL. LXXXVI. OAKLAND, CALIFORNIA, THURSDAY EVENING, NOVEMBER 23, 1916. NO. 94.

JACK LONDON, NOVELIST AND ESSAYIST, WILL BE GIVEN QUIET FUNERAL HERE

AUTHOR TO BE BURIED IN OAKLAND

The body of Jack London will be brought home to Oakland for burial tomorrow.

It was the wish of the writer, expressed but a few days ago, that in the event of his death, his ashes be interred in the city in which he had played as a boy, he grew to manhood and received what little academic schooling he had, and in which his mother, Mrs. Flora London, still lives.

Mrs. Flora London is seriously ill, and has not been told of the death of her son.

Arrangements for a simple funeral service were made this morning at Glen Ellen. Following London's wishes, the body is to be incinerated and the ashes buried in the family plot in this city.

The funeral party will arrive in Oakland shortly before noon. Accompanying the body will be the widow, Mrs. Charmion K. London; Mrs. Elizabeth K. Shepherd, a sister, and London's secretary, J. Byrne. In Oakland the party will be joined by Miss Bess and Miss Joan London, and their mother, from whom the author was divorced, ten years ago.

EXPRESS SYMPATHY.

Messages of condolence reached the widow today, not only from California friends and admirers, but from noted writers and acquaintances from all sections of the country.

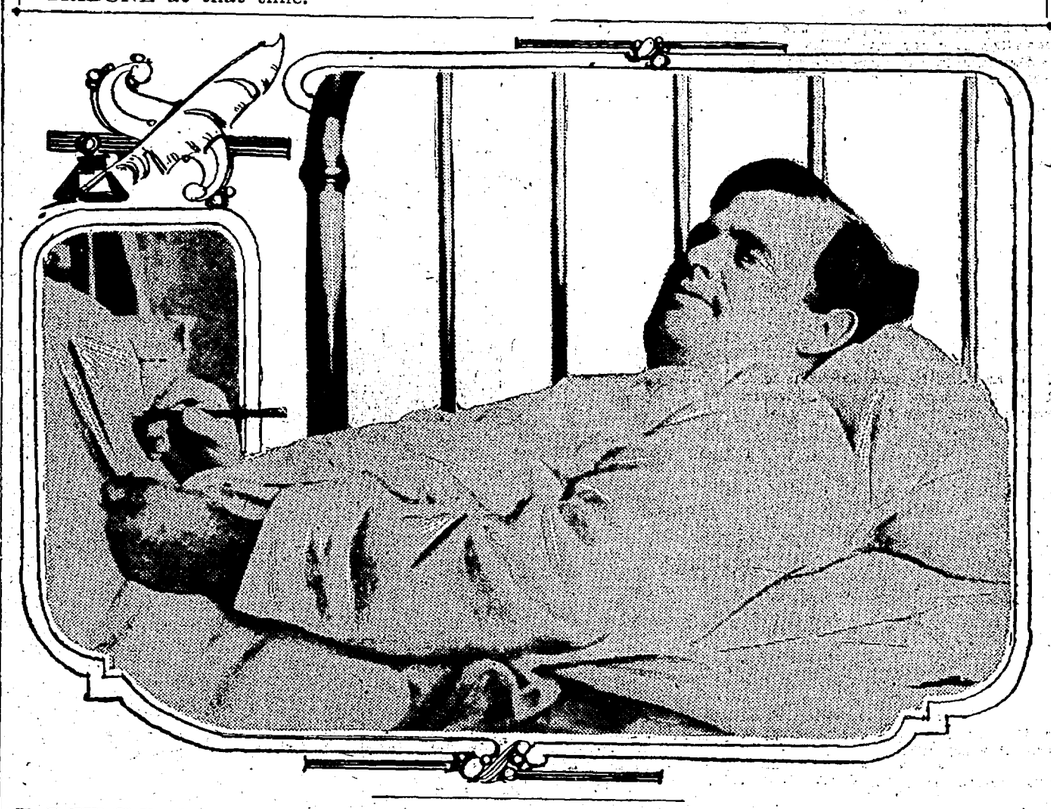

London's death was sudden. Wednesday morning, when his Japanese valet went to waken his master, he found London unconscious in bed. Physicians were summoned, who declared the author was suffering from a touch of ptomaine poisoning or acute indigestion. London was roused with difficulty, but recovered consciousness before noon and then appeared to be recovering rapidly.

This was only a temporary recovery, however, and London soon lost consciousness again. He did not revive before death, which occurred at 7:45 last night. Attending physicians say he died from a gastrointestinal type of uraemia.

London, it is said today, was rapidly becoming rich when he died. For several years his work has been in great demand and publishers were

HEINOLD TELLS EARLY LIFE WAS 'BARLEYCORN' CHARACTER

Saloonman Says Friend Was Determined "Finisher"

By Johnny Heinold.

So Jack London is dead. Too bad, too bad. Just forty years of age and in the prime of his manhood and usefulness and at the height of his fame.

He was one of a million men to rise the way he did from a poor, half-naked kid in spite of the things that went against him in the start.

But there was one thing that could not be downed in Jack London. That was his determination in finishing anything he started. He was a great finisher, Jack. When he set his mind upon accomplishing anything it was as good as done.

Don't I remember him as a little fellow? He was ambitious then, full of ginger and eager to get an education.

"Education is the only thing to make a man out of me," he told me.

PLASTER NO GOOD.

I said to him:

"Jack, it will do you no good if you only make a plaster of it."

He replied confidently that he would make the best of it. He got the education all right and he didn't make a plaster of it either. By a plaster I mean an education that is stuck on the outside and no good on the inside.

When Jack started to high school I loaned him money to buy books. My, but he was a great reader. Again I loaned him money when he went to the University. He always paid me back, for Jack was a square shooter.

"As a boy he used to pick up rope and other junk from around the whalers in the estuary and sell the stuff. He would always weigh it himself, and if he had a hundred pounds he would get paid for a hundred.

SAILED WITH SEA WOLF.

He knew all of the rough waterfront characters of the whaling days that are now about gone around here. He sailed with Captain Alexander McLean on the "Sophie Sutherland," a sealer. Captain McLean was the original of the "Sea Wolf," one of the toughest old mariners that ever sailed out of a port. He ratly boasted that everything north of 46 degrees belonged to him.

When Jack got a little older he went around with the gang known as the oyster pirates. I loaned him $10 and made out the bill of sale for the "Razzle Dazzle," a thirty-foot, flat-bottomed skiff in which they cruised down to the oyster beds with a makeshift mutton-leg sail.

I remember one day Jack came in here with $23 in his pocket. He told me that he was going to buy a suit of clothes. I told him to run along and get the suit before he spent the money. He went out, met the gang and they all went to Josie Harper's saloon. He came back later dead broke, but that did not bother him.

WRITERS CAME, TOO.

Jack was a great fellow to eat candy as well as read books. He always had a pocket-full.

Since he became wealthy he has made many visits here. He never came to Oakland but what he called upon me. Also he sent dozens of writers from all over the world who visited him at his home to see me here. One man he thought a lot of was Richard Harding Davis.

I could tell Jack blocks away. He would come along with that swinging gait of his, never wearing a vest, always with a black tie flowing from his shirt front. He would come in and lay two or three dollars on the bar and no one could buy while he stayed. I never knew a man to enjoy company more than he.

How he would laugh when we sat around talking about old days. Those were some days all right. There will never be any more like them around here. The old crowd is gone.

WITH KELLY'S ARMY.

He always wanted me to visit him at his ranch, but I couldn't get away very well as I had no bartender I could leave to handle my business. I knew if I ever got up there I would not get away for a month—Jack was just that way with all of his friends.

I could not but help admire his ambition. When Kelly's army started from Oakland in the old Elmira and got dumped near Sacramento Jack came in here one day and said that he had joined Kelly's gang. I thought he was crazy, but on the quiet he told me he was going along to write articles for a San Francisco newspaper.

When he got to Sacramento he was pinched and thrown into the cooler by a cop who caught him crawling out from under the brake beams where he had ridden from a small town down the line.

HEART WAS RIGHT.

It was not so long after that he rode into Sacramento in an automobile and some people remembered how he arrived before. Jack London's life was an early struggle. He loved rough ways and he sought to understand what they meant, to know the men he associated with. They were all characters for his study. While on the outside he was rough and ready, innermost he maintained high ideals that carried him through and which ultimately gave him the success of his desire.

And now he's gone. Somehow they always get the fellows the world needs most, don't they?

Barkeep Aided Boy Praised in Return

Johnny Heinold knew Jack London when he was a ragged urchin hunting a living on the waterfront. Heinhold, in his "First and Last Chance" saloon, down near the Webster street bridge, watched over the destiny of young London and gave him generously of advice and money. What London thought of Johnny Heinhold is told here in a quotation from "John Barleycorn." Johnny, too, has written his appreciation of the author.

Jack Has Good Things to Say About Johnny

When Johnny Heinold wrote to Jack London complimenting him upon the success of "John Barleycorn," the author replied from Glen Ellen, March 24, 1910:

Dear Johnny: I am glad you like the stuff that the Saturday Post is publishing. Farther along in it I say all kinds of good things about you. One thing you will especially remember, how you loaned me money when I started to high school and to the university. I bring all that into the story.

Say, when are you going to take a run up to see us on the ranch? I shall always look for your coming and shall be disappointed if you do not come. Sincerely yours,

JACK LONDON.

PRAISE FOR HEINOLD.

Here is what Jack London wrote about Johnny Heinold in "John Barleycorn," referred to in the letter:

For a year and a half I never took a drink or thought of taking a drink.

Come to think of it, I did enter a saloon. I went to see Johnny Heinold, in the Last Chance, and I went to borrow money. And right here is another phase of John Barleycorn. Saloonkeepers are notoriously good fellows. On an average they perform vastly greater generosities than do business men. When I simply had to have ten dollars, desperate, with no place to turn, I went to Johnny Heinold.

FOLLOWED CODE.

Several years had passed since I had been in his place or spent a cent across his bar. And when I went to borrow the ten dollars I didn't buy a drink, either. And Johnny Heinold let me have the ten dollars without security or interest.

More than once in the brief days of my struggle for an education I went to Johnny Heinold to borrow money. When I entered the university I borrowed $40 from him without buying a drink, and yet, in the days of my prosperity, after the lapse of years, I have gone out of my way by many a long block to spend across Johnny Heinold's bar deferred interest on the various loans.

Not that Johnny Heinold asked me to do it. I did it, as I have said, in obedience to the code I had learned along with all the other things connected with John Barleycorn.

Sad Loss to American Literature Mourned

By Upton Sinclair.

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 23.—In the death of Jack London, American literature suffers the greatest loss which it could possibly suffer today. He was one of America's most popular writers, but American critics have yet to realize what a supremely great writer he was. To foresee the judgment of posterity we have to go to foreign countries. In Germany and Russia, to name only two countries, Jack London stands for present day American literature.

He is and will remain one of the great revolutionary forces in American letters. His work is a bugle call to the human soul, especailly to the youth of the people seeking a way to freedom and justice. It may be that I am not an unprejudiced critic, but I have Jack London's own support for my opinion that the finest of his writings are the Socialist essays which he wrote for love only.

Stockton Politician Named in Divorce

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 23. — Charles Henry Morey, former wealthy Stockton grocer and one time mayoralty candidate there, was made defendant in a divorce action begun here today by May R. Morey on charges of failure to provide and intemperance.

It is understood that Morey has lost most of his money and that he is now in Los Angeles following a roving career which took him to the mining camps of Alaska and Nevada.

WRITER WAS SOUGHT BY PUBLISHERS

As a writer of short stories and of novels Jack London was known around the world. His work has been under contract with publishers for as much as five years in advance, and his annual income from his pen was over $50,000.

To his gift as a teller of tales he added his knowledge of sociology and economics, a store upon which he drew heavily in his earlier works. As times grew easier with him his style became less rugged and the "cave man" stories for which he became famous were supplanted by more mildly handled themes.

"Before Adam," a story of aboriginal man, is used as a text in some universities and is considered that it gives a cleverly handled portrayal of early human evolution.

London's secretary today estimated that the novelist's income from his writings at the time of his death averaged about 20 cents a word. He habitually wrote 1000 words a day and this would make his annual income from new literary work about $53,000.

POSTHUMOUS WORKS.

So far as the secretary knows, the only finished work by London which has not been published consists of two novels, two short dog stories and several Hawaiian tales. Arrangements for publication of these have been concluded. At the time of his death London was working on a novel of Hawaiian life called "Cherry," which was well advanced. It is understood that Mrs. London will either complete the novel herself or will engage some other writer to complete it. How much other unfinished work London had started is not known.

The novelist's five-year contract with Eastern publishers would have expired next year. Recently a representative of an Eastern company was at Glen Ellen to induce London to renew his contract and London had purchased railroad tickets and arranged to leave San Francisco next Wednesday for New York to discuss the matter of a contract. He expected to return to Glen Ellen in February, when he hoped to be able to visit either Japan or Norway—he was undecided which.

WAS WANDERER.

Swayed by interest in sociology and economics, London tramped thousands of miles back and forth over the United States and Canada. He was jailed many times on his transcontinental tramps. London repeated his vagabond career in London's East End, the result being his volume, "The People of the Abyss."

London returned to Oakland when he was 18, and entered high school. He next entered the University of California, but promptly withdrew at the request of the faculty after he had commandeered a street car. This was in 1897. Impelled by the discovery of gold in the Klondike, he was among the first to join the rush to Alaska.

There, in the still white world of the north, where man learns the awful significance and emphasis of the Arctic life, London came consciously into his heritage. It might almost be said that London's actual development as a writer began on the trail. London stayed in Alaska for a year, when scurvy forced him to seek a less rigorous climate.

The instinct to write, which came to him on the Klondike trails, found issue soon after his return in brilliant short stories of Alaskan life, but the big book that came out of London's Alaskan experiences was "The Call of the Wild."

One of London's best stories, "The Sea Wolf," the principal character of which is Wolf Larsen, one of the most dominant and striking characters in fiction of this generation. "The Sea Wolf" is considered to contain more of London and his philosophy of life than anything he ever wrote.

BOOKS WIDELY READ.

London was a prolific writer. Every day of the year, according to those who knew his habits of industry, London wrote 1000 words—no more, no less. At the time of his death his contracts called for 10 cents a word. His income is said to have been close to $40,000 a year, not to mention royalties from motion-picture companies.

London's best-known volumes were "The Sea Wolf," "Before Adam," "The Valley of the Moon," "Martin Eden," "The Call of the Wild," "White Fang," "Tales of the Fish Patrol," "Children of the Frost," "The Iron Heel," "War of the Classes," "People of the Abyss," "Moon Face," "The Game" and "Love of Life."

London recently returned from a long sojourn in Hawaii, his most recent contributions being descriptive stories of the land he expected to make his winter home.

Woman Is Named on County Board Of Education

Mrs. Edna Overacker to Succeed McDonald

Mrs. Edna Overacker, wife of Charles B. Overacker of Niles, and for a number of years trustee of the Niles school district, was today appointed to the county board of education to fill the place left vacant by the death of William McDonald of Livermore. The appointment was moved by Supervisor Murphy, in whose district McDonald lived.

Owing to the failure of the Public Welfare Commission to meet with the board this morning, through inability to get its members together, the board fixed Monday afternoon for a conference with the commission. This conference has been arranged at the request of the commission, for the purpose of further discussing the question of a county hospital site.

FISH TO BE TARGET IN COSTS WAR

Women Will Unite to Combat High Living Prices; Say Sea Food Is Dumped in Bay to Keep Up Price; Probe Matter

Mass Meetings to Consider the Plans for Concerted Attack on Expenses; Speakers Will Tell of Situation in Market

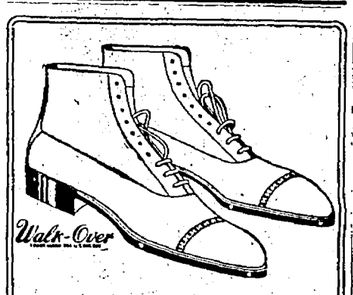

BERKELEY, Nov. 23.—Upon the exorbitant charges made for fish, which the women of the Berkeley Federation of Mothers' Clubs believe to be an excellent article of diet, they have determined to make the first onslaught in their projected warfare against the high cost of living. Mrs. W. T. Cleverdon, chairman of a special investigating committee of the federation, stated today that it was hoped to have the projected mass meeting here the evening of November 28 at the high school, and that definite announcement would be made at once of the date.

That tons of fish are being dumped almost daily into San Francisco bay to keep up the present high prices of the commodity is a cirge made by the women and one which they propose further to investigate. Charles Wesley Reed, who was the author of a fish law introduced into the State Legislature, has been sent an invitation to address the meeting and explain the shortcomings of the substitute legislation which finally carried.

Another speaker will be Frank C. Connolly, state secretary of the Retail Grocers' Association. Connolly stated today that the retailers are as anxious as the mothers to find some solution of the present high cost of foodstuffs. The retailers, he declared, had been hit just as hard as the consumers, and they were in a postion moreover to appreciate how much worse conditions would grow as the winter season advanced.

The mass meeting planned here is to be chiefly educational in its purpose. It will be open to the public. A similar meeting is contemplated by the Oakland Federation of Mothers' Clubs to be held in that city.

An informal meeting of the members of the executive committee of the Berkeley Federation was held yesterday, at which preliminary plans for the campaign was made. Members of the committee are in receipt of information that women in other cities of the State are ready to advance against the high cost of living abreast with the federationists about the bay.

LONDON TO BE BURIED IN OAKLAND

paying him as high as ten cents a word. It is estimated that his income from his writings alone has been at least $40,000 a year for several years, and this does not include motion picture and other rights.

He spent large sums on his Glen Ellen ranch and he often made the remark that he had to write stories to pay the expenses of his farm.

SUFFERED FOR YEARS.

At first it was thought London was suffering from ptomaine poisoning, but it later appeared that a severe form of uraemia had set in.

When Dr. J. Wilson Shiels, a close friend of the author, was summoned from San Francisco he declared London's condition to be serious.

He seemed to rally about noon, but when the relapse came he sank swiftly to the end and did not regain consciousness.

According to Dr. Shiels, since London was operated on four years ago by Dr. William S. Porter, his family physician, he has suffered from weak kidneys. Despite the fact that his physician warned him of this, he did not seem to agree with them and continued his work as usual.

London, who was 40 years of age, is survived by his wife, Mrs. Charmion K. London; two daughters, Joan and Bess, students in the Oakland high school; his mother, Mrs. Flora London of Oakland, and his sister, Mrs. Eliza Shepard. At the bedside when the end came were the wife and sister.

London was 10 when he came from San Francisco, where he was born, to Oakland, and it was here that he said he "fell into Paradise in the shape of a free library." His father, John London, was a trapper, scout and frontiersman, who came to San Francisco in 1873. The first ten years of his life were lived on California ranches, and then his parents moved to Oakland. At 6 years of age he was reading Trowbridge's books for boys and Captain Cook's voyages; at 8 he was deep in Ouida and Washington Irving.

BECOMES WANDERER.

London was graduated from the Oakland Grammar School at 15, and a few months later he drifted into adventure. A nomadic strain in his blood, nourished by reading and romantic speculation, soon led London to leave home. In his search for adventure among the scum population of San Francisco's waterfront, London lost his romantic ideals and replaced them with the real romances of things. He became, in turn, a salmon fisher and oyster pirate, a fish patrolman, a longshoreman and a general bay-faring adventurer.

Frightens Burglar From Jewelry Store

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 23.—Two burglars with their eyes fixed on large loot, attempted to break into two jewelry stores in the north beach shopping district at an early hour this morning. In each instance they were forced to flee empty-handed.

The presence of mind of Mrs. Mary Jorgens, who lives at the Fair Hotel, 1323 Stockton street, was responsible for saving the premises of B. Olivier, a jeweler, 1308 Stockton street, from being entered. The burglars had smashed the glass panel on the front door and were about to make their way in when Mrs. Jorgens, who lives directly opposite, heard them, and called for the police. The burglars fled. A short time previous the same burglars attempted to break into the jewelry shop of De Ferrari and Peters, 265 Columbus avenue. They were frightened away after splintering woodwork around the door.

HOW A DRUGGIST CURED HIS KIDNEY TROUBLE

For the past twenty-four years I have been selling Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root with excellent satisfaction to my customers who have used it. They are always pleased with the results obtained and speak very favorably regarding the preparation. PRESIDENT HAS COLD STAYS HOME

Illness Not Serious, Is Declared; Usual Turkeys Arrive.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 23.—President Wilson who has been suffering from a slight cold in the head for several days, started out to play golf this morning, but returned to the White House because of rain. He remained in his room the remainder of the morning and saw no callers.

The president plans to spend Thanksgiving Day at the White House with members of his family. The annual flock of turkeys "raised specially for the president" has begun to arrive. One will be selected for the White House table and the others, according to custom, probably will be sent to hospitals or for distribution among the poor. On the crate of a turkey which came from Oklahoma, railroad men had written messages such as "How about the high cost of living?" and "remember the eight-hour day."

California Pioneer Woman Passes Away

Following several years of illness, which had brought her under the constant care of relatives, Mrs. M. A. Interment will take place in Napa, but complete funeral arrangements have not been made as yet.

Awaiting the arrival of the only son, W. M. Stansbury of Los Angeles, is Mrs. W. W. Keith, surviving daughter, and wife of W. W. Keith, manager of Oakland Harbor. Services will be held at the Keith home, 2121 Webster street, as soon as Stansbury arrives from the southern city.

Mrs. Stansbury was the widow of the late John S. Stansbury, pioneer business man of Sacramento and Napa.

SOUTH TO PLAN FOR AFTER WAR

Prominent Men to Speak on International Reconstruction Following War.

NORFOLK, Va., Nov. 23.—What will happen after the war is the problem to be discussed at the convention of the Southern Commercial Congress here December 11 to 14. It will be the eighth annual gathering of the congress and "International Reconstruction" has been chosen for its theme.

President Duncan U. Fletcher, senator from Florida, and other leaders, declare that the changed outlook resulting from the war will greatly affect this country and no section more than the south, and they hope to evolve at this convention a plan of action with which to meet the new order. Economic, agricultural, industrial, military, governmental, financial and commercial problems will be considered.

Acceptances already have been received from the following men of prominence who have been invited to address the congress: Secretary of State Robert Lansing; John Skelton Williams, comptroller of the currency; Secretary of Labor William B. Wilson, Secretary of the Navy Josephus Daniels, Secretary of Commerce William C. Redfield, Frank A. Vanderlip, Dr. Wellington, Koo, the Chinese minister; William Jennings Bryan, Don Joaquin Mendez, the Guatemalan minister; Romulo S. Naon, the ambassador from Argentina; Alberto Membrano, minister from Honduras; Carlos Manuel De Cespedes, minister from Cuba; governors from nine states, including Governor Willis of Ohio, and Governor Dunne, of Illinois, and United States Senators Ransdell, Overman and Owen.

Coincident with the meeting of the Southern Commercial Congress, six other organizations will hold their conventions under its auspices. They are the House of Southern Governors, the National Association of Commissioners of Agriculture, the Southern Cotton Congress, the American Association of Agricultural Organizations, the Southern Commercial Secretaries' Association, and the Woman's Auxiliary of the Southern Commercial Congress.

Secretary Daniels has ordered the Atlantic fleet mobilized in Hampton Roads while the congress is in session and the smaller vessels of the coast and geodetic survey, the bureau of navigation, the bureau of fisheries and the lighthouse service will be assembled in Norfolk harbor for the inspection of the visitors. A review of the fleet is planned as one of the features of the congress. There will be also a military parade in which the Virginia National Guard and officers and sailors of the fleet will participate.

HEAR TESTIMONY IN SHOOTING CASE

Albina De Mars Has Preliminary Examination in the Police Court.

Albina de Mars, who shot and seriously wounded Matron Rose Bordanaro of the West Oakland Home on September 28, after she had been discharged from her position as a nurse in the institution, was given her preliminary examination this morning before Police Judge Mortimer Smith on a charge of assault with a deadly weapon. Miss Bordanaro, who is partially paralyzed from the effects of the wounds, was carried into the courtroom on a stretcher to give her testimony.

Miss Bordanaro is in such a weakened condition that it was necessary for the court stenographer to take a seat by her side that he might hear her evidence. She told of the shooting, and said that a baby which she was holding at the time was badly burned by the powder from the revolver.

Other witnesses were Mrs. Florence Castle, Frank J. Sandy, Dr. A. C. Smith and St. Clair Hodgkins.

The hearing was continued until December 7 for further testimony.

DRINK HOT WATER IF YOU DESIRE A ROSY COMPLEXION

Says we can't help but look better and feel better after an inside bath.

To look one's best and feel one's best is to enjoy an inside bath each morning to flush from the system the previous day's waste, sour fermentations and poisonous toxins before it is absorbed into the blood. Just as coal, when it burns, leaves behind a certain amount of incombustible material in the form of ashes, so the food and drink taken each day leave in the alimentary organs a certain amount of indigestible material, which if not eliminated, form toxins and poisons which are then sucked into the blood through the very ducts which are intended to suck in only nourishment to sustain the body.

If you want to see the glow of healthy bloom in your cheeks, to see your skin get clearer and clearer, you are told to drink every morning upon arising, a glass of hot water with a teaspoonful of limestone phosphate in it, which is a harmless means of washing the waste material and toxins from the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels, thus cleansing, sweetening and purifying the entire alimentary tract, before putting more food into the stomach.

Men and women with sallow skins, liver spots, pimples or pallid complexion, also those who wake up with a coated tongue, bad taste, nasty breath, others who are bothered with headaches, bilious spells, acid stomach or constipation should begin this phosphated hot water drinking and are assured of very pronounced results in one or two weeks.

A quarter pound of limestone phosphate costs very little at the drug store but is sufficient to demonstrate that just as soap and hot water cleanses, purifies and freshens the skin on the outside, so hot water and limestone phosphate act on the inside organs. We must always consider that internal sanitation is vastly more important than outside cleanliness, because the skin pores do not absorb impurities into the blood, while the bowel pores do.—Advertisement.

Blue Bird Plan Approved
Social Service Groups Aid
Will Clothe Poor Children

Co-operation of the social service groups in Oakland to handle the problem of supplying children with shoes and clothes, that they may not be kept out of school, is assured in Oakland as the result of a conference held at the city hall by representatives of organizations which have had this work in hand.

Recommendations formulated at the conference will be presented to the Board of Education tomorrow evening at a meeting of the committee of the whole by School Director Harriet E. Hawes, who was instrumental in bringing about the conference. The recommendations will also have the endorsement of Superintendent of Schools A. C. Barker.

The organizations represented at the conference were:

Oakland Federation of Mothers' Clubs.
Associated Charities.
Board of Education.
Blue Bird Bureau of The Oakland TRIBUNE.

Attendance officers presented figures which showed that a score of children are reported out of school every day during the winter because they are in need of shoes and clothes. This results in a cut in the state allowance per capita to the community for school attendance.

The conferees were also told of the independent work that has been done by the Blue Bird Bureau in supplying hundreds of children with clothes, both through the bureau direct and through the Harrison school distribution room, established and conducted by Good Fellows working with the Blue Bird Bureau.

The work of the mothers' clubs, of which there are in Oakland, in supplying the individual needs in their districts, was also explained.

The Federation of Mothers' Clubs offered its services in aiding in the collection and distribution of clothes, and in sewing and repairing and sorting the clothes and shoes.

This offer has been tentatively accepted, subject to the approval of the school board, by Mrs. Hawes and Superintendent Barker. The women will commence work next week.

At the conference it was decided to recommend:

That two places of distribution be established, one at the Harrison school, Fourth and Harrison streets, to continue the work of the Blue Bird Bureau more systematically, and one at the Garfield school, Twenty-third avenue and East Sixteenth streeet.

That fumigating plants be installed at both schools to fumigate the clothes before they are handled, sorted and distributed.

That the board of education appoint a supervisor of the work to assume general charge of the collection and distribution of clothes, and of keeping a card index of the applications for aid received and supplied.

That the Federation of Mothers' Clubs asume the responsibilty for the repair and sorting of the clothes, and their distribution.

That the philanthropy committees of the individual mothers' clubs assume responsibility in their districts for the collection of clothes and placing them in the school in their district, to be there collected and taken to the two central fumigating plants.

Work of a similar kind has been done to a limited extent in other cities, and for the most part the mothers' clubs have been the ones to initiate and carry it forward. In San Francisco this has been the history of the movement, and in Los Angeles a similar evolution has been in progress.

In Oakland a complete system is being planned. It is proposed that the community shall make itself responsible for seeing not only that children are given an education, are made to go to school, but that they shall be suitably clothed to attend in comfort. It is considered by the Federation of Mothers' Clubs and by the school department that this is not only a work of philanthropy and good fellowship, but that it is good business, as the failure of a child to attend school is just that much loss in dollars and cents to the city in the state apportionment for school purposes.

The Blue Bird Bureau has been engaged for several years in providing shoes and clothes for school children. Last winter several hundred children were supplied through the bureau, and since the distributing room was established at the Harrison school, almost a truck load, of clothes, contributed by Oakland Good Fellows, was carted from The TRIBUNE building to the Harrison school each week and distributed.

The recipients of the clothes were children who were given "Blue Bird" cards by principals and teachers in the schools, and by the city nurses. They were also given out at the Blue Bird Bureau in The TRIBUNE office.

This work is now to be taken over by the Federation of Mothers' Clubs, under the direct supervision of the school department, and with the active co-operation of the Blue Bird Bureau of The TRIBUNE, and of the Associated Charities.

A room on an upper floor of the Harrison school is to be set aside for the women of the mothers' clubs to sew and repair clothes. The clothes will first be fumigated, and then the mothers will work them into shape, repair them, and sort them. A regular distribution day will be announced later, and the clothes will be given out in the big basement room at the Harrison school and at the Garfield school.

A strict supervision of the distribution of the clothes and shoes is to be instituted. Cards entitling a child to shoes or clothes will be given out by the teachers, principles, attendance officers and by the Associated Charities. There will be no indiscriminate handing out of garments, or distribution without the assurance that the clothes are needed.

Those who attended the conference directed attention to the fact that the work is not considered as charity work, but as community social service in the care of children, done both from a humanitarian point of view, and upon the economic principle that the care of the child being properly educated, and suitably cared for during the time of going to school, will give a commensurate return in good citizenship later.

Those who attended the conference were:

Mrs. F. W. Hopper, chairman of the philanthropy committee of the Oakland Federation of Mothers' Clubs.
Mrs. A. L. Whitman, district president for the California Federation of Mothers' Clubs.
Miss Grace Graham, secretary of the Oakland Associated Charities.
Mrs. Harriet E. Hawes, school director.
A. C. Barker, superintendent of schools.
Miss E. G. Kane, principal of the Lazear school.
C. N. Shane and W. H. Hammond, attendance officers of the Oakland School Department.
Harry L. Sully, head of the Blue Bird Bureau of The Oakland TRIBUNE.

WATER PLANT TO BE CONSIDERED

Hayward Chamber of Commerce and Town Trustees to Discuss Move.

HAYWARD, Nov. 23.—The project of constructing a new municipal water plant for this city at a cost of from $100,000 to $150,000 will be explained to the citizens at a mass meeting to be held soon under the auspices of the town board and the chamber of commerce. At a joint conference of the board and the chamber of commerce held last night to discuss municipal ownership of the water supply, opinions expressed by members of the two bodies and by representative citizens were almost unanimously in favor of building a new plant.

Four engineering firms, who are competing for the surveying and engineering work in connection with establishing the new water supply, were represented at last night's meeting. Selection of an engineer will be made at the next meeting of the town board.

According to Martin J. Madison, president of the Chamber of Commerce, an election to raise bonds for the construction of the new water plant will probably be held some time in February of next year.

Madison said: "We are making the necessary arrangements for building a new water plant. It is possible that the Hayward Water Company, whose water system we contemplated purchasing, but who set too high a valuation, may reduce the valuation sufficiently for our purpose. In that case we might change our present plans and take over the company's plant. In the meantime the water company has made no move to change its valuation of $127,000 and seems to be standing pat."

Speakers at the conference who endorsed the proposal to build a new water plant included: Victor La Grave, Fire Chief Manuel Riegs, Peter Wilbert, I. B. Parsons, J. E. Welsh, J. D. Armstrong and other members of the chamber of commerce, besides the town trustees.

E. S. Warren, superintendent of the Hayward Water Company, represented that concern at the meeting.

WOMAN PLAYS HER PART IN THE NEWS

CHICAGO, Nov. 23.—A job for every woman in the country who wants to work was the promise delivered by Anthony Caminetti, Commissioner of Immigration of the Department of Labor, who addressed representatives of 120 women's clubs here. The meeting was called to obtain co-operation between women's organizations and the Federal employment bureaus of the country.

"The department dealing with the unemployment of women and young girls intends to act as a clearing house of information both to those who want jobs and to those who are looking for the right ones to fill the jobs," said Commissioner Caminetti.

"It hopes to stabilize labor and capital. Through various women's organizations representing 7,000,000 women we expect to become acquainted with the facts of unemployment regarding every woman in the United States who is looking for work.

"Somewhere there is the right place for every such woman and we want to establish for her the connection with that job. This can be done through a co-operative committee in each locality. The government will appoint a clerk to work for the chairman and secretary of each local committee.

Mr. and Mrs. Wornow will leave for Brazil a few days after the wedding.

Wedding Tangle In Legal Record

Divorced, Remarry, But Ceremony Is Void

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 23.—Two people, who believed they were legally married, will have to again go through a wedding ceremony as the result of an error on the part of Lura C. Baer and her husband, Adolph, in connection with the divorce decree granted by Superior Judge Griffin giving both their freedom July 10, 1914. Mrs. Baer brought suit and the decree was signed, but not entered in the court record. It was not until November 19, 1915, that the entry was made and through a mistake it was ordered recorded as of July 10, 1914. The law does not permit such a proceeding and therefore the final entry three days later was of no effect. Both Mrs. Baer and her husband have remarried and the discovery that the final had been entered 362 days too soon necessitates the double wedding. The real final was placed on record today.

THIRD LEAGUE NOISE IS SCOFFED AT ON COAST

Rumored Upheaval in Class AA Circuits Would Meet Stiff Opposition

The talk of a third major league, while it makes good winter fodder for the fans, should not be taken too seriously. On the Pacific Coast we are fond of laying claim to major league calibre, but we are not in a position to pay major league bills and major league salaries, and we are prone to confess that the abolition of the draft clause would not benefit us very much, while it might work a hardship on promising young ball players.

The suggestion has been advanced that a "third major" circuit be formed from the best paying cities in the American and International circuits, and that several clubs in the Western League be boosted to Class AA rank to take their place. That's fine for the cities that go up, but how will the fans feel in the cities which are brought down to the Western league rating?

Toronto, Buffalo, Newark, Baltimore, Indianapolis, Milwaukee, Toledo and Louisville are the nominees for the new major to be known as the American Association.

That would leave Kansas City, St. Paul, Minneapolis, Columbus, Denver, Omaha, Sioux City and some other place to form another Class AA circuit.

As a sop to the coast, the draft law would have to be taken off this circuit, for we would hardly stand for Milwaukee and such cities being permitted to draw from us.

Such a revolution in baseball makes interesting reading, but it will hardly go beyond the realm of the Stove league.

Talk of a baseball players' strike resulting from the National Minor Leagues' Association's refusal to consider David Fultz's petition is all bosh.

Dave Fultz probably feels pretty cheap now for the whole Egyptian catacomb of "bones" which he pulled in asking for something he already had.

When Dave asked Secretary Farrell to put before the present convention a request that injured ball players be paid full salaries or given unconditional releases, he put himself in Fred Merkle's class.

Just such a condition as Dave asked for has been in existence since 1913. Therefore, when Secretary Farrell replied to Dave and asked him to cite one instance in minor leagues where a ball player injured on the field was not either retained on the pay roll or set free, Dave was stumped. He couldn't do it.

His embarrassing position was brought out in the letter which Farrell received from his yesterday. In this letter Fultz owned up to it that he had his dates mixed. He said he was glad to see that the favorable conditions had been existing since 1913.

So it looks as if Fultz will be only too glad to let the matter rest where it is. Secretary Farrell appears to be outpointing him right along, and the chances are that Dave will keep off Farry from now on.

As to the ball players, they realize that they have been receiving fine treatment from the minor leagues' organization, and they want no better protectors. That spring transportation would help them, of course, but it isn't a matter worth striking over.

Buddy Ryan, Salt Lake captain, has undergone another operation, this time for the removal of an abscess back of one ear. Last winter he was stricken with appendicitis. The invalid is reported to have rallied successfully from the second operation, and will soon leave Portland for a hunting trip to Canada. Mrs. Ryan will accompany him.

Pitcher Carl East has not been sold by the Browns to Salt Lake as previously reported, but to Lincoln in the Western league.

A deal is brewing between the Portland club and one of the teams of the International league in which a pitcher and an outfielder will come to the Beavers in exchange for the services of Dennis Willie. McCredie refuses to divulge the name of the club.

Oscar Theander Harsted, who was shipped to Spokane by Portland at the start of the 1916 season, will be taken to the spring training camp as a Beaver. Pitchers Johnny Brandt and Al Zwelfel of the Inter-city league and Hal Williams, the Montana "bush southpaw," will also be carried.

Following are other pitchers whom McCredie will take to the training camp: Byron Houck, Herb Kelly, Lyle Bigbee. Walt figures that with one or two experienced heavers from Cleveland he should be able to round out a competent staff. Another young pitcher whom Walter Henry may make an earnest endeavor to land, is Harvey Sutherland, Tacoma star, who startled the natives of the northwest by bagging sixteen games in a row last season. McCredie says that Joshua Billings, who finished the season with the pennant-winning Louisville club of the American Association this season, will be the first string Beaver receiver next year.

Out of 108 games that were won and lost by shut-out scores in the 1916 Coast League season, the champion Los Angeles club had the best record with 23 won and only 14 lost. Portland and Salt Lake, each with 12 shutout defeats, were the only clubs to lose fewer shutout games than the Angels, but Portland won only 13 and Salt Lake won only 15.

Vernon figured in more shutout games than any other club, winning 23 and losing 26. Incidentally Los Angeles picked on Vernon for shutout victories more than any other club did with any particular opponent. Nine times during the year Los Angeles shut out Vernon. The nearest that any other club came to equalling this record was Los Angeles' six shutout wins from San Francisco; San Francisco's six shutout wins from Oakland and Vernon's six shutout victories over the Angels.

Following table shows shutout games won and lost by each club against each other club:

	L.A.	Oak.	Port.	S.L.	S.F.	Ver.	Won
L. A.	x	5	1	2	6	9	23
Oak.	1	x	4	2	3	7	17

S. F.	2	6	2	2	x	5	17
Ver.	6	7	2	5	3	x	23
Lost	14	26	12	12	18	26

San Francisco tied Los Angeles for the honor of winning the most games that were decided by one run margins in the 1916 Coast League race. Both the Seals and Angels won 42 games by one run, but the Angels lost only 25 of these close varieties, fewer than any other club, while the Seals were beaten 32 times by one run. The tail-end Oakland club showed the least gameness, if these records can be considered a basis of that quality of a ball club, for Oakland was nosed out by one run forty times.

Vernon was next in line with 39 one-run beatings. Salt Lake was returned a winner by one run only 22 times, the smallest number of one run wins for any of the clubs. San Francisco beat Oakland 15 times by one run for the banner honors. Following records show the games won and lost by one run by and against each club:

Whitney was high for the Moose club team with 171 average, as the following scores will show:

YALE VETERANS BACK IN LINE-UP; ODDS FLUCTUATE

Bulldog An Even Money Choice Against John Harvard Saturday.

(By H. C. HAMILTON, United Press Staff Correspondent.)

NEW YORK, Nov. 23.—Captain Cupid Black has returned to the Yale eleven, and today will get into the last big practice before the meeting Saturday in New Haven with Harvard. Quarterback Travers Smith also is back for duty, and will work out with the first string squad.

These two developments have had the effect of holding off ten to nine and ten to eight bets that have been made with Harvard on the long end, and it now seems that Yale will go into the game an even money choice. There is very little Harvard money to be found at odds which are being quoted.

The Harvard team went through its last practice yesterday in Cambridge and today will reach New Haven, where the men will be given a brief drill in the bowl, and then will be taken to New London, where they will stay until Saturday.

Army and Navy also have gone through the final preparations for their big conflict. Today only the most simple of signal drills will be given the men.

The Navy backfield will take the field much as it has lined up all season, with Perry, Roberts, Ingram and Welchell ready for duty.

West Point isn't so sure of itself. Lieutenant Daly has tried several backfield combinations, and was still experimenting today: It is as certain as a thing can be, however, that Oliphant and Vidal will have their places.

Read "Mr. Muldoon" in Tonight's Green

Beginning this evening, and continuing every day, The TRIBUNE'S late sporting edition, known as "the Green," will contain a story by "Mr. Muldoon," whose reminiscences of famous events in the annals of sportdom have been eagerly read by Oaklanders.

The man who writes under the pen name of "Mr. Muldoon" is a veteran sporting writer—a man who has been at the ringside of most of the important pugilistic battles in this country, who knows intimately the nation's leading sporting characters, and whose notebooks are jammed with dramatic incidents.

Particularly will the "old timer" revel in "Mr. Muldoon's" recollections of famous characters of old and their exploits. Watch for these stories nightly in The TRIBUNE "Green."

STROUD CONFIDENT GAME WITH WASHINGTON IS ON

California Graduate Manager Does Not View "Football Strike" Seriously

BERKELEY, Nov. 23.—John Stroud, graduate manager of athletics at the University of California, today refused to view seriously the threatened cancellation of the second California-Washington game at Seattle Thanksgiving because of the disbanding of the Washington varsity eleven. He states that in so doing the Washingtonians would lose the biggest gate receipts of the season, and contends that the move is one fostered only by the players themselves over the disbarment of William Grimm, tackle, because of examination difficulty.

To California the cancellation of the game means only the loss of a chance to play Washington again, visiting collegiate athletic teams getting only expenses. There is confidence expressed here that before Washington cancels the game scheduled a week from today students and faculty will cause the players to change their minds and play.

WASHINGTON ON STRIKE.

SEATTLE, Wash., Nov. 23. — The University of Washington football squad went on a strike yesterday afternoon following the disbarment of "Bill" Grimm from further participation in athletic events this year. Last night the players met in conference with the student board of control in an effort to reach an agreement, and at midnight a recess was taken until today, when the players will announce their decision.

Grimm yesterday was prohibited from playing for the rest of the scholastic year because of alleged irregularities in an examination. Grimm's team mates declare that such discipline hurts the team as much as him and that some other method should have been invoked by the faculty to punish him.

Students and faculty heads, after the conference, expressed the opinion that the team would resume training and play out its schedule.

Faculty members declared last night that the action on the Grimm case was final. Manager J. Arthur Younger and Walt Shiel, president of the student body, declared that if the regular team refused to finish the season men would be recruited from the class teams, hurriedly trained in the few days remaining, and the game with California played on Thanksgiving Day as scheduled.

Coach Dobie declared his willingness to coach anybody that might appear on the field, but stated that his sympathies were entirely with the team.

BRUINS AFTER REST RESUME PRACTICE

Smith Gives Squad No New Plays, But Tries to Perfect Present Style.

BERKELEY, Nov. 23. — California's football squad was given a two day lay off this week to insure against any of the men going "stale" after their hard fight Saturday. Practice was resumed yesterday and scrimmage held against the Reserves. No new plays are to be given the team and the time will be spent on perfecting what plays have been learned.

Word was sent to Graduate Manager Stroud today that the California alumni in Seattle would appear at the game in force and support the Bruins. They will have additional support in the Glee club and band and also a small following of students. Reports of the game by quarters will be sent to California Field and a game between Davis Farm and the California Freshmen will hold the fans' attention during the lulls.

Coach Elliott of the Freshmen is having a hard time getting his men to turn out now that their big game is over and is making every effort to get a team together which can beat the Farm eleven. The latter team has a good record this year having won from St. Mary's, Nevada and the Olympic club and having played the Freshmen a 6 to 6 tie on their

JOHNNIE BLACK IS 'PRO' CHAMPION OF CALIFORNIA

Claremont Golfer Wins Title at Del Monte, Playing in Superb Form.

DEL MONTE, Nov. 23. — John Black, professional golfing star of the Claremont Country Club of Oakland, continued to play in top form in the tournament being staged here, and today Black has the open golfing championship of California dangling from his belt. The Claremont "pro" was pressed throughout the competition by Tom Hughes, the Burlingame crack, and the former was not assured of victory until the very last putt was holed.

With the termination of the tournament, it is rumored that the "pros" will get together soon to organize a professional golfers' association. This will mean that the "pros" will hold three annual competitions.

Following are the results of the contestants who qualified for final play in the tourney:

The WHISPERING BALL

BASEBALL'S MOST EXTRAORDINARY STORY

By Hugh Fullerton

SYNOPSIS.

The Boston Greens suddenly develop a losing streak and "fans" mob Freddie Gordon, captain of the team, and his men after the fifteenth straight defeat. Gordon claims the ball "whispering to him." Joe Haley, the Greens' shortstop, tries to console Gordon. The latter accuses Haley of giving him certain signals. Haley denies this. Holliday, owner of the Greens, nd Paulin, a reporter, enter as the two decide Metzler, an ex-vaudeville actor, has been practicing ventriloquism on them. Gordon trails Metzler and Paulin trails Lester, a Green pitcher and friend of Metzler. Gordon finds Metzler could not be guilty, but meets a man who strongly resembles him and follows him to a hotel, where he is seen talking to Holliday's daughter. Paulin finds Lester at Kendall's gambling house, where the man Gordon followed meets him and borrows $100. Gordon and Paulin meet Holliday and decide to ask Lester to explain, when they find he was murdered. The death of Lester seems to change the luck of the Greens and they bat out a victory the next day, though the players still hear the ball whisper to them. Gordon keeps an appointment with Miss Holliday; she tells him the man is her half-brother and that her father thinks he is in Europe. He promises to keep the secret. While packing Lester's goods Gordon finds a book on radioactivity by Professor Elias Terpening. Gordon and Paulin go to see Terpening and get his promise to help them solve the riddle. McCollis, the manager, tells Gordon that Holliday has married the divorced wife of an actor named Metzler. Holliday's stepson is seen at a game with a queer-looking box, but leaves before the end of the game. Holliday comes for a conference at which Kendall, the gambler, is to be present. The gambler convinces them he is as much interested as they in discovering who is trying to beat the Greens.

CHAPTER XII.

Professor Terpening Turns Detective.

Shan Paulin had done his work well. The little reporter, convinced of the honesty of the Greens, had managed to persuade the other reporters that the seeming dishonesty of the players was due to outside interference.

The mystery of the black rays of light that had caused Hyde and Robinson to lose the game of the preceding days added sensation to sensation. Part of the readers of the extravagant tales woven by the reporters laughed, some were convinced, and others were left in doubt as to whether the public was being made the victim of a gigantic hoax or whether some mysterious influence really was causing the defeats of the team. Whatever the belief, the fury of the fans was turned aside. Many, refusing to take further chances of being buncoed into paying to see what they considered a hippodrome, remained away from the park, and attendance at the second game dropped sharply. Anger had subsided to a degree, and distrust and disgust had replaced it. A greater part of those who gathered to witness the second game were curiosity seekers who came to watch for suspicious actions.

The two teams held a meeting prior to going out upon the playing field. There was fear among them than the crowd would attack them, and excited discussion of means of defense in case of attack occupied much of the time.

At 1 o'clock a slender man, wearing heavy-lensed glasses, a wrinkled Prince Albert coat, baggy trousers, and an old hat, appeared at the main entrance. He was carrying a number of strange-looking devices and a servant accompanying him bore even more. Both were laden down with instruments. They demanded admission, and after a time word was brought to Gordon that two "bugs" were at the gate. They had forgotten Gordon's name, but said the captain of the baseball nine had an appointment with them. Gordon, deserting the meeting hastily, ran down under the stands and signaled the gate tender to admit the visitors.

Professor Terpening, fuming and indignant, deposited his instruments carefully and shook hands.

"I have brought a few mechanical assistants," he said, pointing to the collection of boxes, tubes, strange and delicate instruments mounted upon tripods, frames of metal strung with cobwebs of delicate wires, glass receptacles, filled with different liquids.

"I could not bring many" he added apologetically. "It would be impossible for me to transport the paraphernalia of my research laboratory, so I have brought only the few essentials. From the things you told me I suspect that an electrical disturbance would accompany any effort to transform or transport or to localize sound. This (he pointed to a cobweb device of finely strung wires, connected with a battery and a small glass jar filled with what seemed black sand) is a detecter. It is cruel. Roughly speaking, it will record a disturbance of 1-500,000ths part of a watt at a distance of fifty miles."

"I hope you don't start speaking tenderly then," said Gordon, smiling. "Where would you like to be stationed?"

"At any point at which I may command an uninterrupted view of the contest," said the professor. "I shall need space enough to set up my instruments."

"Just the place," said Gordon quickly. "There is a covered exit used by the umpires. You can set up the instruments there a little above the ground level and work. The crowd cannot see you at all."

"The problem interests me exceedingly," said the professor as Gordon, relieving him of some of the burden, led the way down the narrow chute of concrete. "I read with much interest this morning an exceedingly unscientific description of the phenomena that occurred in yesterday's game. The account, while laughable to a man of science, tends to strengthen my belief that electricity is being used. The projection of light rays through sunlight in such a manner as to induce the sensation of blackness is not unknown. It is possible that ultra-purple rays might have been used."

"Is it not possible that instead of light rays being used some force, light or otherwise, was used to paralyze the optic nerve temporarily?" inquired Gordon.

Professor Terpening flashed a look of quick interest at the player.

"Possibly," he said. "Why did you ask that question? I thought the subject of physics was unknown to you."

"I have forgotten all the physics I ever learned," said Gordon, laughing. "The idea came to me because I could not understand how any light could have been flashed directly into the eye of a left fielder and a first baseman."

"That is true," said the professor thoughtfully. "I shall have to study the problem more deeply."

Gordon gave a quick glance of suspicion at the professor and continued to assist him in arranging the instruments. The servant, who had remained further back in the chute, was paying little attention to the instruments, but was looking over their heads at the field where the Giants already were practicing.

"I see you like baseball," said Gordon to the man.

"Yes, sir," he said brightly. "I used to see a game every time I had a day off."

"You ought to coach the professor," said Gordon. "A little knowledge of baseball might help his investigation."

"I fear my education in sport has been sadly neglected," said the professor with mock sadness. "I regret now not having watched the nines play—you have nine men on a side, I believe?"

"Yes," said Gordon. "Come out onto the field a moment and I'll try to explain the principal points—and the object of the game. Then you'll understand better how important it is that a man's eyes and ears shall not be interfered with while he is playing."

The appearance of the dignified professor on the field was a signal for hooting and mockery from the stands, and sly remarks from the players. To all of the merriment he was causing the professor appeared gravely unconscious. He listened with nods of understanding as Gordon briefly explained the game, pointed out the positions, showed him where the outfielders stood, and, as the Giants engaged in batting practice, he carefully explained the object of each move.

Professor Terpening appeared nervous and afraid of the balls that were being thrown around with seeming carelessness, and as the gong rang for the Greens to take the field Gordon remarked:

"You'd better get back to the instruments, Professor Trepening. We are about to start the game. I'll try to slip in between innings and see if you need any help."

He walked with the professor toward the half-concealed exit, while the crowd improvised ridicule to heap upon his unconscious head, and as soon as the professor disappeared he ran swiftly toward the press box. Paulin, who had been watching, strolled over to the end of the box to meet him.

"Shan," said Gordon rapidly, "I tell you there is something wrong about that professor. He keeps saying he knows nothing about baseball, but he knew enough to know that the first baseman faces one way and the left fielder another."

"Leave that bird to me," said Paulin. "There's a place under the stand where I can hide and see every move he makes. Here is where some one else scores this game for me. I'm on the Sherlock Holmes job myself."

KELLER CLUMSY; LOSES TO NORTON IN WILD BOUT

Al Has Difficulty in Penetrating Defense, But Is the Aggressor.

Al Norton will be the chap who faces Willie Meehan on Turkey day at Emeryville. This was established last night when the big fellow took a decision from Terry Keller in the final event of the West Oakland weekly show. It was Keller's own clumsiness rather than any brilliancy on Norton's part that gave the latter the victory.

Terry was dead on his feet, left a million openings, and failed to take any advantage of the opportunities given him by his lanky opponent. While Norton won, his showing was a disappointment to many of his admirers who fear Meehan will put him out unless he improves in his judgment of distance.

Last night, Norton was quite unable to land his powerful right cross to the jaw, missing more frequently than he did even against the lumbering Charley Miller. He was always an eighth of a second too late with his punch which slid harmlessly off Keller's shoulders. Only once did he land it, and that was coming out of a clinch in the third round. Norton's right, this time, caught Keller almost flush on the jaw, and the big fellow staggered against the ropes. Norton was not quick enough to follow up his advantage and lost whatever chance there was of stopping his man.

Coming at the heels of a whirlwind card of small fellows, the big men put up a lumbering appearance which is always the case when heavyweights get into action following the smaller fry. The fans expect a chap weighing 200 pounds to be as light on his feet and active as a kid scaling 128. Norton had Spider Kelly, George Sharkey and Johnny Frayne as seconds, and they seemed to have him so busy trying to obey orders that he forgot to fight. Charley Cleaver and Jack Cordell were back of Keller.

The first round saw little advantage to either man, but in the second Norton became the aggressor and used an effective left to Keller's head and a choppy right to the body. Both fought wildly, landing blows as far down as the knees and missing repeatedly. Keller has an awkward style of hunching his shoulders and leaning far back. Norton had difficulty in fathoming the defense, but earned a verdict alright by reason of his aggressiveness.

WEBB ROPES ANOTHER.

Cyclone Williams failed to get into condition for his scheduled scrap with Willie Webb, but he wasn't missed, for Young Joe Gans, an African fountain pen, took his place and gave the Moraga wildcat a real battle.

Webb entered the ring fat as a prize porker and found his job cut out for him. Gans proved he could both box and hit but Webb showed his usual disregard for punishment and flailed away at the negro's stomach throughout the mill, compelling Gans to hang on.

Gans' best blow is a hard left to the head, which he delivers with all his weight behind it. Any other man but Webb or Meehan would have sunk under the blows Gans planted on his opponents' chin last night. Webb sent his man to his knees in the last round with a right hook to the chin and left the ring with the verdict and a left ear that looked like a bouquet of poinsettas.

MARTIN BEATS PHILLIPS.

Pickles Martin helped himself to the gravy by winning a clean verdict over Jimmy Phillips, outboxing the husky veteran, and battering him up with right uppercuts which Jim could not seem to avoid. This boy with the delicatessen name must sooner or later be taken seriously for he shows steady improvement.

Martin showed a tendency to leave his jaw unprotected when he tried to protect his stomach, and Phillips took advantage of this opening in the third and hung a left on Pickles' jaw that sent the youngster against the ropes. He bounced back with a choppy left to the head that sent Phillips to the mat. Martin protected himself better after that and used a right underhand swing to the head that caught Phillips coming in repeatedly.

WEST TAKES THE CANDY.

Jimmy West and Willie Sinclair, the latter of brunette persuasion, engaged in a gentlemanly pillow "fight," which succeeded only in mussing Jimmy's hair, Willie having no hair to muss. The chief attraction of this bout was Sinclair's pale blue tights which, like Gunga Din's, were "nothing much before and rather less than 'arf o' that behind." The pair hugged and patted each other on the back with all the enthusiasm of a couple of Frenchmen, just escaped from Berlin. West having shown the most enthusiasm was given the meal ticket, while Willie got a pass to the shower bath.

HALEY SHOWS IMPROVEMENT.

Herb Haley, the Berkeley lightweight, showed a hundred per cent improvement in his victory over that tough little boy, Pete Francis of Elmhurst. Haley had the advantage in reach and weight and seems to have learned quite a bit about boxing from John Burdick. He did not clinch once in the four rounds and measured Francis repeatedly with a vicious straight left and a right cross that had the Elmhurst boy bleeding in the last round. It was a swell showing for the Berkeley boy.

Francis fought gamely and succeeded in reaching Haley's jaw in the final round, only to be sent crashing back to the ropes with a volley of choppy jolts to the head and body.

HOW YOU FEELING, HARRY?

Tommy Hayes of San Francisco won from the veteran Harry Belmont via the underground route. From the tap of the first gong, Hayes launched an offensive directed at the pit of Belmont's stomach and had Harry's "bowlie" looking like a Stanford pennant. Belmont's body was so sore he undertook to prevent it by holding up his left knee. Had he been able to put a boxing glove on that knee it might have done him some good, but as it was Hayes pounded away steadily and gradually sapped his opponent's strength and stormed the trenches. Bob Shand had to pose as the angel of peace at the end of the third round, both boys being intent on disregarding the bell. Belmont will have to wear a plaster below his chest for a week or so and refrain from bending.

BROMEO BEATS NELSON.

Kid Bromeo lowered the colors of Portugal in the curtain raiser when he triumphed over Jack Nelson in four rounds. Nelson needed a periscope to locate his opponent and not finding one convenient spent his time in swinging at the surrounding atmosphere. Bromeo did his best work with his eyes closed too but seemed to guess the location of Nelson's stomach and kidneys pretty well.

DUCKS ON WING IN COLD WEATHER

Hunters Find Birds Plentiful at All Valley Shooting Points.

To the present cold weather is ascribed a great deal of the success of duck hunters around the bay region. The ducks are active when the thermometer is down, and with many on the wing, the men behind the guns are getting good bags. Although the sprig are leaving for the south, the hunters are finding in their places more canvasbacks and mallards. Recently returned parties from San Pablo brought back good bags, practically all of the birds being canvasbacks. Local hunters are also finding plenty of honkers, especially on Coney Island, near Pittsburg, where in a limit bag L. B. Morrison got ten geese. Teal are also plentiful in most places.

Local hunters have been partial to Newman, Gustine and Los Banos lately. Belden McPike, Grayson McPike, E. T. Wheaton and R. N. Osborne found shooting good at Newman early in the week, bringing back twenty-three ducks and fifteen geese. "Dutch" Deane and A. Dolan left last night for Gustine, where there are reported more ducks than ever before. Los Banos has also claimed many local parties.

LOCAL PARTIES MEET SUCCESS.

Ed Arrowsmith and Ware Little are telling their friends about San Pablo, where they bagged limits this week. All their ducks were canvasbacks. Following this news, J. D. Kennedy and Prof. Dungan have headed for San Pablo, where they will shoot today. At Kerman, the first station this side of Fresno, is claimed the best hunting in the state. The shooting fee at this place is high, however, and the owners of the sites where best hunting is to be found are not accommodating parties of less than five.

VALLEY IS GOOD.

From Sacramento comes the news that the rice near Willows will be harvested in a few days and hunters will then be allowed to run over the fields in quest of ducks. All kinds of geese are reported to be coming in, and it is predicted that hunting will be good. At Live Oak it is reported that shooting is only fair on account of the rice harvesting.

Other conditions are reported as follows: Dutch Flat—Quail and squirrels are being hunted; fishing good; weather perfect. Williams—Duck hunting still good; lots of ducks and geese; geese now coming out on the plains; about every hunter out last few days brought in game. Klamath Falls—Hunting past week reported very good, several parties bagging the limit; northern birds arriving slowly; weather very cold and ponds freezing up fast; this should make field shooting better; fishing good in rivers, with fresh spawn as bait; several large catches made; season open all year for fish oven ten inches in length.

At the Colusa Gun Club preserve the birds were so numerous several hunters were particular and shot nothing but mallards.

To the Sporting Editor—Man on first, batter hits the ball to pitcher who throws the ball to second baseman. Please state what man is out.

A CONSTANT READER.

Man going into second base is forced out, if he does not beat the throw.

SAN LEANDRO, Nov. 23. — Members of the graduating class of the grammar school are rehearsing a play, "The Cricket on The Hearth," to be presented in the school auditorium Tuesday evening, December 13. Mrs. Charlotte Lynch is directing rehearsals.
Closing exercises will be held at the school Thursday, December 21.

DOCK & DECK

On her latest trip the steamship Great Northern broke all records from the Golden Gate to Honolulu and return. She sailed from here on November 7 and arrived back November 22. The distance covered by the Great Northern was 4600 miles. Her time from Honolulu was four days and one hour. When the Great Northern was 60 miles southwest of the Golden Gate at noon yesterday she sighted a three masted bark steering toward this port. The steamer brought 2600 tons of freight and many passengers.

Two foreign sailing craft arrived through the Golden Gate today, the Peruvian barkentine Stella, 87 days from Callao, under command of Captain Malle, and the Chilian bark, Luis A. Goni. Both will load cargoes at this port for off shore, but will go on the drydock for cleaning before they load.

WINDBER TO SAIL FROM NORTH PORT.
The steamer Windber sailed from Portland today with 200 tons of paper and 1800 tons of grain bound for Oakland harbor. She has been chartered for three trips by the Globe Milling Company. When her cargo is out she will load 2000 tons of cement at Long wharf for Portland, to be used next summer in the construction of the new streets. Both the cement and asphalt comes from this port.

The lightship Blunt Reef is at the Western Fuel dock loading 150 tons of bunker coal, and will sail for her station today. This coal is supposed to last the light ship for 30 days, when she will return for a new supply. Several cars are loading coal at the Western Fuel yard for interior cities.

A raid was made yesterday on board the steam schooner Quinault at Grays Harbor and 50 gallons of beer and whiskey was confiscated. The master, Captain A. Ahlin, and the steward, J. Meler, were arrested. Captain Ahlin was released on $200 cash bail. The Quinault is loading 625,000 feet of lumber at Grays Harbor for Oakland.

A. F. Estabrook Company has sold the steam schooner Speedwell to the Parr-McCormick Company. Terms were private. She is now at Coquille river loading 900,000 feet of lumber for Oakland, and will be turned over to her new owners after her cargo is discharged. She was built at North Bend, Oregon, four years ago.

A four masted barkentine was sighted yesterday by the steamer Wapama at 2:30 p. m. She was headed this way and was seven miles north of Pigeon Point. As there is no wind outside the heads the vessel will drift around until a breeze springs up, or some tug boat comes along and tows her in port.

A cablegram from Colon, Panama, dated November 22, states that the Norwegian steamer Themis grounded while leaving port and holds numbers 1, 2 and 3 are full of water. Divers will be sent down to make an examination. The Themis sailed from this port for New York some weeks ago.

The United States revenue cutter Bear arrived at Puget Sound today with the last mail from Point Barrow, Nome and all Behring Sea points this year. She also called at Dutch Harbor. After sending the mail to the postoffice, she will coal up and steam for this port, where she will remain on patrol duty along the California coast.

DESTROYER FOX SOLD AT AUCTION.
United States torpedo boat destroyer Fox, which was condemned by the government some time ago, was sold at auction today and brought $3111. She cost $80,000 to build a few years ago. Nelder & Marcus were the purchasers, and they will convert her into a merchant boat or sell her.

The steam schooner Norwood of the Sudden & Christenson line is due here tomorrow from Portland with a cargo of 800 tons of print paper. This is the first time the Norwood ever came here from northern ports without a lumber cargo. There will be several shipments of paper sent to this port from Portland during the next few weeks.

Note—In the above tabulations of the tides the daily tides are given in the order of their occurrence, commencing with the early morning tide in the left-hand column and the succeeding tides as they occur. On some days but three tides occur, the fourth occurring the following morning.
The columns of heights give the elevation of each tide above or below the level of Coast Survey chart sounding. The numbers are always additive to the chart depths, unless preceded by a minus sign, or dash (-), when the numbers are subtracted from the depths given on the chart.

Italian Tomato Paste Factory Is Planned

SAN JOSE, Nov. 23. — According to statements made today by John Paterno, who is visiting this city from New Orleans, San Jose will have a new factory, at which tomato paste will be prepared. Paterno is head of a factory in New Orleans where this kind of paste is the principal product. It is used largely by Italian people in cooking. Before the war broke out almost all this paste was made in Italy. But since an embargo has been laid upon it by the Italian government, the dealers who handled it in America have been forced to open plants and manufacture it here. Paterno said:

We have found that we can make good paste here—just as we found that we could make many other things that we did not think were possible before this war. We have also found people here in California can raise the finest tomatoes that we have ever used in our factory. We bought about a carload this season and we liked them so well that we are now contemplating renting 500 acres, starting a factory on it in which to make our own paste fight here in Santa Clara county.

Paterno will return to New Orleans as soon as he can complete his business here and will make a report to his company directors, and if they accept his recommendations he will return here and start a factory for the preparation of tomato paste in San Jose within a few months.

Suit of Clothes Is Prize for Best Corn

MORGAN HILL, Nov. 23.—Wide attention was aroused by the corn contest instigated by Arthur F. Edwards, in which he offered a suit of clothes for the ten ears of best corn raised in this section of the valley. Other lesser prizes were offered, as second, third, fourth and fifth prizes, in ratio as to merit of corn submitted. At the close of the contest the judges, John Page, Fredrick Dickinson and Fredrick Dow, awarded the first prize to John Gosney, the second to Clarence Gosney, the third to Mrs. Musgrave, the fourth to George Rurner and the fifth to Richard Liston.

Attorney for Hughes Will File Demurrer

RICHMOND, Nov. 23. — Objecting to the present complaint filed against Walter Hughes, assistant city engineer, now under $3000 bonds on two grand jury indictments, a general demurrer will be filed Monday at Martinez to the complaint, charging falsifying public records.
Together with the general demurrer, a specific demurrer will be filed stating that the present complaint is too general in its wording.

Comment & Opinion On—

UNITED RAIL FIGHT

THE GOLD FLOOD

DETERMINED to halt, if possible, the reorganization plan of the United Railroads of San Francisco, the Mercantile Trust Company of Baltimore, Maryland, has issued a circular letter to the holders of the 4 per cent gold bonds of the corporation, in which it questions the plan and points out that but six million of the twenty-three million dollars bonds have been deposited with the reorganization committee. Says the letter:

To the Holders of the United Railroads of San Francisco 4 per cent Gold Bonds:

As owners of, and the representatives of owners of, a substantial amount of bonds of the above issue, we have studied the proposed plan of reorganization of the United Railroads of San Francisco, and are convinced that the position of these bonds entitles them to better treatment than they are offered.

It is our opinion, after a careful examination of the financial condition of the company, that a reorganization can be effected, which, while fair and just to the holders of the junior securities, insures to the holders of the 4 per cent bonds a more advantageous settlement than that proposed by the present plan.

To effect such a reorganization will require concerted action on the part of the holders of a large number of the bonds. We are advised that only six million dollars of the total twenty-three million dollars bonds have been deposited as consenting to the proposed plan.

We wish to locate the holders of the undeposited bonds, and request that they communicate with us as promptly as possible. If the holders of sufficient bonds co-operate with us, arrangements will at once be made looking to the appointment by the holders of a committee who will actively endeavor to obtain more advantageous terms for these bonds in the reorganization.

MERCANTILE TRUST AND DEPOSIT COMPANY, Baltimore, Md.

THAT GOLD FLOOD.

The enormous inflow of gold into this country is engaging the earnest attention of the most prominent bankers in whose opinion the influx of the yellow metal is a serious menace to the commercial and financial community. A few days ago an active banker, who has much to do with the financing of our export trade, said: "The banking community is being drowned in gold."

HEAVY IMPORTS.

During the twenty-seven months of the war period, to October 31, 1916, imports of gold into the United States amounted to more than $945,000,000. This amount is greater than the total gold imports during the entire ten-year period preceding the war. In the single month of June, 1916, gold imports amounted to over $122,000,000, or more than in any entire year prior to the war, with the single exception of 1908. The amount of gold in the United States is now double that in 1904, and 40 per cent more than at the beginning of the war.

Many bankers with long experience in international finance, perceive grave danger in such an overwhelming flood of gold. It must be remembered that under the new Federal reserve system the $945,000,000 gold that has been added to the stock of gold in United States is basis for credit to the extent of six times that amount; in other words, our credit limits have expanded to the extent of more than $5,500,000,000. The inevitable tendency is toward easy credits and inflation.

PROSPERITY UNREAL.

Prosperity based on inflation is more apparent than real. Inflation creates markets in which to sell, not buy. The annual foreign trade of the United States now aggregates almost $9,000,000,000 and the balance of trade in our favor (excess of exports over imports) amounts to about $3,000,000,000 per annum. In the five months, June to October, 1916, gold imports amounted to almost $410,000,000. Those who see a menace in the influx of gold in such enormous quantities, with its inflationary effect on credit and prices, point out the abnormal character of our export trade, and say that not only our export trade with Europe but also the much desired extension of our foreign trade with South American and other non-belligerent countries is threatened by soaring prices. The point is, that our export trade in actual volume of shipments is increasing with not such astonishing rapidity; it is the value of those exports that is expanding. In other words, our flourishing export trade is based more on inflated prices than on enlarged consumption. As prices rise, consumption will fall. Producing capacity will become idle.

HEAR TIDEWATER PLEA.

STOCKTON, Nov. 23.—Application of the Tidewater Southern Railroad for permission to issue $600,000 of stock, the proceeds to be used in building an extension from Hatch to Irwin City, two Stanislaus county points, has been heard here by the State Railroad Commission, Commissioner Alexander Gordon presiding. The proposed extension will tap a rich agricultural section, now served by no other railroad.

T. C. Butler, a realty operator, was granted permission to use a mile of abandoned Tidewater track to reach a subdivision he had opened on an old right-of-way, the line to be operated by himself.

The company proposes to enter Stockton over a new route.

The Fresno Canal and Land Company has filed with the State Railroad Commission application for authority to issue and sell $600,000 face value, first mortgage gold bonds at not less than 90 per cent of par, the proceeds to retire outstanding bonds. A mortgage or deed of trust covering all the properties of the company will secure the bonds.

An extra dividend of 3 per cent on Lackawanna Steel common was declared today at New York by the directors.

SLUMP CONTINUES IN WALL STREET

Former Leading Stocks Tumble Under "Bearish" Operations on Exchange.

NEW YORK, Nov. 23.—Substantial recessions marked today's initial trading, bearish sentiment being again uppermost. U. S. Steel yielded only a fraction at the outset, but soon fell about a point.

Marines were heavy, with copper losses in these groups ranging from one to almost two points. Various industrials, including the paper issues as well as equipments, were under pressure. Among the few exceptions to the general trend were Lackawanna Steel, Airbrake and American Smelting. A more even tone was shown before the end of the first half-hour.

Recoveries of the first hour were quite general, substantial buying of specialties on their early decline being a factor. Coppers, motors and shipping shares were strong, with petroleum and leather issues. Among the more active stocks, Lackawanna Steel rose over three points and Atlantic, Gulf and West Indies over five, with nine for Bethlehem Steel. Before midday another selling movement, based in part on reports regarding the status of war contracts, caused fresh selling and renewed heaviness, in which equipments and allied industrials were most affected. Bonds were irregular.

The slump on the stock exchange in shares which have led the market for weeks, continued at the opening.

Utah Copper sold down 1¼ to 121; Republic Steel broke 1⅜ to 86½; American Writing Paper preferred was down 1½ at 67 and International Paper lost 1¼, selling at 62. Lackawanna Steel was an exception among the leaders, advancing 1¼ to 101¾. United States Steel opened at 125 to 125¼ against 125¼ at the close yesterday. The general list was irregular.

Reactions of the mid-session were followed by another irregular and tentative recovery on a market reduction of dealings. The strength of Lackawanna Steel and Leather shares was almost the only noteworthy feature of that period.

CHICAGO WHEAT PIT

CHICAGO, Nov. 23.—Heavy selling by prominent houses caused the wheat market to weaken today after an upturn at the outset. Opening prices, which ranged from ¼ to 1⅛c higher, with December at $1.84 to $1.84¼ and May at $1.89 to $1.90¼, were followed by a reaction to well below yesterday's finish.

Corn gave way with wheat. After opening ¼ to 1½c higher, prices sagged to a moderate degree under yesterday's latest figures.

Oats merely reflected changes in other cereals. Belgian relief buying tended to deflect the provision market. Demand otherwise, though, was light.

STOCK-BOND EXCHANGE

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 23.—Following yesterday's dullness, dealings increased on the San Francisco Stock and Bond Exchange during this morning's session with sugar securities holding the lead and Pacific Gas and Electric issues springing back into prominence. Activity was less pronounced in the bond department and few large blocks changed hands. Union was a strong feature of the market, starting unchanged with a sale at 35¼. Hutchinson was another prominent sugar stock, selling in substantial lots at the substantial figure of 30¼. Honokaa was in demand at 13, while on light contracting Onomea held 57¼. Hawaiian Commercial eased off slightly to 53½.

Two blocks of Pacific Gas and Electric common, each involving 200 shares, were transferred at 65⅜, a price slightly under yesterday's closing mark.

United Railroad bonds were strong and active.

S. F. STOCK EXCHANGE (OIL AND MINING)

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 23.—Trading in mining shares was largely professional in character today and prices underwent very little change. Few of the leading silver producers reflected the higher price of the bar metal. Rescue selling from 30 down to 27 and Macnamara holding barely steady at 8. Tonopah of Nevada, however, strengthened to 600 on light sale. Big Jim dropped back to 40 on bids and Nellie sold two points lower at 31. Silver Pick was the Goldfield feature, holding firm on buying at 24.

There was a small flurry in Spearhead and the execution of heavy buying orders took the price from 6 to 10 and later 9. Kewenas gained a point. Bids of 5 were reported for the newly listed El Dorado Enterprise.

Comstocks continued to gather strength, Ophir rising from 17 to 19, Sierra Nevada from 26 to 28 and Mexican from 19 to 21. Arizona Ray Copper was slightly weaker on bids.

EXPORT TRADE IS FAT WITH FIGURES

WASHINGTON, Nov. 23.—Exports during October were "greatly in excess of any preceding October," the Commerce Department announced today.

During the month the United States sent abroad commodities to the value of $490,600,000, against $336,200,000 in October, 1915—an increase of 46 per cent.

These figures, however, show a recession of $24,400,000 from the record exports of September. Imports for the month totaled $176,400,000, an increase of $12,400,000 over September, and $25,200,000 over October, 1915.

LOCAL PRODUCE MARKET

Continued cold weather is having its effect on growing varieties, according to local produce dealers, and prices will continue at their present high scale until the season is older, bringing in its wake greater quantity. Beans at 12½ cents remain one of the features and dealers believe that this is a record price on the green variety.

Strawberries were present in lessened quantity, with their price lower somewhat than in the past day or so. The crate demand for straws were from $6 to $7, with demand normal and few berries left at the end of the day's trade.

The potato market was stronger today, with prices threatening to take the up-hill path again. No direct change in quotations were noted among the tubers, though. Heavy shipments of poultry were reported, with their side-dish, cranberries, also present in excellent quantity. Cranberries were bringing $12 the barrel today, with turkeys of the live variety rated at from 23 to 24 cents the pound. Dressed turkeys are commanding prices ranging all the way from 25 to 29 cents.

RAILROAD COMMISSION

The Pacific Telephone and Telegraph Company has filed with the Railroad Commission an application to buy all of the capital stock of the Imperial Telephone Company from the Mountain States Telephone and Telegraph Company. The stock consists of 250 shares of a par value of $100 each. The Imperial Company does a telephone business in Imperial county.

The Imperial Telephone Company and the Pacific Telephone and Telegraph Company have filed with the Railroad Commission a joint amended application stating that on April 29, they asked authority of the commission for the Imperial Company to sell to the Pacific company all its property for $165,643.67, and that this consideration is now sought to be changed to a nominal one of $10 because of the anticipated purchase of all the Imperial company's stock from the Mountain States company.

The Railroad Commission has issued an order at the request of Myles E. Gallagher, dismissing his complaint against the Peoples Water Company.

The Railroad Commission has issued an order authorizing the Pacific Gas and Electric Company to contract for the furnishing of electricity to Millie D. Gibson, L. B. Husted and Ralph A. Husted, residents of Saratoga, Santa Clara county, at from $48 to $50 a year each. The company makes this special contract because in order to serve these consumers, it must extend its distribution line 3300 feet, and incur an expense of $639.35.

The Railroad Commission has issued an order denying the Conservative Investment Company authority to discontinue service of water to residents of Neff Station Acres, and also establishing water rates to be charged to the inhabitants of Neff Station Acres and vicinity at $1 minimum a month for the first 400 cubic feet, 13 cents a hundred cubic in excess up to 2000 cubic feet, and 8 cents a hundred cubic feet over that amount. The Conservative Company asked the commission for permission to discontinue the service to Neff Station Acres, and if this were refused, for permission to raise its rates to allow a fair return upon its investment. It also desired a determination as to whether it be a public utility. Neff Station Acres consist of eight blocks in Los Angeles county. The commission's order today declares that the company is a public utility.

The Railroad Commission has issued an order fixing water rates to be charged by the Crown Water Company of Perry, Los Angeles county, at $1.25 a month a consumer for domestic service, and $2 for each hour's run of the pump for irrigation use. The present domestic rate is $1, and the irrigation service the same.

The Railroad Commission has issued an order fixing rates to be charged by the Point Arena Electric Light Company in the city of Point Arena, Mendocino county, at 65 cents a month, in residences, for the first light, and 40 cents a month for the second light and over. Store rates are $1 each month for the first 10 lights, and 90 cents a month for each light over 10. Proportionate rates are made for hotels, saloons, etc. An additional meter rate is given of 20 cents a kilowatt hour, with a monthly minimum of $4. The company has not been making expenses.

The Fresno Canal and Land Company has filed with the Railroad Commission an application for authority to issue and sell $600,000 face value of first-mortgage gold bonds, at not less than 90 per cent of par, the proceeds to retire outstanding bonds. The company supplies water for irrigation in Fresno and Kings counties, and serves about 200,000 acres, with 500 miles of canals. The new bonds desired are to be dated July 1, 1916, payable July 1, 1926, and to bear interest at five per cent, payable semi-annually. A mortgage or deed of trust covering all the properties of the company is to secure these bonds. The application says that the company has contracted with the Blankenhorn-Hunter Company, in Pasadena and Los Angeles to sell to the latter these bonds at 90 per cent of par.

Chesapeake Oyster Crop Is Very Short

BALTIMORE, Md., Nov. 23.—The oyster supply of the Chesapeake Bay is far below normal this year, it was announced today by the Maryland Conservation Commission. Only one boat load arrived here today as compared with an average of fifty last year. Its cargo sold for 90 cents a bushel compared with sixty cents a year ago. The shortage is blamed on the tardy observance of the Maryland-Virginia law which penalizes oyster men tonging seed oysters.

Utility Poultry to Be Feature of Exhibit

DISPLAY OF UTILITY POULTRY WILL BE ONE OF THE INNOVATIONS PLANNED FOR EXHIBIT AT THE MUNICIPAL AUDITORIUM.

MISS MABEL CLEARY, WITH A WHITE MINORCA PULLET, TO BE SHOWN AT PIGEON, PET STOCK AND POULTRY SHOW

Remarkable Examples of Breeding Entered for Display

The utility department will be one of the principal features of the coming combined poultry, pigeon and pet stock and cat show, to be held in the Oakland Municipal Auditorium, November 29 to December 3, inclusive.

The display of utility poultry is an innovation for fancy-bred poultry exhibits and will be inaugurated this year by the Alameda Poultry Association to comply with the request of many breeders who are working to increase the egg-laying efficiency of their hens. Among the principal exhibitors in this department are A. O. and P. M. Forster of Berkeley, who have entered several coops of high-class white Minorca pullets.

The closing of the entries to the three departments of the coming show indicates that the exhibit beginning next Wednesday will be by far the largest in the history of the organization under whose joint auspices it will be held. The secretaries of the Alameda County Poultry Association, the California Pigeon and Pet Stock Association and the California Cat Club, have compiled their entries and it is believed that the big auditorium will be taxed to its capacity to accommodate the coops of the hundreds of exhibitors. Entries have been made in all three departments from all sections of the Pacific Coast and from as far east as Illinois.

The annual convention of the American Poultry Association, to be held in the Auditorium December 1, is another feature of the combined show that will serve to attract the attention of high-class poultry breeders throughout the country. This convention will take up matters of general interest to poultry raisers among which are the plan to introduce text books on poultry raising in the public schools of the country and the organization of juvenile branches of the association in poultry-raising states of the union. More than 200 delegates from all parts of the country will attend the convention.

C. G. Hinds, general manager of the combined show, announced yesterday that the plans of the committee in charge of making the Auditorium ready for the exhibition are perfected and the building will be turned over to it within the next two or three days.

The citizens of this section of the state are assured of witnessing this year the largest exhibition of its kind ever held in the west.

NO ACID STOMACH, SOURNESS GASES OR INDIGESTION

In Five Minutes Your Sick, Sour, Upset Stomach Will Feel Fine.

"Pape's Diapepsin" Neutralizes Acids in Stomach and Starts Digestion.

Take your sour, out-of-order stomach—or maybe you call it indigestion, dyspepsia or gastritis, it doesn't matter—take your stomach trouble right with you to your pharmacist and ask him to open a 50-cent case of Pape's Diapepsin and let you eat one 22-grain triangle and see if within five minutes there is left any trace of your former misery.

The correct name for your trouble is food fermentation—acid stomach—food souring; the digestive organs become weak, there is lack of gastric juice; your food is only half digested and you become affected with loss of appetite, pressure and fullness after eating, vomiting, nausea, heartburn, griping in bowels, tenderness in the pit of stomach, bad taste in mouth, constipation, pain in limbs, sleeplessness, belching of gas, biliousness, sick headache, nervousness, dizziness or many other similar symptoms.

If your appetite is fickle, and nothing tempts you, or you belch gas or if you feel bloated after eating, or your food lies like a lump of lead on your stomach, you can make up your mind that at the bottom of all this there is but one cause—fermentation of undigested food.

Prove to yourself in five minutes that your stomach is as good as any; that there is nothing really wrong. Stop this fermentation and begin eating what you want without fear of discomfort or misery.

Almost instant relief is waiting for you. It is merely a matter of how soon you take a little Diapepsin.—Advertisement.

KILLS PAIN

Nursed Fighters, She Says in Divorce Plea

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 23.—That she spent most of her time coddling prize-fighters, feeding them, cooking for them and nursing their injuries and that therefore she is entitled to some consideration from her husband, a promoter of pugilistic combats, Mrs. Byrpee Anderson filed a cross-complaint for divorce from T. B. Anderson. She also wants to collect $700 back alimony representing payments of $50 a month which she asserts Anderson had failed to pay her since she filed the original suit for separation fourteen months ago.

She denies that she was cruel or threatened to kill her husband and asserts that all of the mistreatment was on his side. She says he brought pugilists home with him after they had suffered injuries in fistic bouts and that she nursed them back to health and strength. She declares that on one occasion when she was coming down in the elevator from their apartment her husband beat her. Other allegations are that Anderson went out with other women and told her that he hated her. She wants $50 permanent alimony and the custody of their child.

Magicians May Form S. A. M. Branch, Plan

The Pacific Coast Society of Magicians, an organization of professional and amateur magicians of the coast, may disband, to form instead a coast branch of the Society of American Magicians, the national order of legerdemain enthusiasts, according to plans to be discussed tomorrow night at a meeting, called by J. A. Mueller of the coast society. The session will take place in the Russ Building in San Francisco.

The society numbers many prominent business men of Oakland and San Francisco who follow magic as a pastime. Among the prominent amateur magicians of Oakland are F. W. Bilger, H. E. Bell, C. E. Rust, A. F. Craker, E. M. Lipka and others.
